HISTORY OF CHELSEA

CHAPTER XX

THE CONTEST RENEWED

SIXTEEN years after the proceedings recorded in the last chapter, in 1684, Captain Nicholas Paige and Anna his wife, as heir of her grandfather, Captain Robert Keayne, commenced a suit in the County Court at Boston, against John Wiswall, Jr., tenant of lands at Rumney Marsh under his father, Elder Wiswall, and Elizabeth Cooke, widow of Richard Cooke, who claimed the estates at Rumney Marsh, under the deed of 1663.¹

"The same day the selectmen assigned over the said Cooks and Weswalls deed or assignment to Nicholas Page and his heires for ever the said halfe parte of the new house in consideration of £120 to be paid by him to the Treasurer for the use of the towne vizt £40 March 25th 1670, £50 March 25th 1671 and £30 March 25th 1672 all in mony secured by said house as apeares by his obligation." Boston Town Rec., ii. 47 in Boston Rec. Com. Rep., vii. 50. [May 27, 1667, ten days after the House of Deputies acted adversely on the petition of the overseers of Captain Keayne's will, the selectmen appointed a committee of three "to make inquire into the thirds of Mrs Coole estate, and are hereby fully impoured to ishue all matters concerning the Townes legacye." Captain Keayne's widow became the wife of Samuel Cole, and on her death the Library in Boston was to receive one half, Harvard College one fourth, and the granddaughter Anna, one fourth of the property in which the widow had a life interest under the Captain's will.

County Court, January 29, 1683/4

The attachment and evidences in the case produced being read and committed to the Jury which are on file, the Jury brought in their verdict. they found for the Pl^t. possession of the ffarme sued for and costs of Court

John Wiswall Jun^r. shall prosecute his said Appeale to effect.²

Wiswall's appeal resulted in a reversal of the former judgment, as thus appears:

Mrs. Cole was living in March, 1666 (Suff. Deeds, L. 5, ff. 484, 485); but died apparently before the overseers' petition in May, 1667, as her signature was not appended to the deeds by which Samuel Cole in September and October, 1666, transferred title to property in Boston; nor is she mentioned in his will, dated December 21, 1666. He died at Winnisimmet, where a granddaughter lived. See vol. i. pp. 246, 247, 380; Suff. Deeds, L. 5, ff. 53, 74, 91; Boston Rec. Com. Rep., x. 37.]

In the "attaint of the jury," September 2, 1684, Paige was defeated, and the former verdict in behalf of Wiswall was confirmed.⁴

Nothing daunted by the result of the preceding suit, — probably they did not await it, — Nicholas and Anna Paige brought an action which called in question the validity of Wiswall and Cooke's title under Lane's deed of 1663. The record is this: ⁵

At a County Court for Suffolke, held at Boston 29th April A^o 1684

³ Rec. of the Court of Assistants, i. 249. [For the list of jurymen see Ibid., 245.]

⁴ Ibid., 255. This "attaint of the jury" requires explanation. When the losing party thought that the case went against him by reason of misconduct of the jury, or by their failing to give weight to the evidence, he was at liberty to show these facts and have a new hearing. Sometimes the jury were punished for manifest misconduct. The process is no longer known, so far as I am aware; but if the verdict is manifestly wrong, it may be set aside by the Court. Quincy, Mass. Reports, 559. [Note a change in the law in September, 1684, the date of this trial. Mass. Col. Proceedings on Appeal

“The Pl^{ts} Questions in Law wth a motion to the Court thereabout in Six pages & Appeale from y^e Courts Resolution in two — reckon^d all as one pap^r.” The above is the filing-title to a document of which the following only remains;⁶ it relates, I suppose, to the foregoing suit.

Allegation. That whereas the Defendants produce severall papers & Records of Transactions concerning Cap^t. Keayns Estate between the Executrix & m^r. Lane before the marriage covenant between s^d. Lane & m^{rs}. Anna was by the Court declared null & void. —

Ans^r. That what trust soever was comitted to m^r. Lane either by the s^d. Executrix or by the Court was upon his p^rtending to marry the heir this demandant or upon his covenanting in marriage w^t her but the s^d. Lane never p^rforming the marriage covenant as he himselfe confessed in Court all that trust reposed in him became null & void & thereupon so declared by the Court & all those acts reposeing trust in him made void & Cap^t. Keayns Estate taken out of his hands & upon his Petition he also freed from all bonds and Obligations to Cap^t. Keayns Relict & Executrix touching Cap^t Keayn's Estate. See the Nullity & Gen^l. Courts Order thereupon & his Petition.

Upon all which we humbly pray the Court to determin according to Law whether any of those papers heretofore null & declared to be so by the Gen^l. Court ought to pass to the Jury as Evidence yea or noe.

County & p^{ty} concerned for y^e. prosecution of s^d. Appcale to Effect.

Attest^r. Js^a: Addington Cl^{re}.

Allegation. That all Cap^t Keayns Estate was given away by will & so nothing for the heire to inherit.

Ans. 1. That Except the Defendants can intitile themselves by some express Claws in the will, this will be no plea for them to make title to this Land.

2. That there is not any p^t. of s^d. Lands given to any pson or psons whatsoever in p^ticular, nor so that any one could intitile [himself] to any p^t. thereof but the heir onely. —

3. If it had in express terms been said in the will that his Executo^r. or any other should Sell his Lands to pay his Legacys, yet that takes not away the descent from the heir. See Godolphin, page 372. s. 3.

Upon which we pray the Court to determin according to law whether by the will Cap^t. Keayn's heir is deprived from inheriting his Lands. —

Wiswalls & Widow Cooks Allegation. That all Cap^t. Robert Keayns Estate was Sould for payment of debts & Legacys &c. by Articles & produces a Coppy for prooff attested a true Coppy of the Original Edward Rawson Secretary ⁷

Ans. That the s^d. pretended Coppy is no proof of any such Articles, for there is no Record nor Original on file of any such thing.

That his Attestation or under writing a true Copy of the Original Edward Rawson Secretary is no more a prooffe that there is any such Original or that the pretended Copy is true then if any other man had so attested who is not in Offis.

For his Oath binds him no farther then matters i^mmediatly transacted by the Generall Court &^a So that he is not under Oath in any other matters nor ought to give any such attestation in any thing but such matters onely as are of Record or file by order of the Generall Court or Court of Assistants so that his attestation is no proff thereof.⁸ See The Secretary's Oath folio 165.

2^{dly}. If the p^rtended Copy might be supposed to be true, yet it is no Evidence to a Jury but the Original it Selfe under hand & Seale must be shewed in Court & so given to the Jury who are to try whether that Jnstrum^t. bee the Deed of the party suposed or no; but whether that p^rtended Instrum^t. do pass or convey the Lands according to law The Court ought to determin. Coke folio. 35. 6. 1 & 225. a & b.

Upon all which we humbly pray the Court to determin according to Law whether the s^d. p^rtended Copy ought to pass to the Jury as Evidence yea or noe.

These arguments did not prevail, as the court declared in the second case below that the papers should have been given to the jury.⁹

[John Wiswall & Elizabeth Cooke their Reasons of Appeale from ye Judgment or order of ye County Court held at Boston ye 29. day of Aprill last past, by which order severall copyes of Records of Court which y^e Appellants delivered into y^t Court to defend their Interest in an Action comenced ag^t them by M^r Nich^o Paige &c were taken out of y^e Case & not delivered to ye Jury

1. Because such a method is contrary to ye practise of all o^r Courts of Justice.

2. It depriues y^e Appellants of their birth-right as English subjects to haue their Case tryed by a Jury

3. Because Jurors are y^e pp Judges of Evidence.

So far Wiswall and Cooke had defeated Nicholas and Anna Paige, but better times were at hand. The old charter was vacated late in 1684, though the government changed only with the coming of Joseph Dudley's commission as President of New England in May, 1686. Nicholas and Anna Paige quite probably thought that Elisha Cooke, a friend of the old charter, and a very astute politician, carried his case by political influence. However this may have been, they brought an action in a new form, ejectione firmæ,¹¹ unknown before in the colony, and prevailed.

Sewall notices the case.¹² August 5, 1686: "This day Capt. Paige hath a Judgment for Capt. Keyn's Farm: Mr. Cook Appeals."

At a Councill held in Boston New England December 16th. 1686. . . . M^r. Elisha Cooke appearing before the Court, and being demanded if he would sign his Bonds of Appeal to his Maj^{ty} in Councill according to a late injunction of the Court of appeals in the cases depending between himselfe and others (and Captⁿ. Nicholas Paige & his wife) and if he had Suretyes for that purpose answered he could not consent to give such Bonds as were required by the Court for the same. Also M^r. John Wissell Sen^r.

¹¹ The declaration is in the appendix of Stearns' Real Actions. Turel vs. Dyer in Ejectione firmæ from two messuages in Rumney Marsh, July 27, 1686. For a fuller statement of this case with much new matter and notes by the learned editor see Provincial Acts and Resolves, vii. 507-511. [See in the appendix to chap. xxi. the papers in one of these suits.]

¹² Diary, i. 146.

Jn^o. Wissell Jun^r. being severally asked as of Mr. Cooke aforesaid returned the same answer as Mr. Cooke had done. Also Mr. John Flood being demanded as of Mr. Cooke aforesaid answered he should do nothing.¹³

Monday December 20, 1686, Last Satterday, Mr. Cook not prosecuting his Appeal, Possession was given by Major Bulkly and Marshal Green, of the Farm to Capt. Paige and his wife.¹⁴

During the Andros government, when writs of intrusion were brought against the owners of estates on the ground of their reversion to the Crown after the revocation of the Charter in 1684, Colonel Paige and his wife, 21 March, 1687/8,¹⁵ petitioned for patents for two estates, one on the south side of King Street, against the Town House, Boston, and the other the Keayne farms at Rumney Marsh.¹⁶ Patents were granted, and may still exist.¹⁷

Elisha Cooke reopens the Case

For nine years Nicholas and Anna Paige, having defeated Cooke and satisfied the King, enjoyed their estates and were content; but Cooke was not content, and sought relief in the General Court which passed a vote For granting a review, to Elisha Cooke and others of certain actions brought in the time of President Dudley, by Colonel Nicholas Paige and Ann, his wife, concerning lands in Rumney Marsh and Boston, wherein judgment was entered against the Defendants, June 17, 1695.¹⁸ With this enabling act¹⁹ Cooke re-opened the contest which had slept for nine years. September 18, 1695, Sewall²⁰ records: "This day, Sept. 18, Mr. Cook enters the Lists with Col. Paige, and sues for Capt. Keyn's Farm again." This suit was by review of the judgments

¹⁷ The survey of the farm is given infra, p. 15.

¹⁸ [The correct date is June 17, 1696. This followed the action by review, and the petition of Cooke, Wiswall, et al., given below. This bill is omitted, as it is printed in Provincial Acts and Resolves, vii. 117.]

The Court apparently sustained this demurrer by Paige, and thereupon Cooke and his associates went to the General Court the next year.²⁴ The General Court, with which Cooke as a popular leader had influence, granted the application, and a second time he was defeated in the Superior Court; for Sewall records:²⁵ "Boston, N. E., Nov^r 19. 1701. The Court gave Sentence that the Law for Reviews bars Mr. Cooke &c. their Action against Col. Paige, Mr. Saffin was of that opinion also." Sewall gives the names of the jurors when the case was tried at Boston, July 27, 1686, and also on the appeal, November 2, the same year; to this last, he adds the names of the judges. But Cooke had courage and perseverance, and again appealed to the General Court.

ELISHA COOKE'S LAST APPEAL

WHEN I began to investigate the legal proceedings for Captain Keayne's farm, I was greatly embarrassed by the lack of records, and later by the multiplicity (though far from complete). But the story is told graphically, if not quite impartially, by Elisha Cooke in a memorial to the General Court.¹ [The endorsements on this memorial follow:]

We hear no more of this bill. It was dropped, and from that time Anna Paige was allowed quietly to enjoy her estate, but not for long; for Sewall has this entry: ⁶ "Feria Sexta, Junij, 30, 1704. As the Governour [Joseph Dudley] sat at the Council-Table twas told him, Madam Paige was dead; He claspd his hands, and quickly went out, and return'd not to the Chamber again." Madam Paige was the niece of Governor Dudley, and on July 2, 1704, in Boston, was borne to the tomb by distinguished pall-bearers. Her husband, Colonel Nicholas Paige, survived her some years, dying probably late in 1717, as his will was probated January 3, 1717/18.

Of the Keayne estate at Rumney Marsh, the little farm was sold ⁷ to Paul Dudley, as before related, and the great farm became the property of Martha Hobbs, who was in some way related to Nicholas Paige, and married Nathaniel Oliver.⁸

TO CHAPTERS XIX-XXI

[IN January, 1683/4, Captain Nicholas Paige and Anna his wife brought suit in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas to recover the farm at Rumney Marsh on the plea that she was the heiress of her grandfather, Captain Keayne, who had died nearly twenty eight years before. The suit was brought against John Wiswall, Jr., tenant and part owner of the farm through a deed from Edward Lane to Richard Cooke and Elder Wiswall dated some twenty years before. The verdict in this lower court was for the plaintiff, possession of the farm and costs of court.¹ The defendant appealed to the Court of Assistants, where the judgment was reversed at the March court of 1683/4.² Nicholas Paige then took the final step of attainting the jury. This rendered a new trial necessary before a jury of twenty-four, a method of procedure substituted for an appeal to the General Court, which had been the earlier practice, but had proved burdensome and obstructive of the country's business.³ This trial by attain of jury was appointed for the September term of the Court of Assistants.

In the meantime at the April term of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, Nicholas Paige and Anna his wife brought suit to recover another piece of property, a pasture in Boston, which had belonged formerly to Captain Keayne, and passed by the same deed from Edward Lane to Cooke and Wiswall.⁴ This time the verdict in the lower court was against Captain Paige, and he appealed to the Court of Assistants, the case also coming up at the September term. Many of the papers in these suits thus appealed have been preserved in the Early Court Files of Suffolk County.⁵

"Elder Wiswall & Widdow Cook" in defence of their title claimed that all Captain Keayne's estate had been given away by will and consequently there was nothing for the heir to inherit; that the estate had been sold to Edward Lane for the payment of debts and legacies by the overseers of the will under a resolution of the General Court, and with the approval of its committee; and that Lane had conveyed to them (the defendants) the land in dispute by deed of Dec. 14, 1663.⁶

Nicholas Paige and his wife claimed the farm on the ground that she was sole heir to the estate of Captain Robert Keayne, insisting that "if it had in express terms been said in the will that his Executor or any other should Sell his Lands to pay his Legacys, yet that takes not away the descent from the heir," quoting Godolphin, page 312, s. 3. Of the deed from Lane to Cooke and Wiswall they demanded first that the original should be produced, adding, "That if any such Instrument were made by M^r Lane to them Their safest Plea is to say that it was in Trust, which if they shall not so Doe we say That the said Instrument was a Covenous & fraudulent Conveyance . . . Made & contrived one purpose to Defraud M^{rs} Paige of her Estate which came to her from her Grandfather Cap^t Keayne."

A few words of explanation seem necessary. Anna Keayne Paige was not by the will a residuary legatee. She received three hundred pounds as her first legacy, six hundred more if her father died leaving no other children, and at the death of her grandmother, Captain Keayne's widow, one fourth of her thirds — that is, the legacy could not have exceeded, in the intent of Captain Keayne, £1234. Under the will she could not claim both the house in Boston, which Edward Lane had deeded to her in 1663, and the farm at Rumney Marsh, for in the inventory of Captain Keayne's estate the one had been valued at £570, and the other at £150, a total of £1320, exclusive of household furniture and stock; and the appraisement of the inventory was some fourteen hundred pounds less than Captain Keayne's estimate, by which he gauged his legacies.⁷ Therefore if Captain Paige and his wife intended to claim the whole of the farm, it was necessary to demand the estate as heir-at-law.

Their opponents claimed that the whole of Captain Keayne's estate had been given away by the will, and therefore nothing was left for the heir-at-law. As to the intent of the testator, the will is in print and can be consulted. Apparently Captain Keayne intended, in case his son did not survive him, to dispose of his whole estate; if there were any residue, it was to be devoted to "publike or charitable use or uses" by the overseers with the advice and consent of his wife, the executrix.⁸

Anna Keayne married Edward Lane December 11, 1657. Before the marriage Mrs. Anna Keayne, the grandmother, transferred the executorship of the will to Edward Lane.⁹ Within fifteen months the granddaughter, dissatisfied with Edward Lane as a husband, petitioned the Court and secured an annulment of the marriage.¹⁰ A business settlement was necessitated, and to accomplish it the aid of the Great and General Court had to be invoked. Edward Lane insisted that he had assumed a heavy burden when he undertook the executorship, that Captain Keayne had estimated his estate at four thousand pounds, and had made his bequests in accordance with that estimate, while by the inventory of the estate taken at his death it fell far short of this, and when his debts and funeral charges were paid, it would not amount to two thousand pounds; and he asked to be relieved of the ⁷ Captain Keayne, when he made his will, estimated his estate at £4000. Boston Rec. Com. Rep., x. 47. For the inventory, see infra, p. 51. As to the widow's thirds, see supra, p. 13. See also Boston Rec. Com. Rep., x. 19, 20, 21, 37.

⁸ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., x. 21, 39.

executorship.¹¹ At the time of his marriage Edward Lane had been in the country but a little over a year and, presumably, had brought with him funds. It was charged by Captain Keayne's widow that he paid legacies more promptly than the provisions of the will required.¹² He had also made repairs and alterations on the houses, spending thereby £1,059, of his own estate, he claimed, for which he demanded payment. The widow of Captain Keayne further complicated affairs by assuming the position that, notwithstanding the annulment of his marriage with her granddaughter, Mr. Lane must abide by his business agreement with herself, and remain executor of her husband's estate. This position she continued to hold even when her brother-in-law, John Wilson, and the other overseers of the will, declined further to support her.¹³ The business was before the General Court during two sessions, and two committees were occupied with it before a final settlement was reached. One suggestion was that Samuel Cole, who had in the meantime decided to marry Mrs. Anna Keayne, Sr., should become the executor, and repay such disbursements of Mr. Lane as had increased the value of the estate, on condition that the half of Mrs. Keayne's thirds which was devised at her death to the Library in Boston, should be confirmed to her.¹⁴ In November, 1659, the court decreed that Mr. Lane should be released from the executorship, and repaid for what he had expended to the amount of six hundred and fifty pounds, receiving also the rent for the two past years of the farm and of the Boston house and shop. It then appointed Mr. Simon Bradstreet and Major-General Dennison, uncles by marriage to "M^{rs} Anne Keayne, Junio^r," her guardians, releasing Mr. Lane from this trust. It next directed the overseers of Captain Keayne's will "to take the estate into their hands, & to sell or dispose thereof, for speedy payment of the legatjes." The Court also appointed a committee of six to join with the overseers in interpreting Captain Keayne's intentions as to public and private legacies, and to approve and confirm their acts as to the estate. Shortly thereafter the Court "in consideration of the late Capt. Robert Keaynes libberall guifts to the country in his will" granted to Mrs. Anna Keayne Cole and Anna Keayne five hundred acres of land apiece in the wilderness, on the banks of the Merrimack. This was in November, 1659.¹⁵

Within a few weeks, this settlement was overthrown by Anna Keayne marrying Edward Lane a second time. Captain Keayne's estate was then a second time turned over to Mr. Lane by a document signed March 12, 1659/60, by himself, by six out of eight overseers of the will, by four of the committee of six appointed by the General Court, and by Mr. and Mrs. Cole.¹⁶ According to later evidence Anna Keayne Lane was present.

By these articles the estate was delivered to Mr. Lane "to enjoy to him his heires & assignes for ever" on condition that he should pay the debts and legacies of Captain Keayne, and fulfil the agreement with Mrs. Cole as to her thirds. Moreover, it was provided that Lane should pay Mrs. Cole twenty pounds a year instead of the forty pounds agreed upon in 1657. Also after her death, "in consideration of what y^e Estate may possibly fall short & to prevent ye abatement of any legacies in whole or part at p^rsent," he was permitted some choice as to the form of payments made to the legatees to whom the thirds were bequeathed. And in case there should in the future be recovered against Captain Keayne's estate debts amounting to the "vallue of one hundred Marks or upward, then y^e Overseers will further consider how they may ease M^r Lane in y^e paym^t therof in case it be p^rsented to them whilst it is in their power to do it." Edward Lane was to give security to the overseers for the payment of debts and legacies.

The argument of Nathaniel Thomas, attorney of Nicholas Paige, to invalidate this document has been given in full, and reference thereto should be had.¹⁷ At the different trials several writings were placed on file. Comparing these the following facts stand forth. Cooke and Wiswall could not produce the original of the agreement of March 12, 1659/60, with its thirteen signatures, but the document presented to the Suffolk County Court was a copy attested by Edward Rawson as Secretary of the Colony, as the agreement had been authorized by a vote of the General Court, and confirmed by its committee. On March 12, 1659/60, the overseers of the will, the committee empowered by the General Court to confirm the action of the overseers, Mr. and Mrs. Cole, Edward Lane, and Anna Keayne Lane met in Mr. Turner's inn adjoining the Keayne mansion, and in the presence and with the consent of all concerned, the agreement in question was drawn as a final settlement of the estate and was then signed. Anna Keayne Lane's signature was not necessary, as her interest was that of a legatee. The document in the progress of its growth had, however, been much blotted and interlined, and was therefore left with Edward Rawson, the Secretary of the Colony, and an overseer of Captain Keayne's will, to make a clear copy of it. This is stated in the testimony of Simon Bradstreet confirmed by Edward Rawson and Thomas Danforth. According to their testimony also, the document in court was an accurate copy of the agreement signed on March 12, 1659/60. It had not been recorded in the registry of deeds, as the earlier agreement of 1657 had been. According to a deposition by Simon Bradstreet it was intended that the copy made by Secretary Rawson should be delivered to Edward Lane as evidence of title upon his giving bonds to carry out its provisions, but that Lane had neglected to give bonds, and hence, so far as he knew, the agreement had never been delivered to him. It is nowhere explained how Cooke was able to produce in court a copy of the agreement attested by "Edward Rawson Secretary," if this copy was not delivered to Edward Lane. Edward Rawson deposed that Lane had refused to give bonds. This, then, was the ground for invalidating Lane's, and hence Cooke and Wiswall's, title to the estate. The same attempt on the same grounds had been made by the overseers of the will in 1667 in a petition to the General Court, and had failed.¹⁸ Cooke in 1684 introduced copies of testimony taken in court in 1667 to prove that Captain Johnson, in the name of the overseers, formally delivered possession of the premises to Mr. Lane after the second marriage. Of Edward Lane's possession of the estate there was no question. The overseers stated that Lane retained the estate in his hands after the decree of the General Court in November, 1659. On this point the testimony is contradictory. In December, 1657, when Lane first assumed the executorship, the bonds required of him by the Court covered the farm at Rumney Marsh and the mansion house of Captain Keayne in Boston. At no time did either Lane or Cooke and Wiswall deny that they were chargeable for the legacies and debts of Captain Keayne. During his lifetime Lane had undisputed possession of the estate, paid Mrs. Cole's annuity according to the agreement signed in March, 1659/60, and paid several legacies of Captain Keayne. Cooke and Wiswall asserted, and no contradictory evidence is on file, that the agreement of 1659/60 was honestly fulfilled by Lane and by themselves.¹⁹

Next to be considered are Captain Paige's objections to the deed from Lane to Cooke and Wiswall of December 14, 1663.²⁰ At that time, about four years after their second marriage, Edward Lane and his wife decided to separate, the cause being apparently her relations with Nicholas Paige, the father of her children.²¹ December 2, 1663, Edward Lane, intending, it was said in a supplementary document,²² a "voyage for England suddainly if God pmitt," conveyed to trustees for the use of Anna Keayne Lane the mansion house of Captain Keayne in Boston on the condition that she renounce all claim to the estate of Captain Robert Keayne, and to that of Edward Lane, "Except what maye be heereafter giuen and Bequeathed Vnto hir by the last will & testement of me the said Edward Lane."²³ Possession was taken in her behalf by the trustees Robert Gibbs and Thomas Brattle. The deed was acknowledged before Thomas Danforth, one of the committee of the General Court who had signed the agreement of March, 1659/60; and also before Samuel Bradstreet, when a clause was added in her favor. Doubtless Samuel Bradstreet was the son of her uncle Simon Bradstreet, who had been appointed her guardian by the General Court in 1659, when the first marriage was annulled.²⁴ The deed was recorded immediately in the Suffolk Registry of Deeds by Edward Rawson, her cousin, one of the overseers of Captain Keayne's will. She herself signed with the trustees a supplementary document to the effect that Edward Lane was to retain possession of the house, and receive rents until March 25, 1664.

Twelve days after the signing of this deed and three days after it was recorded, Edward Lane conveyed the remainder of his estate, including the farm at Rumney Marsh, to Richard Cooke and Elder John Wiswall,²⁵ the former apparently an intimate friend, and the latter a tenant of one of the shops built on Captain Keayne's land, next his house, in Boston. The consideration was that Cooke and Wiswall should pay the annuity of £20 a year to Mrs. Cole; also all debts due from Edward Lane to Simon Bradstreet and to parties in England, and the necessary expenses of Edward Lane, to an amount not to exceed seven hundred pounds.

According to a statement made later by Richard Cooke, they also agreed to pay three hundred pounds more in debts or legacies, if required so to do, but this latter agreement does not appear in the deed.²⁶ Lane did not give a warranty, but conveyed the properties "in such Large & ample sort manner & forme, as he y^e s^d Edward Lane may grant Bargaine sell enfeoffe assigne Sett over, & Confirme y^e same." He specifically conveyed the rights of Anna Keayne Lane in her grandmother's thirds. He, alone, signed the deed. The intent of Edward Lane was apparently to convey to Cooke and Wiswall all his rights in the property as executor, and also all the rights of Anna Lane his wife, sole heir-at-law of Robert Keayne, leaving the property subject to the life interest of Mrs. Anna Keayne Cole, as defined in the settlement of 1659/60, and the public or private bequests which remained unpaid or became due on the death of Mrs. Cole. The deed was signed December 14, 1663, acknowledged, February 4, and recorded by Edward Rawson, March 24, 1663/4, the day before Lane had agreed to give final possession of the mansion house to the trustees for the use of Anna Keayne Lane.

Edward Lane died in about a year, January 12, 1664/5, and in consequence of his early death without leaving a will, Cooke and Wiswall were compelled to pay on his account only about £493, and of this £75 were for legacies under Captain Keayne's will. Thus they obtained the property for less than half the sum which, according to their own statement, they might have been compelled by Lane to pay, and that was probably less than the real value of the property. Bitterness was also felt toward Richard Cooke for the part which he had taken in the affair, from the marriage in 1657 to the publicity of the scandal in the indictment of Mrs. Anna Paige, on her return from England, in 1665.²⁷ The overseers of the will, three of whom were uncles by marriage of Mrs. Paige, consequently petitioned the General Court in May, 1667, to be given the control of the property "that y^e true meaning and will of y^e deceased, who Soe leberally bequeathed to Publique vses may be fulfilled; and his Relations may not be jniured." They complained that the "Said Lane hath neither giuen Security, nor discharged all y^e debts and Legacies according to his Covenant, and y^e Expresse Condition of his being be-trusted with the Said Estate; But on y^e Contrary hath as wee Nicholas Paige and his wife were apparently not more successful in the lower courts. When Benjamin Muzzey refused to pay his rent, Cooke and Wiswall were able to collect it by process of law, though Nicholas Paige supported Muzzey and appealed the case to the Court of Assistants.³³ At the trial of the indictment of Mrs. Paige in 1666, Nicholas Paige and his wife in their defence “humbly propose to the Honord Court That the said Cooke first release all pretended Right to any part of the Estate which was formerly the Defendants & Referr it to the honord Court or such Comitte^e as they shall appoynt to Determine, and order him all reasonable Sattisfaction & Interest for Disbursments vpon the said Estate; and the remainder Thereof to the heires in law or Judgment of the Court.” Richard Cooke in his answer replied to this point: “but I humbly Crave leave to Declare That if any of The relations of Captaine Keayne Desire to have that estate which was his; lett them but give vs all M^r Lanes Dis-

Seventeen years’ possession from 1667 to 1684 would under ordinary conditions confirm the title of Cooke and Wiswall. That it was during this period considered beyond question seems apparent from the fact that in 1678 John Dowlettle paid £250 for one fourth of the large farm exclusive of buildings, and in 1680 Elisha Cooke paid £150 for Wiswall’s half of the small farm.³⁵ But early in 1684 the Colony’s charter was known to be in danger,³⁶ and in the legal confusion which must necessarily follow its annulment possibly the niece of Joseph Dudley might win her case. Thus the most interesting feature of the trial of 1684, as disclosed by the papers preserved, was the quoting of the laws of England, ignoring the customs and statutes of the colony, and the attempt to discredit the registry system of Massachusetts, and compel the production in court of original documents.

During the trial Nicholas Paige tried to keep from the jury all the papers on which the defendants depended to prove the title of Lane. In the margin of the Suffolk County Court record it is written that “W^m Stoughton, Joseph Dudley & Peter Bulkley sat in Court y^e three first days of May,” 1684,³⁷ Joseph Dudley, being the uncle of Mrs. Paige. On May 3, Nathaniel Thomas, attorney to Nicholas Paige, secured in this court two orders excluding the papers by which the estate of Captain Keayne was placed in Edward Lane’s hands in 1657, and again in 1660. If these orders were sustained, Lane’s title, as it would appear before the court and jury, must depend solely on his position as husband of Anna Keayne. To meet this the attorneys contended that a husband could not by his sole act alienate his wife’s lands, and then denied that Edward Lane had married Anna Keayne a second time; though for four years, 1660 to 1663, she was publicly regarded as his wife, and her two children were recorded in the Boston town records as his children. It was claimed that all proof of a second marriage should be excluded.³⁸

Thus at the September term of the Court of Assistants in 1684, three appeals lay, — that of Elder Wiswall and Elizabeth Cooke against the ruling out of documents at the April term of the County Court, that of Nicholas Paige and his wife from the verdict in the same case and court, and the attaint of the Jury for the verdict at the March term of the Court of Assistants. The latter suit was for the farm at Rumney Marsh, the former for the pasture in Boston. In all three appeals the verdict was against Nicholas Paige and his wife. The trials do not seem to have been hurried, — Cooke and Wiswall charged for attendance seven days at the April term of the County Court, and at the September term of the Court of Assistants, six days as defendant and five days as appellant, and in the trial by attaint in the same court, three days.³⁹

Thus far Wiswall and Cooke had defeated Nicholas and Anna Paige, but a change was impending. The Colony's charter was vacated, and Joseph Dudley was appointed President of New England. May 15, 1686, Sewall wrote: "Gov^r Hinkley, Major Richards, Mr. Russell and Self sent to by Major Dudley to come to Capt. Paige's, where we saw the Exemplification of the Judgment against the Charter with the Broad Seal affixed." Five days later Joseph Dudley assumed the office of President.

Apparently Nicholas Paige and his wife thought that Elisha Cooke would be powerless in the courts against the influence of the "President," Joseph Dudley. Consequently, at the first court which met in Suffolk County after Joseph Dudley took his seat as President, they brought an action in a new form, ejectione firmæ, hitherto unknown in the colony, Elisha Cooke asserted. In this suit they prevailed. The case was tried in "his Majesty's Court of Pleas and Sessions of the Peace," held in Boston for Suffolk, July 27, 1686, William Stoughton being the President of the court.⁴⁰ The case was entitled "Daniel Turel Plant. versus

⁴¹ Provincial Acts and Resolves, vii, 508, 509. The action of Ejectione firmæ had become the regular and usual mode of trying possessory titles in England. Its chief development had however taken place since the founding of New England, and the simple jurisprudence of the colony had rendered unnecessary so complicated and artificial a form of procedure. Of the legal fictions involved Stearns (Real Actions) remarks that “no client can possibly be made to understand these fictions.”

In this case no papers seem to have been preserved except the formal court record, but for the trial in the Middlesex County Court the papers are still on file. As it happened, forty acres of Captain Keayne's farm lay in Malden. Hence after the rendering of judgment in the lower court of Suffolk County, and before the trial by appeal, suit was brought for these forty acres in the Middlesex County Court, over which William Stoughton had been appointed judge by President Dudley, July 26. The trial took place in October, and lasted two days. The verdict was for Captain Paige. An appeal was taken by Cooke to the same November Court of Appeals to which the Suffolk County case had been appealed. With one exception the evidence consisted of copies of documents and depositions filed in the Suffolk County Court.⁴³

The plea of Nicholas and Anna Paige by their attorney, Nathaniel Thomas, in 1686 as in 1684, was that she was the sole heir-at-law of Captain Keayne. They placed on file depositions proving the line of descent. In response Cooke insisted that they had no right to sue, being debarred by the judgment in 1684, after which no action was permissible except by a review of the judgment then rendered; and also by the Statute of Limitations.⁴⁴ Failing on this point, Cooke claimed, as in the earlier suit in 1684, that all of Captain Keayne's estate had been given away by will, so that there was nothing for the heir to inherit; that the estate had been handed over to Mr. Lane on condition that he pay the debts and legacies; that he had fulfilled this agreement, including the legacy to the plaintiff; and hence that she had no right to any of the land. Their own title they held by deed under seal from Mr. Lane; but possession alone was sufficient for them as the plaintiff could not prove title.⁴⁵ In support of these allegations Cooke filed thirteen papers copied from the earlier court files, his papers being attested by Daniel Allen, one of the two clerks of the Suffolk County Court, while Thomas Dudley, the other, attested the documents presented by Mr. Paige. In the answer, Nathaniel Thomas entirely ignored the evidence introduced to prove that the whole estate had been given away by will and therefore that there was nothing for the heir to inherit, claiming that as no specific piece of land was mentioned in the will, the whole landed estate of Captain Keayne should be adjudged to the heir; and in answer to the plea that the estate had been sold by the executors to Mr. Lane by the agreement of March, 1659/60, he repeated the arguments made in the trial of 1684 for the exclusion of the paper in question.⁴⁶

The case then turned on whether the title to Captain Keayne's estate had passed to Edward Lane, March 12, 1659/60. That the agreement of that date was intended as a final settlement of the case, and was agreed to by all parties concerned, appears clearly from the papers on file. Twenty years before, in 1666, and again in 1667, it had been so accepted by the General Court, which refused to listen to the pleas of Anna Paige, and of the overseers of the will, that it should be set aside. Two years before, in two trials, both carried by appeal to the highest court in the Colony, Paige's plea, similar to that now presented, had been rejected, and the title of Cooke had been re-affirmed. At this trial in 1686, as at that in 1684, the assertion was made, and proof was presented in its support, that Lane and his assignees had bona fide carried out the terms of the agreement, and no evidence was brought to show that he or his assignees, Cooke and Wiswall, had failed at any point.⁴⁷

The evidence of the agreement presented in court was a copy attested by Daniel Allen, Clerk of the Suffolk County Court, of a copy attested by Edward Rawson, a cousin of Mrs. Paige and an overseer of Captain Keayne's will, as Secretary of the Colony. The signers then living, Simon Bradstreet, Thomas Danforth, and Edward Rawson, testified that they "were p^rsent at y^e meeting & debate of the severall particulars, & do c^rteinly know y^t y^e severall articles therein named were then mutually agreed upon by all partyes concⁿed, & are fully sattisfied & confid^t y^t this Instrum^t or writeing is a true coppie of y^e orriginall then signed by our selves, & those others therein named."⁴⁸ The only testimony brought to invalidate the transaction was that of Simon Bradstreet and Edward Rawson to the effect that, according to the agreement, Lane was to give bonds to carry out its provisions as to the payment of debts and legacies, that he never did this, and hence that the transfer of title was never legally consummated.⁴⁹ To prove the transfer of title Cooke produced evidence to show that after March 12, 1659/60, Captain Johnson, one of the overseers of the will, gave formal delivery of the premises to Lane in the presence of witnesses.⁵⁰ The court ruled that the title could not pass except "by a formal & sufficient Deed under the Hands & Seales of ye persons so Impower'd." ⁵¹ Whether the title did so pass to Lane by the agreement of March 12, 1659/60, as evidenced by the document presented in court was left to the jury by the Middlesex County Court. The ruling of the Suffolk County Court had left to the Suffolk jury no discretion whatever. ⁵² The defendants could not produce the original document in court, and lost their case.

December 19, 1687, Lieutenant-Colonel Paige and his wife obtained from the Council a confirmation of their lands at Boston and Rumney Marsh. ⁵³ Joseph Dudley's estates were confirmed on the same day. Two days later Cooke, Wiswall, and Floyd tendered the following petition: ⁵⁴

Apparently this petition resulted in nothing. The survey of the farm of Nicholas Paige at Rumney Marsh, made in 1688, is still on file.⁵⁶

For nine years then Nicholas and Anna Paige, having defeated Cooke, enjoyed their estates; but Cooke would not rest. Elder Wiswall died in 1687, and in January, 1689/90, Cooke was sent by the Colony, as one of its agents, to England. October 23, 1692, he returned to Boston from London, but owing to his dispute with Mather in England, and his opposition to the new charter from William and Mary, he had many opponents in New England. Thus in June, 1693, his election to the Council was negatived by Governor Phipps.⁵⁷ But in 1694 he was re-elected to the Council, and was permitted to take his seat. About the same time he seems to have turned to the task of recovering the farm at Rumney Marsh. First it was necessary to secure a standing in court.

In 1684 Elisha Cooke and John Wiswall had not only been obliged to defend their suit against Nicholas Paige and his wife, but, as in 1666, they had on hand a suit against Benjamin Muzzey. At the April term of the County Court in 1684 they recovered against Muzzey and Joel Jenkins, two hundred pounds and costs of court. This being the forfeiture of a bond, it was chauncered, or reduced, to one hundred twenty-six pounds in money (less ten pounds already received) on April 2, 1685.⁵⁸ On June 21, 1694, Elisha Cooke secured a writ of scire facias calling Benjamin Muzzey of Cambridge, son and administrator of the estate of Benjamin Muzzey deceased, and Ezekiel Jenkins of Malden, son and sole executor of the will of Joel Jenkins, to appear in court on the first Tuesday in July to show cause why an execution should not issue against them. At the July court the "Parties appeared by themselves & Attorneys. Benjⁿ Muzzey ye Adm^r pleads he hath no Estate of Benjⁿ Muzzey dec^d in his hand but one pound nine shillings six pence w^{ch} he is ready to pay. The Writt was read and no other pleas offered to prove payment. The Judgement was affirmed by the Court."⁵⁹ As Muzzey did not dispute Cooke's claim, the question as to the ownership of the farm was not brought before the courts.

March 6, 1694/5, Elisha Cooke was nominated by the Council a judge in the Superior Court of Judicature, receiving twenty votes against five scattering,⁶⁰ and was confirmed by the acting Governor, William Stoughton. On the twenty-fifth of the same month, eight months after the confirmation of the judgment against Muzzey, execution was issued for one hundred twenty pounds fifteen shillings and eight pence. The return of the under sheriff of Middlesex County was that Benjamin Muzzey declared he had no estate of his father in his hands — only five pounds six shillings and six pence.⁶¹ No further action was taken in the case for over a year.

Six months later, September 18, 1695, Cooke took out an attachment on the farm at Rumney Marsh and on an acre of land in Boston, and entered the case at the October term of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas. It was an action by review of the action of ejectione firmæ by which Nicholas Paige and his wife had obtained possession of the property in 1686. The decision was rendered at the January court of 1695/6. Elisha Cooke and his associates were nonsuited.⁶² Apparently in 1695 Cooke had, according to the laws then in force, no right of review. The act establishing the courts, which was passed in 1692 under the provisions of the new charter, permitted a review immediately after judgment, and the supplementary act of Oct. 22, 1694, modifying this, permitted a review within eighteen months of the rendering of judgment and no later. Furthermore an act passed in December, 1693, permitted judgments rendered in County courts since the year 1686, and before the passage of the act of November, 1692, to be reviewed at any time before December, 1694, but not later.⁶³ On the other hand, the act of October 14, 1692, stating that quiet possession from October 1, 1692, to October 1, 1695, would give confirmation of title, would have barred all possibility of future recovery unless Cooke took action before that time.⁶⁴ Hence, probably, suit was brought as already described.

but the letter from the Privy Council to the governor conveying this intelligence was dated December 26, 1695, and hence could not have reached America till after the trial had ended. Provincial Acts and Resolves, i. 72, 73, 109, 110, 143, 184, 185. Elisha Cooke, in 1702, said that news of the disallowance of the Act of October 14, 1692, also of date August 22, 1695, reached America after the trial. The attorneys of Nicholas and Anna Paige quoted the "Province Law Entitled an act for Establishing Courts of Judicature &c. page 41" as a bar to the action of review. The supplementary act of December 11, 1693, is found on page 41 of the edition of the Province Laws in 1694. It recited that whereas in the act of 1692 for establishing Judicatories and Courts of Justice, the provision as to "reviews and writs of error, doth only extend to the courts established by said act, and no provision is thereby made for any tryals heretofore had in the county courts in the late distinct colonies now united within this province, which are now dissolved: and whereas, for want of due provision and remedy therein, great damage and injury may occur to some of their majesties' good subjects within this province, for redress whereof, and that no defect or want of justice may in any manner happen or be," therefore it was enacted "That when any tryal, judgment, sentence or decree has been had, given or made in any of the county courts within the late colonies of the Massachusetts or Plimouth, or province of Main, of what nature, kind or quality soever, the same have been there tried, had, given or made, since the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty and six, and no review or appeal thereupon heretofore had and prosecuted, it shall and may be in the liberty of either party (plaintiff or defendant), agrieved, within the space of twelve months next after the date of this present act, and not afterwards, to bring his or their action of review to the inferiour court of common pleas to be held for the same county where the action was first tried," etc. The time for bringing suit under this act had ended in December, 1694. It might be questioned whether this would apply literally to the case of Elisha Cooke, as the judgment against him was rendered during, not since, the year 1686, and he had prosecuted an appeal in 1686. It is doubtful then if he could have claimed a right of review under a literal interpretation of the act. But it is evident that it was intended to permit a retrial of cases decided during the inter-charter period. Thus his plea for a hearing before the courts would have been stronger in 1694 than in 1695, in spirit if not in letter. To assume that he had a right of review in 1695 would mean that judgments rendered before the beginning of the year 1687 might be reviewed, while for judgments rendered later such review was forbidden. Moreover the preamble of the act of December 11, 1693, as quoted above, assumed that a review of earlier judgments was not an existing right, but a privilege that could be enjoyed only by special grant, as by that act.

Floyd petitioned the General Court convened at Boston, May 27, 1696. Several of the Justices of the County Court having declared that "by ye Lawes of this Province all such Actions are barred," they asked to be relieved in the premises, and enabled to review. The petition was read and agreed to by the Council on June 16, and by the House of Representatives the day following, but it did not receive the approval of the Lieutenant Governor necessary to its becoming a law.⁶⁵ As William Stoughton, the acting Governor, had been a member of the lower court, which, May 3, 1684, ruled out the principal documents on which Cooke and his associates depended to defend their suit, and as he had been president also of the courts before which the actions of ejectione firmæ in both the Suffolk and Middlesex County Courts had been brought by Nicholas Paige in 1686, he naturally hesitated to sign the bill, especially as the higher Court of Judicature in 1696 consisted of Stoughton, Danforth, Winthrop, Sewall, and Cooke.

⁶⁵ In Provincial Acts and Resolves, vii. 117, the vote in answer to the petition of Elisha Cooke has been printed as chap. xxvi. of the laws of that session; but on p. 507 the editor adds in a note: "It is not certain that the vote which constitutes this chapter received the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor, which was indispensable to its becoming a law. In the petition to the General Court in 1701, which is hereinafter printed in full, the petitioners declare that this 'bill' was 'never perfected,'—a declaration which would scarcely have passed uncontradicted if it were not true. Still, since the vote remaining in the archives has all the characteristics common to perfected votes and resolves, and was, moreover, recorded by the Secretary as having been passed, it has been deemed proper to include it here and to leave the question of its validity to be determined by other inquirers." The latter statement is based on the assumption that nothing was copied into the book of records of the General Court, from which this is drawn, that did not become a law. An examination of the book in question shows that this statement is not justified by the record. On the preceding day, June 15, two bills were entered which certainly did not become laws, as after each it is recorded that they were "read in Council, and Voted, a non concurrence." Examples could be multiplied to show that the book contains the daily legislative action of the Council, and is not solely a record of laws enacted. Six measures were voted by the Council on June 16 and seven on June 17. To twelve of these was appended the phrase "I consent, Wm Stoughton" or its equivalent. The vote on the petition of Cooke, Wiswall, and Floyd was the only vote to which this consent was not appended. The vote on this petition passed the Council on June 16, and was recorded under that date. According to the entry on the petition as preserved in the Archives, it was read twice in the House of Delegates on June 16, but was not passed by the lower house until June 17. On the same day the Lieutenant-Governor adjourned the Court until the September following. There is no evidence to show that he gave his assent to the measure. See MSS. Records of the General Court, 1689-1698, p. 468; Mass. Archives, xvi. 519.

Thus, although both houses voted in favor of granting the petition, the General Court was adjourned on June 17, without the governor's signature having been obtained.

At the Inferior Court of Common Pleas which met at Boston the first Tuesday of July, Cooke obtained an alias execution against Muzzey on the judgment rendered two years before, the writ to be returned to the Court which should meet on the first Tuesday of January, 1696/7. The writ was dated November 9, 1696, and the return of the under-sheriff, John Waite, dated November 11, stated that Benjamin Muzzey had been lodged in the prison at Cambridge. Nothing further appears on the record of the Suffolk County Court. Whatever the settlement may have been, it did not apparently involve questioning the title of Nicholas Paige and his wife to the farm.⁶⁶ Nor was any suit brought for this purpose

⁶⁶ Suff. Early Court Files, No. 3385; also No. 4109. MSS. Rec. of the Court of Common Pleas for Suff. Co., 1692-1698, p. 147. On November 11, John Waite as undersheriff reported that he had placed Benjamin Muzzey in the gaol in Cambridge; and according to the writ the trial of the case was to come before the court which met on the first Tuesday of the following January. By writ dated January 11, 1696/7, a suit was instituted by Muzzey against John Waite. The inventory of the estate of Benjamin Muzzey, Sr., filed at the Suffolk Probate Office April 28, 1691 (L. 8, f. 203), on which Benjamin Muzzey based his assertion that he had on hand of his father's estate only one pound nine shillings six pence, did not represent the whole of the estate owned by the father at the time of his death. Two other inventories were drawn in May and July, 1691, and an agreement entered into by the heirs in the latter month. The reason for this as stated in the agreement was that the real estate, and the greater proportion of the personal property were "conveyed to one of ye abousd (children before his death, which was to ye dissatisfaction of ye rest of the sd Children." According to this agreement Alice, the widow, was to have one third of the movables, also one third of the homestead and one half of the house for life. Of the remainder, Benjamin Muzzey, as the eldest son, was to have a double portion, and Richard Muzzey and "John Waite who Maryed with Sary Muzzey" were to have single portions. Benj. Muzzey was to receive his portion in movables, and John Waite his in land, these amounting respectively to £85 9s 4d and £42 14s 8d. It was added that if the inventoried estate presented to the court was not sufficient to pay the debts of the deceased "so but yt the sd Admr be sued and putt to Charge thereby that then the rest of ye sd Children shall bare their Equall parts of sd Charge." On April 26, 1694, Waite gave bonds of £160 to Benj. Muzzey to pay Richard Muzzey £60 6s within a year, or to set off to him so much of the lands of Benjamin Muzzey, deceased, as that sum represented, and also to deliver to Benjamin Muzzey certain livestock, all the movable estate of Benj. Muzzey deceased in his hands, and an order on Capt. John Floyd for £24 in money. This was the bond on which Muzzey brought suit in January, 1696/7, Richard Muzzey assigning his right to Benjamin Muzzey on January 12. The attachment was levied on "one dwelling house and the land it stands one and about six acres of Sallt madow and upland," by Elisha Cooke until after the death of Acting-Governor Stoughton (July 7, 1701). Thereafter the Council, of which Elisha Cooke was a member, stood in the Governor's place. Stoughton's death also left a vacancy on the bench. This was filled August 1, 1701, by advancing Wait Winthrop to the Chief Justiceship and appointing John Saffin to fill the vacancy. Three months later, in November, Cooke brought a suit "on review of a plea of trespass and ejectment" in this court of which, as has been said, he was himself a member, but was defeated. Sewall, also a member of the court, writes under date of November 19, 1701: "The Court gave Sentence that the Law for Reviews bars Mr. Cooke &c.

which Muzzey pointed out to the sheriff in Rumney Marsh. This description tallies with the number of acres taxed to Benj. Muzzey, Sr., and later to Widow Muzzey and John Waite. Joseph Hasey and James Convers were witnesses to both the agreement and the bond, and James Convers testified to them in the Superior Court at Charlestown on January 27, 1696/7. It was also testified on January 27 that Benj. Muzzey had received in the summer of 1694 the livestock and the household goods; Muzzey himself acknowledged receipt of the stock and the payment of £24 from Floyd. Possibly a rumor of this agreement of April, 1694, led to the first proceedings of Cooke vs. Muzzey in June of the same year. At the Charlestown Court on the last Tuesday of January, Muzzey recovered judgment for £60 6s and costs. The writ issued to the sheriff of Suffolk County February 2, 1696/7, returnable to the Superior Court of Judicature at Cambridge in July, was returned July 2, 1697, with the endorsement that he could find neither estate nor person of John Waite to satisfy the execution. Thereupon another writ of execution was addressed to the sheriff of Middlesex County on September 21, 1697, returnable on the last Tuesday in January next following. This execution was levied on land belonging to John Waite, Sr., in Malden. In connection with the return of the Suffolk sheriff, that he found no estate of John Waite, the following deed is of interest. On October 1, 1697, Benjamin and Sarah Muzzey of Cambridge conveyed to Colonel Nicholas Paige for £60 thirty acres, "formerly belonging to Benjamin Muzzey Senr Decd," consisting in orchard plowland, woodland and salt marsh at "Rumly Marsh." On July 10, 1699, Nicholas and Anna Paige conveyed title to this same piece of land, for £80, to John Waite. The first deed was recorded November 3, 1697, and the second was acknowledged August 20, 1702, and recorded July 1, 1721. Apparently Benjamin Muzzey was compelled to satisfy the execution obtained against him by Cooke, and therefore enforced against Richard Muzzey and John Waite the terms of the agreement of 1691, wherein provision was made for such an emergency. Evidently a good understanding was maintained between Nicholas and Anna Paige and the family of Benjamin Muzzey. The title to the Paige farm did not become involved in this suit. The difficulties between Muzzey and Waite did not end in 1697. December 19, 1699, Muzzey gave Waite a release from all claims or demands whatsoever, but in 1703, sued him again on a bond dated December 20, 1699. See Suff. Early Court Files, Nos. 3614, 5628, 5831, 2618; Suff. Deeds, L. 14, f. 443; L. 35, f. 163; Chamberlain MSS., iv. 31; supra, vol. i. p. 279.

their Action against Col. Paige, Mr. Saffin was of that opinion also." ⁶⁷

The law of the case would seem to have been as follows:—The first two acts for establishing the Judiciary and regulating procedure in the courts had both been disallowed by the King in Council. The first permitted a review immediately after judgment, and the other within eighteen months. In 1699 the Act for Regulating and Directing the Proceedings in the Courts of Justice, etc., provided that in "all cases wherein the plaintiff or defendant shall have obtained the number of three judgments, it shall be a final issue and determination of such case; and every action of review shall be brought within the space of three years." The Lords of Trade objected to this feature as "delatory and vexatious," and it was therefore disallowed October 22, 1700. In June, 1701, the "Act for Review in Civil Causes" was passed.⁶⁸ The motive for the law, as stated in the preamble, was to permit to every one a trial by review, on the ground that the parties interested might for this trial obtain new evidence which they could not secure in so short a time as was allowed by law for a trial by appeal. This right to review was limited by the following clause: "provided no action of review shall be brought after the expiration of three years from the time of rendering the judgement to be reviewed; saving unto any infant, feme covert, or person non compos mentis, imprisoned, in captivity, or out of this province, the term of three years, next after their coming of full age or such imperfection removed, to bring his or her action of review, and not afterward." The plea of Elisha Cooke et al. has not been found; but on failing to obtain a hearing before the courts, they petitioned the General Court and this petition is still on file.⁶⁹ In it they assumed that the act of 1701 limited a right of review already existing, and hence the interpretation of the courts made it an ex post facto law cutting them off from an existing right. This theory presumably rested on the fact that at the date of passage of the act of June, 1701, there was no statute in force regulating the right of review, as the last of the series of five statutes ⁷⁰ dealing with this matter had been disallowed October 22, 1700; and on the assumption that as no statute was in force in June, 1701, forbidding the courts to entertain a suit by review, a right to review existed, and was limited only by the provision in the act of October 30, 1697, providing that quiet possession from October 1, 1692, to October 1, 1704, should give confirmation of title.⁷¹ The question is whether the act of June, 1701, instituted a right to review or limited it. The wording of the preambles of the acts of December 11, 1693, and June 18, 1701, seems to show that the legislators thought the former the case.

The petition of "Elisha Cooke, John Wisewall, Sarah and Hugh Floyd Administrators of John Floyd" to the General Court that they might "not be forever out Lawed" but that they might "have Relieff in the premisses" and "be enabled to Review the s^d Judgments," was read in the Council for the first time February 26, 1701/2. The succeeding day it was read a second time, and the Council voted that the petition be granted and a private bill brought in for the relief of the petitioners. Sewall and four others moved that Colonel Paige should be notified. Cooke, Sewall records, February 28, "seemed displeased," and "said 't was to delay his Business: was sorry I was so far engag'd in it." So Sewall stayed from the Council on February 28, when Colonel Paige appeared. As he offered "nothing against what was Prayed for . . . only that he had been informed that Something had been sent from England relating to the Passing of Acts, a Bill was brought in," and read, but referred to the next sitting of the General Court.⁷²

The cause of Cooke's displeasure with Sewall is not far to seek. Sewall was, as has been said, a member of the Court which had decided the previous November that the Act for Review barred the action, and before which suit would be brought if this impediment October 3, 1696 (temporary), disallowed November 24, 1698; act of June 19, 1697, disallowed November 24, 1698; act of July 18, 1699, disallowed October 22, 1700. Provincial Acts and Resolves, i. 72, 184, 248, 283, 372, 375, 466.

⁷² Supra, pp. 17-19. November 3, 1705, the House of Representatives passed the following: "Resolved that as an Explanation of the said Law [the Act of Review], each Party (Plaintiff or Defendant) that hath not had a Review in each Court, may review in Each of said Courts once and no more." The Council disagreed November 6, 1705. MSS. Rec. of the General Court, p. 164.

was removed by the General Court. Elisha Cooke was obviously in haste to press his suit. In less than four months Joseph Dudley arrived as Governor, and it was already expected that he would receive the appointment.⁷³ Thus when the bill was postponed to the next sitting of the Court, it was practically disposed of. June 10, it was read twice in Council; nothing more is heard of it. June 11, Joseph Dudley took his seat as Governor. Shortly after this, June 29, the Superior Court of Judicature was re-organized. Cooke was dropped, as was also Winthrop,⁷³ and the appointee as Chief Justice was Isaac Addington.⁷⁴ In 1703, also, Governor Dudley expunged Cooke's name from the Council list. He negatived him again in 1704, 1706, and 1708; nor did Cooke again obtain a seat in the Council until 1715. He died in October of the same year, aged seventy eight. After 1702, therefore, Colonel Paige and his wife had undisputed possession of the farm.

Cooke, however, it would appear, did not relinquish for many years all hope of its recovery. On July 7, 1704, a week after the death of Mrs. Paige, John and Hannah Wiswall, as compensation for a debt of one hundred and eighty-six pounds, quit-claimed to Cooke their right to one fourth of the great farm, agreeing that they would "permit and Suffer the said Elisha Cooke his heirs and Assignes to make use of his or their Names in any Action or Suit to be brought for the Recovery of and Ascertainning the right of the said John Wiswall and Hannah his said Wife" to the lands in question, and that they would "alwayes Avow Such Actions or Suits so brought and never Disavow or become Nonsuit therein."⁷⁵ But as the title to both the farms at Rumney Marsh had been transferred by the deeds of February 10, 1702/3, and February 10, 1703/4, to Joseph Dudley,⁷⁶ Governor of the Province from 1702 to 1715, recovery by process of law would throughout this period obviously have been hopeless.

⁷³ Sewall had noted in September of the preceding year that it was reported that Cooke and Wait Winthrop had written Sir Henry Ashurst in opposition to the appointment of Dudley. Diary, ii. 41.

⁷⁴ Addington was one of the pall-bearers at the funeral of Mrs. Anna Paige in 1704. Sewall, Diary, ii. 111.

⁷⁷ This file of papers preserved in the Middlesex County Court House seems complete. The bill of costs of Nicholas Paige shows that no papers presented by him are missing. "The Deffendts Pleas for ye abatemt of ye writt" are in the handwriting of Elisha Cooke. All the papers which support Cooke's contentions are in the same handwriting, and are attested by Daniel Allin, the attestation being in a different hand from the body of the document. The Declaration of Title of Captain Paige is signed by his attorney Nathaniel Thomas. The papers charged on the bill of costs of Nicholas Paige are in the same handwriting, and are attested by Thomas Dudley, the attestation being in a different hand from the body of the document. June 2, 1686, Allin and Dudley were appointed clerks of the Suffolk County Court by Joseph Dudley, temporary President of the Colony. The "Summons to Jno Burrell," judging by the handwriting, was drawn by Nathaniel Thomas, and signed in a different hand by Laurence Hammond, clerk of the Middlesex County Court, and endorsed in a still different hand by John Greene, marshal. The first "Rule of Court" was drawn by Nathaniel Thomas, and bears the signatures of Laurence Hammond, Elisha Cooke, and John Burrell. The "Court's Resolve in point of Law," signed by Hammond, seems to be wholly in his hand. As the action of ejectione firmæ was until then unknown to the courts of Massachusetts, Hammond had to depend upon Thomas apparently to draw the court documents.

The following documents are omitted because they are printed elsewhere.

(1) "Certaine Clauses & passages out of ye Record of Capt Keaynes will." These cover four folio pages, and are in the handwriting of Elisha Cooke with two attestations by Daniel Allin. The will is printed in Boston Rec. Com. Rep., x. 1-54. (2) Articles of Agreement between Anna Keayne, widow, and Edward Lane, November 28, 1657, printed in Suff. Deeds, L. 3, f. 77. (3) Conveyance from Edward Lane to Thomas Brattle and Robert Gibbs in trust for Anna Keayne Lane, December 2, 1663, in Suff. Deeds, L. 4, f. 167. (4) Conveyance from Lane to Cooke and Wiswall, December 14, 1663, in Suff. Deeds, L. 4, f. 191. (5) Vote of the General Court, October 10, 1666. These documents, except the attestations by Daniel Allin, are in the handwriting, apparently, of Elisha Cooke. Although the land sued for lay in Malden, it was contiguous with the farm-lands in Rumney Marsh. See the plan, supra, vol. i. p. 635.

Dated 10th Sept. 1686; John Greene Marshal of Middlesex.

The Deffend^{ts} Pleas for y^e abatem^t of y^e writt

1. This Case hath had a full hearing & this land with ye rest of y^e farme sued for at ye County Court at Boston, thence appealed to ye Court of Assist^{ts} & after yt an Attaint, & was finally determined for ye Deff^{ts} yet now is an action brought anew without mention of any former tryal; it is therefore humbly offered to ye Court to consider whither it ought not to have been by a Review or writt of error, or some way intimating ye former tryal: for [if] what is tryed & determined at one Court may again be tryed at ye next, it may as well run ad infinitū, & so would ye Law pvide for ppetual contentiō, which is not rational to imagine
2. The method & proceedings at law in this Actiō ye Jnhabitants here are generally ignorant of & know not how or what to plead in this way, or what ye consequences in Law of advantage or disadvantage may be; it is therefore humbly offered to ye Court to consider whither these methods & proceedings are agreable with ye p'sent state & conditiō of his Maj^{ties} Subjects here & ye circumstances of this place.

But if ye Court judge yt notwithstanding what is sayd to answe're further, we say —

3. That this Actiō of an Ejectione firmæ is not due in law to ye Demandant.

For ye Bookes say yt he cañot bring this action yt hath not made a good Entry into ye land, & he cannot make a good entry yt hath no Power & Right of Entry at ye time of ye making of ye lease. Now to prove yt ye Demand^t hath no Right of entry see Stat. 21. Jac. 10. under ye title Limitatiō in ye Abridgm^{ts} which sayth, yt none shall hereafter enter into any lands &c. but within 20. yeares next after his or their right first accruing, if ther be no Jmpediment of Jnfancy, coverture or being beyond sea; & if so yⁿ within 10. yeares after y^t Jmpedim^t is removed: Now its about 30. yeares since ye death of Cap^t Keayne, frō whose death she p'tends her right to accrue; its also about 21. yeares since y^e death of her husband M^r Lane, wherby ye coverture was removed; & about 20. yea^s since her arrival here frō beyond sea; so yt by this Statute she is for ever barred of entry. —

4. That s^d Lane alienated ye land sued for to Richard Cooke & John Wiswall Sen^r by Deed dated Jan^y 14. 1663 which s^d Cooke possessed 10. yeares & yⁿ dyed seized in Decemb^r 1673 & we haue had possessiō aboue 12. yeares since his death, 5 of ye w^{ch} first 10. yeares without entry is sufficient to barr her after entry into ye s^d Land according to ye Stat. 32. H. 8. 33. see y^e statute under title Entry Lawfull in ye Abridgm^t upon which ye Lawyers say — Jf a feme covert be disseised her husband dye, she takes another husband, & yn before entry ye disseisor dye seised; in this case ye entry of ye wife is taken away, see Co. on Lit. p 237. & 246. & Shepards Abridgm^t part 2. 13. — ffrom all which it is plaine yt ye Demandant hath no Right of Entry & therefore cañot haue this Action of Ejectione firmæ; wherfore we pray an abatement of ye writt.

The Replication of Elisha Cooke

The Defendants Answer to y^e Plaint^{ffs} Count or Declaratiō That Cap^t Rob^t Keayne dyed seised of s^d farme thō wanting some hundreds of 1000. acres is owned. Cap^t Keaynes & his sons Issue we know not. That if ye s^d Anna were ye only child of s^d Major Keayne, yet by ye death of y^e s^d Cap^t Keayne ye s^d Land & estate did not descend & accrue to ye s^d Anna

Because ye s^d Cap^t Keayne by his last will Dated Decem^r 28^o. 1653 proved & upon Record gaue away his whole estate both real & psonal in several legacies w^{ch} with his debts & funeral charges amounted to more y^m his whole estate, & left not one penny worth of lands or goods for an heire to inherit, see ye Extract & his abbreviate of ye will & ye Jnventory & comparing y^m it will appeare

That Cap ^t Keaynes Estate in land was	" 1730	" —	" —
Jn goods chattels & debts receiued	" —778	" —	" —7
Jn all but	" 2508	" —	" —7

Legacies given away by will are	" 2778 " -3 " -4
Debts & funeral charges Invenoryed	" -274 " — " —
more debts payd by m ^r Lane	" -124 " 14 " 11

which is more yⁿ his whole estate " .668 " 17 " .8
 Besides what m^r Lane disburst for repaires of ye old houses at his first possessing them " 289 " -4 " -6

Soe yt its most apparent yt Cap^t Keayne did intend in case his son dyed before him to giue away all his estate, & did accordingly do it & a great deale more, see his owne words in ye last clause of ye Extract of his will, vz^t, J haue given away all if not more yⁿ all, what yⁿ can possibly be left for an heire.

And this his will was fulfilled, his debts & legacies payd to satisfactiō of ye Court & all psons concerned by m^r Lane, to whome yt whole estate for his pformance of s^d will was legally comitted according to ye practise yⁿ, & honestly assigned first by ye Executrix & ye County Court & finally by ye generall Court by their Comitteē wth ye Overseers of s^d will, to whome also ye will gaue great power in yt affair.

And ye Demandant had at last when she parted from m^r Lane (notwithstanding ye estate fell so much short) her Legacies payd her by ye houses & lands she now possesses made over by Deed of Enfeoffm^t to m^r Brattle & Gibbs for her use & a considerable sum^e of money besides. So yt it is plaine also yt she had no right or title to one foot of ye land yt was Cap^t Keaynes And as to this action of Ejectione firmæ we say yt she hath no right of Entry & therefore cannot bring such an action for ye reasons mentioned in ye Pleas for abatem^t of ye writt, & especially ye Statutes of 32. H. 8. 33. & 21. Jac. 16. which in this Actiō do also concerne ye merrit of ye case, to w^{ch} therfore please to be referred. As for y^e Deft's title we hold frō m^r Lane by Deed under hand & seale acknowledged & recorded; but it matters 0 what o^r title is in this case seing ye Demandant proues none, for (its a maxime) ⁸⁴ in equali jure melior est conditio possidentis, possessiō is much vallued by ye law, & much more wⁿ it is by Deed as afores^d Ans — That those allegations are altogether falce.

1 That the s^d Pretended Coppy is noe Proff of any such

2 That the Secretarys Attestation or vnderwritting a true Coppy of the origeonall Edward Rawson secretary is noe more a proff that there is any such Origeonall or that the p^rtended in any thing but of such matters only as are of Record by order

¹⁰⁵ The citations in parentheses are in the margin of the manuscript.

Vpon all wch we humbly Pray the Court to determine according to law whether the s^d p^rtended Coppy ought to pass to the Jury as Euidence yea or noe

That wheas the Deffendants alledg That all Cap^t Keayns Estate was giuen away by will & soe nothing left for an heir

Ans 1 That Cap^t Robert Keayne gaue not one foot of his lands to any p^rson or p^rsons whatsoever nor soe as any one Could Jntitle themselves to any part thereof but the heir only

2 That Cap^t Robert Keayn by his s^d will not disposing of any part of his lands to any p^rson from his heire,

APPENDIX

[Nicholas Paige was proprietor of both the Keayne farms from 1686 until his death in 1717. John Chamberlain was lessee of the little farm in 1703, and William Owen was mentioned in connection with the great farm in February, 1703/4.¹ In 1701 Owen was taxed for one poll and one horse; in 1702 for one poll, one horse, one cow, a house, and six acres of upland and meadow. Colonel Paige was taxed in 1702 for five negroes, eight oxen, sixteen cows, two hundred sheep, five swine, four horses, and four hundred acres of upland and meadow. Sept. 7, 1703, Paige agreed with Francis Leathe of Ipswich to build as speedily as possible a house with a stone cellar, a lean-to, a well, and a barn forty-two by twenty-two feet, and rent it to Leathe for seven years at thirty pounds a year in silver. Leathe agreed to pay all taxes, and plant an apple orchard of five acres, Paige paying for the trees and fencing one half. By writ dated May 23, 1711, Paige brought suit for rent for the year ending March 25, 1711, against Francis Leathe of Charlestown.² March 27, 1710, Nicholas Paige leased to Thomas Marable for three years at twenty-four pounds a year a "Messuage or Tenement commonly called or known by the name of the Lamb with the Farm and Lands thereunto belonging with the appur^{es} in Rumney Marsh."³ The following October the Selectmen of Boston approved "Thomas Marble" to "Sell Strong drinck as an Inholder at his House nigh Coll^o Paig^{es} at Rumny Marsh." Three times within the previous three months they had disallowed his petition.⁴ March 31, 1712, Thomas Marable petitioned the selectmen of Boston. He explained that some years since, because of his "Long continued Lamenes," which unfitted him for active work, and "the great Charge of Children w^{ch} he had," he obtained a license to sell drink, "not Long after w^{ch} Coll^o

By writ dated May 30, 1712, Nicholas Paige sued Marable for two years’ rent ending March 27, 1712, and obtained a writ of execution June 16, 1713. April 6, 1714, the Selectmen directed the perambulators to meet “at y^e House where Thomas Marble Lately dwelt now in the Tenure of——Lamson in R. marsh.” July 5, 1715, they approved John Lamson to sell “Strong drink as An Innholder at a Tenem^t he hires of Coll^o Paige at Rumny Marsh.” Lamson’s house was mentioned in the perambulation of the bounds between Boston and Malden in 1717 as near the boundary, that is, near Black Ann’s corner. And the house where the “Sign of the Lamb” had been was mentioned in the perambulation of 1732 as in Captain Oliver’s farm on the road to Lynn near the county bridge. In the perambulation of 1735, it was said to be in the occupation of John Lathe. Whether Colonel Paige built and leased other tenements on his farm is not known; leases were not ordinarily recorded.

The deed of gift of February, 1703/4, from Nicholas and Anna Paige, vested the title to the large farm in Governor Dudley and Nathanael Thomas for the use, after the death of Colonel Paige and his wife, of “M^{rs} Martha Hobbs Neice to the s^d Nicholas Paige and to the heirs of her Body lawfully to be begotten forever.” She married November 30, 1709, Nathaniel Oliver (H. C. 1701) a member of the Artillery Company (1701), son of a wealthy merchant of the same name, who bore the first summons of surrender to Governor Andros at Fort Hill in 1689. The son was not successful in business, and shortly after Colonel Paige’s death was obliged to remove from his home on Milk Street in Boston to the farm at Rumney Marsh. There he prepared young men for Harvard College, was a Justice of the Peace, and active in the affairs of the town until the growth of a settlement at Pullen Point, and the coming of Colonel Thomas Goldthwait. Previously to this Captain Nathaniel Oliver had shared with Judge Samuel Watts the honor of presiding at the town meetings. Also he was selectman from 1749 to 1752, and town clerk from 1753 to 1757. He died in December, 1768.

⁶ Misc. Papers in City Clerk’s Office, Boston, i. 135; Boston Rec. Com. Rep., xi. 166.

His three sons, were: (1) Nathaniel, Jr. (H. C. 1733). He was a lawyer and resided in Chelsea and Boston. In 1741 he married Mercy, daughter of Hon. Jacob Wendell, a wealthy merchant in Boston, Colonel of the Boston Regiment (1742), and a member of the Governor's Council, 1734-1760. He married second, in 1763, Sarah Hill, who survived him. Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., died December 26, 1769, leaving two sons, Daniel (then a lad of 16) who graduated from Dartmouth College in 1785, and was a minister at Beverly; and Nathaniel, aged four in 1769, absent at sea in 1784. (2) Peter (H. C. 1737). He was a sea captain, and died in the West Indies. (3) William (H. C. 1739). He married in 1742 Rebecca, daughter of John Sale of Chelsea, and granddaughter of Hon. Penn Townsend. He was a farmer in Chelsea, where he died in 1782; his widow died in 1801. Two sons survived him: William, an innkeeper in Chelsea, and Nathaniel, a physician, who lived in Marblehead and Danvers. His daughters married Edward Wait and Walter Perkins.⁷

Nathaniel Oliver, Sr., was heavily burdened with debts, when he came to Chelsea in 1719. He mortgaged both his own and his wife's estate in Boston to secure his creditors, and also mortgaged the farm for a term of sixty years "if the said Nathaniel Oliver shall so long live" to Thomas Palmer and others as security to fourteen creditors; he received a lease for the same term of years at one hundred fifty pounds a year.⁸ The legatees of Colonel Paige were obliged to collect their legacies by process of law, executions being issued in the spring and early summer of 1719 for an aggregate of about £370.⁹

March 1, 1738 [1739] Nathaniel and Martha Oliver, seized of the farm "in the Right of the said Martha in fee tail," released their right to one hundred and ten acres of upland and forty acres of salt marsh at the east end of the farm to Nathaniel Oliver, Jr.¹⁰ The deed expressly denied to the son all right of alienation. In 1749 Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., suffered a common recovery to bar the entail. The following indenture of May 15, 1749, shows the process. This indenture "Witnesseth that Whereas by a plea of Land commenced at the Inferiour Court of Common pleas held at Boston in and for the County of Suffolk on the first Tuesday of January last the said Samuel Sewall Demanded of the said

This indenture was recorded March 8, 1749/50, and on March 9, Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., mortgaged the land for £500 to John Hammock of Boston.¹¹ Four years later, in 1753, Samuel Watts by agreement with Nathaniel Oliver, Sr., and his sons Nathaniel, Jr., Peter and William Oliver, the mother being dead, obtained in the court a common recovery to bar the entail for the whole farm. The agreement was that Nathaniel Oliver, Sr., should possess the western half of this tract of 768 acres for life, after which it was to pass to Peter and William Oliver. Of the eastern half, one hundred fifty acres were to be conveyed to William Story, and the remainder was to be for the use of Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., after two debts to Samuel Tuttle and Samuel Watts had been satisfied.¹² Immediately, September 26, 1753, Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., and Mercy his wife conveyed title to the land to James Pitts and Thomas Flucker.¹³ Presumably Oliver remained on the farm, as he continued active in the affairs of the town, and there is no evidence that Pitts or Flucker lived in Chelsea.

In 1755, Thomas Flucker purchased the right of Peter Oliver, deceased, to one fourth of the farm, the deed to take effect on the death of Nathaniel Oliver, Sr. According to a later conveyance the farm contained "by an accurate survey six hundred and sixty six Acres, but was formerly said to contain seven hundred and sixty eight Acres," — the eight hundred seven acres of the survey in 1686 less the forty-acre lot of marsh given to Paul Dudley with the little farm. As six acres were deducted for the highway, the western half of the farm was estimated to contain 330 acres. According to a survey of the farm preserved in the Massachusetts Archives, it contained in 1755 six hundred fifty-five acres, one quarter, twenty-three poles.¹⁴ December 16, 1774, Thomas Flucker of Boston assigned his rights in the eastern half of the farm, and in one half of the land purchased in 1755, 82½ acres, to James Pitts of Boston,¹⁵ who acquired thereby a farm of 412½ acres, which his heirs sold in 1779 to Robert Temple of Charlestown.¹⁶

Title to this farm of 412½ acres, enlarged by some eighty-five acres from the farm of William Oliver, passed successively to Nathaniel Tracy of Newburyport, Thomas Russell, and Andrew Leach of Boston.¹⁷ There is no probability that any one of these owners lived on the estate. When the direct tax of 1798 was assessed, the farm was owned by Andrew Leach. There were two houses about half a mile apart. The one nearest the meeting-house was occupied by James Blodget. It covered 1284 feet, was of two stories, had fourteen windows, was "Verry Old," and with an acre of land was valued at $220. Presumably this was the house occupied earlier by Nathaniel Oliver, Jr. The other house, described as about two miles north of the meeting-house, was occupied by John McDowell, who was also tenant of the farm lands. This house covered 1924 feet, was of one story, and had twenty-four windows. There was also a one-story "Pump House" that covered 504 feet, and a two-story granary that covered 800 feet. These buildings with an acre of land were valued at $880. The farm lands, 503 acres, with two barns (120 × 34 feet and 60 × 30 feet) and a "Blacksmith's shop" (30 × 18 feet), were valued at $8,095. The farm was described as bounded south by Samuel Sargeant; west by the town road (the road to Lynn); north by a river (the Pines River); and east by Samuel Sewall and others (formerly Cogan's great farm).

Beginning at the southwest corner of the farm in Samuel Sergeant's line, at the corner of Temple's thirty-two acre lot, the boundary ran southeast by Sergeant's boundary-line to Chelsea road (now Malden Street), then east by the road to Mr. Fuller's land (Charles E. Fuller in 1874), then north 12 rods, then southeast by said Fuller to Chelsea way (a way to the back marshes along the western boundary of the B. H. Dewing estate), then by the said way to the Dudley marsh, then northwest by the Dudley marsh, then north by said marsh to the river (in 1874 between the heirs of P. C. Hall and Tewksbury). The river formed the northern boundary to the marsh of William Waite, whence the line ran south, bounded west by land of William Waite, William Oliver, and said Temple to the first bound.

In 1798, Nathaniel Hall of "Westboston" purchased it of Andrew Leach for $8,100, then a farm of some five hundred acres.¹⁸ March 14, 1803, Nathaniel Hall conveyed to Jonathan P. Hall for $4,600 about 250 acres, bounded east by land of the grantee from the town road to the river; north by the river and marsh of William Wait and others to the Winnisimmet road; west by that road to the town road leading to Chelsea meeting-house; south by the latter road to the first bound. He described this as the west half of the farm that he purchased of Andrew Leach.¹⁹

William Oliver, like his elder brother Nathaniel, lost during his lifetime the greater portion of his farm. In December, 1781, the executors of the estate of Benjamin Lynde obtained a judgment against William Oliver for £420 6s. 2d., and had set off to them in April, 1782, three parcels of land containing ninety acres seventy-five rods. Fifty-three acres fifty rods were bounded west and northwest by the Country road, northeast by William Wait, and east and south by Nathaniel Tracy. Twenty-nine acres were bounded northeast and east by the Country road, south by Tower Hill, west by the county line, and northwest by said Oliver's land mortgaged to Samuel Clarke. Eight acres and twenty five rods were bounded southwest by the Country road, west and northwest by said Oliver, northeast by William Oliver, Jr., east and south by a creek.²⁰ The second parcel, estimated at about twenty-eight acres but with the same bounds, was conveyed by the executors of the estate of Benjamin Lynde to Edward Pratt of Chelsea, January 15, 1788. Two days later Edward Pratt and his wife Elizabeth conveyed title to this land "with the Dwelling house & other Buildings thereon" for £75 to Thomas Russell of Boston. Pratt lived on the farm. When Thomas Russell conveyed his interests in Chelsea to Andrew Leach, in November, 1793, he excepted the farm commonly called the "Pratt Farm," stating that it had been sold to Ephraim Copeland. December 7, 1795, John Lane and Thomas Frasier of London, merchants, conveyed title to this land for £105 lawful money to Seth Copeland of Chelsea. It was described as a house and about thirty acres of land, bounded north by William Oliver, east by the town road, south by Simon Knights, and west by John Grover; also as land which had formerly belonged to Edward Pratt.²¹ When the direct tax of 1798 was assessed, Seth Copeland owned and occupied this farm. It was then estimated to contain twenty-eight and one half acres of "Verry poor" land, and with a barn 20 × 15 was appraised at $310. The house covered 750 feet, was of two stories, with eighteen windows: with half an acre of land it was appraised at $275. When Hopkins' Atlas was prepared the land belonged to J. Copeland.

The first parcel assigned to the executors of Benjamin Lynde in 1782 was more carefully described in their deed to Nathaniel Tracy in 1784. It was bounded southerly by the town way (Malden Street), easterly by Tracy's farm (purchased of Robert Temple), northerly and northwesterly by the marsh of Captain William Waite, Jacob Perkins, and Deacon Joseph Perkins "to the creek against marsh of Mr. Olivers," westerly by this creek to the highway leading to Winnisimmet Ferry, then westerly by said highway to the town way first mentioned. This land passed successively to Russell, Leach, and Hall. November 6, 1771, William Oliver conveyed thirty-two and one fourth acres to John Sale. This parcel lay south of the town road to Chelsea meeting-house mentioned above, and was bounded southerly by land of Samuel Sergeant, easterly by the pasture of Pitts and Flucker, northerly by William Oliver, and westerly by the road from Lynn to Winnisimmet. By purchase of Robert Temple in 1778, this became a part of his farm and passed to Tracy, Russell, Leach, and Hall, who became possessed also of the rest of the great Keayne farm south of the road, owned by William Oliver in 1771.²²

In 1771 and 1772, William Oliver conveyed to William Waite of Malden nine acres forty rods of saltmarsh abutting on the Pines River, also to Thomas Hills and Jacob Parker nine acres twenty rods of saltmarsh west of Waite's marsh, and to Joseph Perkins of Malden six acres of saltmarsh west of Hills and Parker.²³

Eight acres sixty-five poles south of the Copeland farm, between the Country road (now Washington Avenue) and the farm of John Grover in Malden, were sold by William Oliver in 1772 to Tower Hill, a free negro of Malden. When the direct tax of 1798 was assessed, this land was owned by Simon Knights and Sampson Bassett, both free negroes.²⁴ On Hopkins' Atlas this land was assigned to W. Hall and Thos. Manning.

October 29, 1771, William Oliver and his wife Rebecca conveyed to William Oliver, Jr., victualler, for £60, fourteen acres, bounded west by "Ann's bridge" to the swamp, south by a line fence to a small creek, east by that creek to a cross creek, north by a small creek. He excepted his house and well.²⁵ In 1772, the creek to the north was said to run "between Benjamin, Joseph and Samuel Wait's land and William Oliver's senr," that is, this was the northwest corner of the great Keayne farm, assigned by Hopkins' Atlas to W. O. Hall. There was inventoried with the estate of William Oliver, Sr., in 1782 "one Dwelling House where said Deceased Last Dwelt and a priviledge of Land Adjoy[n]ing to it with a Well near by said House," valued at £15. When the land was conveyed by the son to William Hall in 1823, the house lot and well excluded were said to be where "the mansion house of Rebeccah Oliver deceased formerly stood." At his death in 1782 William Oliver, Sr., still owned the forty-four acres and one hundred thirty-five poles of the great Keavne farm that lay in Malden.²⁶ October 5, 1784, Nathaniel Oliver, physician, of Marblehead, administrator of the estate of his father William Oliver, gentleman, of Chelsea, conveyed to William Oliver (his brother) seven acres sixty-eight rods near the land just described. The boundary began on the county road at the corner of Edward Pratt's land, and ran W. S. W. sixty rods to the county line, thence northeast on that line sixty-eight rods to the county road, thence on the road by the county bridge S. E. by S. forty-six rods to the first bound.²⁷ On Hopkins' Atlas this land is assigned to Blodgett. In 1798 William Oliver of Malden was taxed for nineteen acres of upland in Chelsea.

By the deed of gift of February, 1702/3, the little farm passed on the death of Colonel Paige in 1717 to Paul Dudley of Roxbury, Judge of the Superior Court of Judicature from 1718 to 1752. April 28, 1746, he conveyed it to Samuel Winthrop in trust "for the sole proper use and benefit of the said Paul Dudley and Lucy his Wife for and during the term of their natural Lives and the survivour of them, and from and after the decease of the said Paul Dudley & Lucy his Wife in trust for and to the use of Joseph Dudley nephew to the said Paul Dudley and Second son to his Brother William Dudley Esq^r: de^{cd}. and to the heirs of his Body lawfully begotten forever in the same manner that Estates intail'd descend in England by virtue of the Statute of Westminster the second, or the statute de donis conditionalibus as it is sometimes called." In case Joseph Dudley died leaving no heirs of his body the lands were to revert to other relatives.²⁸ Paul Dudley retained the right to revoke this gift, but later confirmed it by will. The farm was called "Wallsingham," and was leased in 1746 to Hugh Floyd,²⁹ who owned the land to the north, the little farm of the Cogan estate.

Eight years after the death of Paul Dudley, on March 11, 1760, his nephew Joseph entered into an agreement with William Story of Boston, according to which "for barring all Estates in Tail and Reversions and Remainders thereupon expectant" William Story was to obtain at the April term of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, "a good and perfect common Recovery." This agreement to bar the entail created by Paul Dudley was, five weeks later, placed on record in the Suffolk Registry of Deeds.³⁰ Joseph Dudley was of Roxbury, and was known as Judge Dudley. He died in 1767, and the farm was sold at public vendue by the executor of his estate to John Williams for £506 13s. 4d.³¹

March 3, 1782, Jonathan Williams sold the western thirty-two acres to Captain Samuel Sargeant, who had purchased the western portion of the Hugh Floyd farm.³² Thereafter this was a part of the Sargeant, later the Oliver Pratt, farm. In the same month, March 25, 1782, Williams sold the farm buildings and eighty-seven and one-fourth acres of land to Samuel Clark for £716 13s. 4d.³³ Clark's farm did not touch a public highway, but had a right of way to the road from Winnisimmet to Lynn across the land that Samuel Sargeant had purchased of Williams, and to the town road, which lay to the east, across the land which Captain James Stowers bought of Williams on March 23.³⁴

Through the foreclosure of a mortgage, by writ dated September 12, 1785, it appears that Joseph Tuttle was then tenant of the Clark farm.³⁵ Through an earlier suit at the same term of court, it is learned that Samuel Clark was tenant of that part of the great Keayne farm owned by Nathaniel Tracy (500 acres) from April 2, 1784, to August 2, 1785. The sheriff attached hay, rye, a horse and chaise, household furniture, and one third of the sloop "Three Friends."³⁶ The day following that on which the writ of execution was issued Samuel Clark conveyed title to his farm to Nathaniel Tracy. The title stood in the name of Thomas Russell in 1787, and later in the names of John Lane and Thomas Frazier of London;³⁷ from whom title was conveyed November 25, 1795, to Moses Collins of Chelsea.³⁸

When the direct tax of 1798 was assessed, the farm was owned by Moses Collins, and occupied by his son-in-law Jabez Burditt. The house covered 1073 feet, was of two stories, had twenty-five windows, was "Verry Old," and with half an acre of land was valued at $275. The farmland and a barn (60 × 30 feet) were valued at $1360. Twenty acres of saltmarsh, valued at $360, and three and one half acres of marsh on Island End River, valued at $45, belonged to the farm. The former was one half of a forty-acre lot cut out of the marshland of the great Keayne farm in 1703 for Paul Dudley. It was then described as belonging to and commonly let with the little farm. It was at the east end of the great Keayne farm, and was bounded on the east by the great Cogan farm and on the north by the Pines River. The northern half of this forty-acre lot belonged in 1798 to James Stowers. When Hopkins' Atlas was prepared Stowers' half belonged to Tewksbury, W. O. Hall and Blodgett, and others.³⁹

Moses Collins' estate was divided September 6, 1811, among his

CHAPTER XXII

WINNISIMMET FERRY

NOVEMBER, 1630, about two months after the settlement of Boston, the wealth of Winnisimmet, estimated by the assessments upon the several plantations for the maintenance of the clergymen, Mr. Phillips and Mr. Wilson, was one third that of Medford, one sixth that of Roxbury and one tenth that of Charlestown; and in 1633, the proportion of Winnisimmet for public charges, a better test, was two thirds that of Medford and one sixth that of Charlestown.¹

The first ferry in New England, perhaps in North America, was between Winnisimmet, Charlestown, and Boston. November 9, 1630, the Court of Assistants ordered "that whoe-soeuer shall first giue in his name to M^r Goûn^r that hee will vndertake to sett vpp a fferry betwixte Boston and Charlton, & shall begin the same att such tyme as M^r Goûn^r shall appoynt, shall haue 1^d for eûy pson, & 1^d for eûy 100 waight of goods hee shall see transport."² Apparently this offer was not accepted until June 14, 1631, when it is recorded that "Edw: Converse hath vndertaken to sett vpp a fferry betwixte Charleton & Boston, for which hee is to haue ij^d for eûy single pson, & 1^d a peece if there be 2 or more."³ But May 18, it is entered: "Tho: Willms⁴ hath vndertaken to sett vpp a fferry betwixte Winnettsem^t & Charlton, for which hee is to haue after 3^d a pson, & from Winnettsem^t to Boston 4^d a pson."⁵

September 3, 1634, it is ordered, "that Wynetsem^t shall belonge to Boston," and that "the fferry att Wynysemet is

It included no interest in real estate; nor was it an exclusive privilege, for May 6, 1635, " ordered that there shalbe a fferry sett vpp on Boston syde, by the Wyndmyll Hill, to transport men to Charlton & Wenesemet vpon the same rates that the fferry men att Charlton & Wenesemet transports men to Boston." ⁷

At a town meeting in Boston, January 23, 1635/6, voted: " Thomas Marshall is, by generall consent, choosen for the keeping of a ferry from the mylne point unto Charltowne, an to Wynnysemitt, and to take for his ferrying unto Charltowne, as the ferryman there hath, and unto Wynnysemitt for a single person, 6d.; for two, 6d.; and for every one above the number of two, 2d. a peece." ⁸ And later, at the General Court, ⁷ Mass. Col. Rec., i. 148. Before the building of Chelsea bridge in 1802 [and of Malden bridge in 1787 and Charlestown bridge in 1786], the only way from Winnisimmet to Boston by land was through Malden, Medford, Cambridge, Brighton, and Roxbury. The journey with an ox team and return required two days; such is the tradition. This was obviated in part by ferry boats between the two places, touching in transit at Charlestown and Noddle's Island. There were two ferries; that of Maverick, which passed successively to Bellingham, Watts, Williams, and the Winnisimmet Company, still exists. This was from Winnisimmet to Boston. The other, set up by order of the General Court in 1635, ran from Windmill Hill (Copp's Hill), Boston, to Winnisimmet. At first the rent was paid into the treasury of the colony; but at some time not known to me it was received by the town, which let the ferry and made regulations. Two ferries plying between the same points conflicted as to their respective rights and regulations. The Boston ferry was let by the town for some years to Samuel Watts. Finally it was merged by purchase in the Winnisimmet Ferry. As both these ferries were in Boston, of which Winnisimmet was part, and mainly for the use of the latter, I give the orders of the General Court and of Boston respecting them, down to the incorporation of Chelsea in 1739. With these explanations, the following orders and votes, so far as they are specific, can be readily distributed.

⁸ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., ii. 7. [Unless otherwise stated, the votes of the town of Boston will be found in this and the following reports of the Record Commissioners under their respective dates.]

September 6, 1638, "There is a ferry appointed from Boston to Winnetset, Noddles Island, & the ships; the pson to bee appointed by the magistrates of Boston."⁹

Samuel Maverick had disposed of his interest in the ferry by deed to Richard Bellingham already given.¹⁰

At the General Court, December 4, 1638,

⁹ Mass. Col. Rec., i. 241. [Thomas Marshall was disarmed with other adherents of Mrs. Hutchinson, in November, 1637, by order of the General Court. The same court voted that Governor Winthrop and Richard Bellingham, the Treasurer, also proprietor of the ferry from Winnisimmet to Boston, should let the ferry from Boston to Charlestown for a term of three years beginning December 1, at £40 a year. (Mass. Col. Rec., i. 208.) November 28, 1637, a lease was signed to Edward Converse, who had undertaken the ferry from Charlestown to Boston in 1631. He was to keep two boats, one on either side of the water. No mention was made of Winnisimmet. (Savage, Winthrop, ii. 349.) At a meeting of the selectmen of Boston, December 18, 1637, it was agreed that Edward Bendall should "keepe a sufficient ferry boate to carry to Noddles Island and to the shippes ryding before the towne, taking for a single person iid., and for twoe 3d., and if there be more id. a peece." As the lease to Edward Converse did not include the right or obligation to carry passengers to Winnisimmet, the vote of the General Court in September, 1638, given in the text, legalized presumably the ferry established by Boston in December, 1637, and marked a separation of the ferries starting from Boston. Thereafter the ferry from Boston to Winnisimmet carried passengers to Noddle's Island, but not to Charlestown. The ferry right of Richard Bellingham permitted him to touch at Charlestown. Note also that eight of the fourteen owners of a dock conveyed March 25, 1639, to Richard Parker, and by him, the one half sold and the other half leased, to Edward Bendall, are known to have been, then or earlier, owners of land at Rumney Marsh or Pullen Point, — John Coggeshall, John Cogan, John Newgate, James Penn, William Dyer, Richard Tuthill, Mary Hudson (widow of Ralph Hudson), and Edward Hutchinson. (See Lechford, Note-Book, 43-47, in Transactions of the Amer. Antiq. Soc.) This was later known as the town dock, and was "where Quincy Market now is" according to Drake (Hist. of Boston). This was doubtless the landing place for the early attendants at the First Church, until 1650 the only church in Boston; the church held an interest in the dock.]

¹⁰ Vol. i. p. 294. Maverick had granted to William Stitson a life interest in the ferry [see infra, p. 96]; and August 28, 1635, "It was agreed between Richard Bellingham Esqr. & William Stitson as followeth That whereas the s^d Wm. Stitson is possessed of the Ferry at Winnisi^mett for term of his life by grant from Sam^l. May 13, 1640, "that no man should carry over any other at a fferry wth a canooe, vnder paine to forfeit the canoo to the treasury." ¹²

October 7, 1641, "For settleing of all co^mon fferryes in a right course, both for the passingers & owners, it is declared & ordered, that whosoever hath a fferry granted upon any passage is to have the sole liberty of transporting passingers from the place where such ferry is granted to any other ferry, or place where ferry boates use to land, and that any ferry boate that shall land pas-

The order of 1642 which restricted free ferriage to certain officials passing "in the countryes service," in 1644 was extended to "their necessary attendants, at all times." Abuse led two years later to further definition.

May 22, 1646 "In answer to y^e petition of James Heyden & p^{tn}^r, ferrimen, & for y^e satisfaction of all other ferrimen, y^t there may be no mistake who are freed, or should be passage free, & how long, —

"Whereas men do passe over y^e comon ferries in great danger often times, & y^e ferrymen excuse y^mselues by y^e importunity of passing^{rs} & want of law to give them pow^r to keepe due order, &c, it is therefore hereby ordered, y^t no pson shall presse or enter into any ferry boate contrary to y^e will of y^e ferrymen, or of y^e most of y^e passing^{rs} before entered, upon paine of 10^s for every such attempt, & y^t every ferryman y^t shall pmit & allow any pson to come into his boate against y^e will of any of y^e mat^{rats} or deputies or any of y^e eld^{rs} yⁿ in such boate, or y^e greater pt of y^e passingers yⁿ in y^e boate, shall forfeite for every pson so admitted or received against such will declared y^e sume of 20^s; & it shalbe in y^e pow^r of any of y^e ferrimen to keepe out or put out of his boate any pson y^t shall enter into or stay in any such ferry boate contrary to this order: & it is further ordered, y^t all psons shalbe received into such ferry boates according to their coming first or last, onely all publike psons, or such as go upon publike occasions, as phisitians, surgeons, & midwifs, & such as are sent for such, shalbe transported as such as were first." ¹⁷

Oct. 27, 1648: "For pventing the ferrimens damage, by psons not paying, &c, it shall be lawfull for any ferriman to demand & receive his due, before his boate put of from shore, nor shall he be bound to passe over any that shall not give satisfaction; & any ferriman may refuse any wampam, not stringed or unmarchantable, & such psons (whether horse or foote) w^{ch} are passage free by order of Co^rte must shew some thing sufficient for their discharge, or else must pay, as oth^{rs} do, except magistrats & deputies, &c, who are gen^rally knowne to be free." ¹⁸

Free ferriage for officials caused dissatisfaction, which led to a change of the law.

November 13, 1655, "ordered, that the Tresurer shall sattisfy the magis^{ts} ferriage for tjme past, they being for tjme to come to sattisfy for their oune fferriages." ¹⁹

meete to graunt them liberty to rajse a troope of horse, & choose theire officers, provided they be not fferry free, nor haue fve shillings yeerly allowed them from the country, as other troop's haue." ²⁰

November 27, 1661. "The Magist^s in Generall Court, after the hearing of the complaint made against John Moulton, ferry man at Winnisemet, wth what he could say for himself, ordered, that he be admonished for his neglects, & fined forty shillings to the country." ²¹

²⁰ Mass. Col. Rec., iv. pt. i. 341. This was afterwards known as the "Three County Troop," an organization with a creditable history although without much favor from the General Court. Discrimination in favor of the magistrates raised a question as to the right of the General Court to relieve them from ferriage, by infringing on the rights of property; and the Court, October 16, 1660, "Resolved on the quæstion that by the words of the lawe, tit. Ferrjes, p. 31, new booke, freeing magistrates & deputjes from paying ferriage ouer all fferjes that pay no rent to the country, is not intended to infringe the propriety of any person in any ferry." Ibid., 433. [In 1660 a collection of the laws of the Massachusetts Colony was revised and published by order of the General Court. The orders of May 13, 1640, October 7, 1641, and November 4, 1646, so far as they were applicable to all ferries in the colony, were entered there without essential change. The regulation as to free ferriage reads as follows: "And it is Ordered that all Magistrates, & such as are, or from time to time shall be chosen Deputies of the Generall Court, with their necessary attendance viz: a man & a horse at all times, during the time of their being Magistrates or Deputies (but not their families) shall bee passage-free over all ferries, that pay no rent to the Country." Thus the ferry from Boston to Winnisimmet was obliged to carry magistrates and deputies freely, while that from Winnisimmet to Boston, the private property of Richard Bellingham, was not.] Forty-five years later the General Court was less scrupulous, in war time at least, in taking private property for public use; for in the French and Indian war, 1703: "Ordered, That for the Transportation of Souldiers during the present War, no Ferrymen in this Province presume to demand or take any payment what soever. And that the said Ferrymen do carefully attend night and day to Expidite their Marches, upon the danger of being prosecuted as neglecting Her Majtys Service and the Security of this Province." Mass. Provincial Acts and Resolves, vii. 369.

[This resolve originated in the Council, and passed both houses March 18, 1702/3. Mass. Archives, lxx. 627. The act of October 25, 1694, provides that "all the members of the general assembly shall be ferrage free at all ferrys, in their passing to and from the assembly, and shall be transported without any unnecessary delay, on pain of forfeiting twenty shillings as abovesaid." Mass. Provincial Acts and Resolves, i. 183, 184.]

July 29, 1680, a similar contract was made with Francis Hudson for one year from the first day of August.²³ This was the town's, not the Maverick, ferry.

gave a power of attorney to John Floyd to sell land inherited from his father, Thomas Moulton of Charlestown, and was born about 1633. See vol. i. p. 296. Moulton's Point was so named from Robert Moulton, shipwright; see the vote of the General Court in 1634. Mass. Col. Rec., i. 124.]

²² Boston Rec. Com. Rep., vii. 115. [Robert Williams, lessee of the ferry from Boston to Winnisimmet in 1641, left his estate to his two sons, Joseph (born July, 1641) and Benjamin, and his daughter, Phebe Eglin, by will dated October 12, 1677, and probated January 30, 1677/8. It there appears that the father and sons possessed three houses, built on the father's land, with the "beach or wharfe" lying before them. In the inventory of the father's estate are the items, — "One third of the fferry Boate" £1. 10s, and "Due from Benjamin for the use of the fferry boate," £1 1s. (Suff. Prob. Rec., L. 6, ff. 216, 217; L. 12, f. 199.) Doubtless the lease of the ferry was held by the father, Robert Williams, from 1641 until his death, and was then continued to his sons, who had been partners with their father during his lifetime. The land of Robert Williams was on Lynn Street, now Commercial Street. In 1683 and in 1706 Samuel Ruck owned the land and flats to the east. In 1706 Phebe Eglin sold her share of the land to James Freeman. Thus near Ruck's and Freeman's wharves, as shown on Burgiss' map of 1728, stood the houses and wharf of Robert Williams and his sons. For the map see Shurtleff, Boston, 92. See also Suff. Deeds, L. 12, ff. 151, 370; L. 23, f. 79; L. 24, f. 274; Boston Rec. Com. Rep., viii. 54.]

²³ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., vii. 140. [Francis Hudson was mentioned as lessee of the Charlestown ferry in 1648, in 1662, and in 1675, and at the settlement of his estate ferry boats were inventoried. Presumably the Charlestown and Winnisimmet ferries were now placed under the same management. According to Judge Sewall, Francis Hudson, who came from Chatham in England, "was one of the first who set foot on this Peninsula," Diary, ii. 24.]

CHAPTER XXIII

WINNISIMMET FERRY IN COURT

THE Maverick Ferry, like so many things at Winnisimmet, seemed predestined to litigation. When Samuel Maverick sold Winnisimmet Ferry to Richard Bellingham in 1635, there was a life interest in William Stitson, which, commuted to an annuity of three pounds, he sold to James Russell of Charlestown; and as Richard Wharton, manager of the Bellingham estates, refused to pay this annuity, a suit against him therefor by Russell was tried at Charlestown, December, 1679, and resulted in his favor.¹ It was reviewed the next year, and this is the record:

² It is noticeable, first, that Charlestown, instead of Cambridge as afterwards, was the county seat for Middlesex; that the suit was review by writ of attachment without summons; that the amount of the attachment was in money value instead of "truck and dicker," in vogue in those days when money was scarce; and lastly, a fact which I had not before seen, that Richard Wharton was administrator of Governor Bellingham's estate. [See vol. i. p. 448.] Another fact is not without interest: The writ was not served by a marshal or his deputy, nor by a regular constable, but by an officer appointed by the court for the purpose. [The writ and summons were served out of the county in which the suit was brought, hence the order to the marshal of Suffolk was signed by Nathaniel Barnes, "Clerk of the writs" for Boston. 3 Tho m^r Russells ffrequent Chargeing & m^r Bellinghams paying doe not proue a future obligation; yet a future obligation being proued they are good circumstances to confirme y^e Same, Conceding its well known y^t Deacon Stitson is A man soe iust, y^t he would not desire paiement where it was not dew, And y^e Late honored Gouverno^r. Bellingham was Soe prudent, y^t he would not haue paid or discountpted three pounds ꝑ Annum soe many years as he did had he not bin obliged therevnto, Altho discountpt was Soe Easy A way of paiement, as y^e Apellant intimates. Acts and Orders

THE ferry suits ended, I resume the orders and votes respecting ferries by the General Court and by the town of Boston. The town ferry does not seem to have been profitable to the lessee; for February 22, 1685/6, "Francis Hudson being indebted to the towne for the rent of the ferry to Winesemet hath this day given 2 bills payable to the Treasurer of the towne, one to pay £10 in mony the 1st day of October next ensueinge and £10 the 1st. of Octob^r in the yeare 1687 which is in full for rent of said ferrie untill the 1st. of August next ensueinge the date hereof. Then let to said Hudson the aforesaid ferry from said 1st. of August next for 7 years, he payinge to the Treasurer of this towne or his success^r. yearly the sume of £5 in mony p. an. as p. Lease." ¹

Five years later, May 25, 1691, Francis Hudson had thrown up his lease of the ferry, as on that day it was let for one year to Samuel Hudson and John Scollay. July 13, 1691, Francis Hudson was indebted to the town fifty shillings, which he promised to pay to the Treasurer, twenty five shillings in money the next week, and twenty five shillings in money "in some convenient time after." ²

² Ibid., 208, 209. [At a meeting of the selectmen of Boston May 11, 1691, "Francis Hudson throughing up his Lease of Winesemet Ferry & relinquishing his Interest therein, and clayme thereto The said selectmen impowred referd it to Mr James Taylor Treasurer to agree with any other man or men to keepe the said Ferry." The lease from the selectmen to Samuel Hudson and John Scollay, dated May 25, 1691, is in Original Papers, vol. i., in the City Clerk's Office at the Boston City Hall. The rent was payable quarterly, and the lease was renewable at the end of the year. The ferrymen agreed "that all Magistrates shall have their Ferriage free from time to time dureing sd terme." Doubtless Samuel Hudson was a son of Francis Hudson, the former lessee. He was born July 19, 1650, and married a daughter of Sampson Shore, who conveyed to him a house lot "neare Winisimet

June 26, 1693. "Ordered that John Scally shall have a leas of Wenesimmet ferry made to him for 3 years at 5^{ld} p year."³

1693, June 9, the General Court enacted that any ferryman who should "at any time neglect, refuse or delay the conveying, over his or their ferry, any postman or his horse," should forfeit five pounds.⁴ November 22, 1693, "Constant ferrymen" were exempted from training.⁵

In those days when the population was small, and visits between the two places occasional, ferrymen apparently made their trips only as they had a freight. Hence regulations by law:

Dec. 17, 1696. "Whereas there is a constant recourse of travellers and others for passage over the ferries betwixt Boston and Charlestown, and betwixt Boston and Winisimet; therefore, for prevention of the great inconvenience and damage that doth or may happen to persons by being hindred and delayed at the said ferries for want of speedy transportation over the same, — Be it enacted. . . .

ferry place," adjoining to the west the land of Robert Williams. (Suff. Deeds, L. 9, f. 73; L. 12, f. 151.) Possibly he died before the time of the next entry given in the text, as by will dated August 21, 1697, Francis Hudson made a bequest to "Francis Hudson and Samuel Hudson, Sons of my Son Samuel Hudson deceased." Suff. Prob. Rec., L. 14, f. 243.]

Under the Andros régime a paper was prepared entitled an "Account of Rents belonging to the Towne of Boston to be anually payed by sundry parsons under Written Jan. 12th 1687 [1688]: to be payed to the Tresurer for the use of the ffræe Sc." One item was: "ffranes Hudson for Wenesemet ffery p Lease for 7 yeares fro[m August 1] 1686 payed to Agust 1687 : 5^{li} p anum." (Town Papers, 1637-1712, at the office of the City Registrar, Boston.)

⁴ Mass. Provincial Acts and Resolves, i. 116. [This was entitled an "Act Encouraging a Post-Office." It provided that postriders might pass over "all and every ferry within this province . . . without paying any rate or sum of money, either for his own or his horse's passage." This act was disallowed by the King. An "Act for Regulating Ferries," passed October 25, 1694, provided that "if any ferryman shall be complained of and duely convicted, before any justice of the peace, for delaying any post and not forthwith ferrying of him over, he shall forfeit the sum of twenty shillings." No mention was made of free passage. Ibid., 183, 184. May 26, 1703, John Campbell, Postmaster of Boston, in a petition to the General Court, complained: "The ferrymen are very backward in carrying those employed in the Post Office, and do require money sometimes." 3 Coll. Mass. Hist. Soc., vii. 62; also ibid., p. 55.]

⁵ Mass. Provincial Acts and Resolves, i. 130.

“(1) That the person or persons that are, or from time to time shall be imployed for keeping Winisimet Ferry, shall constantly maintain a good boat or boats in good repair, suitable for the said ferry, on each side of the water, and that such boats, whether there be any passengers in the same or not, shall put off from their respective shoares to go to the other side, upon each day in the week (the Lord's Day excepted), at the hours of five, seven, nine and eleven a clock before noon, and at one, three, five and seven of the clock after noon, throughout the whole year, so as it be within daylight, on pain that every such ferryman or ferrymen, being complained of and convicted before any one or more of his majesty's justices of the peace of neglect of his duty in not crossing the said ferry at the several times and hours before-mentioned, shall forfeit and pay the sum of twenty shillings, one-half to the informer or complainant, and the other half to the use of the poor of the town of Boston. And such justice or justices may restrain the offender or offenders until he or they shall pay the said sum.

“(2) That all posts and expresses for his majesty's service, and other persons having extraordinary business, as in cases concerning life and death, shall be speedily transported over the said ferry at any time or season, without delay, on the penalty aforesaid, anything herein before contained to the contrary notwithstanding: provided, nevertheless, that such ferryman or ferrymen shall not be obliged to put off from their respective shoares, and pass the said ferry at any of the times or hours before stated, if it manifestly appear to be hazardous for them so to do by reason of any storm or tempest, or that in the winter the ice do hinder the passing of any boat across the said ferry.”⁶

⁶ Mass. Provincial Acts and Resolves, i. 256. See also the general act for the regulation of ferries, dated October 25, 1694, ibid., 183. [At the October term of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace in 1706, “Thomas Giles one of the Ferry Men belonging to Winnissimet Ferry being bound by Recognizance to appear at this Court to Answer for his Refusing to carry an Express for her Majties Service over the sd Ferry on the Twentyninth of August last past, he accordingly appeared & pleaded that what he did was through Ignorance.” He was sentenced to enter into recognizance “for his good behaviour more Especially with Relation to the sd ferry” till the January term of court. At the April term of Court, 1707, he was discharged. At the April term of the same court in 1716, Thomas Gyles of Boston, “one of the Ferrymen belonging to the Ferry at the North end of the said Town commonly called Winisimiet Ferry,” convicted January 17, 1716, before Samuel Keeling, Justice of the Peace, “of refusing to carry Passengers over said Ferry contrary to his duty and ye Law,” was sentenced to pay a fine of 20s, one half to “Capt Nathan! Oliver who was the complt or Informer and the other half to the use of the poor of the Town of Boston as the Law directs.”

1695, April 29. "At a meeting of the Selectmen Then Let to John Scally Winnesimmet ferry for 7 yeares from the 27th day of this month, he to pay 5^ld p ann. to the Town Treasurer." ⁷

March 11, 1700/1. "It was voted, That the Town should be at no charge, To the maintaining the Water ways Over at Winnicimet Ferry." ⁸

April 27, 1702. "The Select men have agreed to Let unto John Scholley the use and improv^{mt} of Winnisimmet [Ferry] as formerly, for w^{ch} he agrees to pay Nine pound p anum in money, he to have a lease for the Same for one, three, or Seven years, w^{ch} of them he shall determine to take it for, he to give his result thereof within a fortnight." ⁹

October 11, 1708. "Ordered that notifications be posted up Signifieng the Townes Dock & wharfe at Merrys point. And Winisimit Ferry are to be lett." ¹⁰

November 29, 1708. "Agreed that Winisimmet Ferry be let to Thomas Gyles from the 27th of Aprill next for the Term of Seven years from y^e 1st of March he pay for the Same 20^l p Annum." ¹¹

Thomas Gyles appealed, but did not prosecute his appeal; and the judgment was affirmed.]

⁷ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., vii. 221. [The original lease signed by "John Scolle" is in Original Papers, i. 29, in the City Clerk's Office. He was to pay five pounds per annum quarterly on July 27, October 27, etc., "for the use of the Free-school," and had a right of renewal when the lease expired. Free ferriage of magistrates was provided for. Note a reference to the free school, supra, note (2). Also May 9, 1711, the town directed the selectmen to draw up a proposal for the appropriation of the rent of Winnisimmet Ferry and certain wharves "for the Support of a Free School or Schols at the North end of the Town." Boston Rec. Com. Rep., viii. 81.]

⁸ Ibid., vii. 239. [The estate of Governor Bellingham was then in litigation in England; presumably the ferryways had fallen into decay.]

¹⁰ Selectmen's Minutes as above, p. 81. [January 30, 1707/8, administration was granted on the estate of John Scolley, ferryman. No land was inventoried; the total appraisement was £63 10s. 11d. Two items were: "a ferry Boat Sayles &c," £6 14s.; "One Lattin bible one latin Testat in folio one Saw," £2. He was the landlord of the Salutation Inn on Hanover Street by Salutation alley. In 1697 Lady Phips, widow of Sir William Phips, was mentioned as the owner. Memorial Hist. of Boston, ii. p. ix.; Suff. Prob. Rec., L. 16, ff. 426, 428.]

¹¹ [November 8, 1715, this lease to Thomas Gyles was renewed at the same rent for seven years from March 1, 1715/6. This later lease, signed

“Ordered that water wayes convenient for Winisimit Ferry be made at the Townes Wharfe where the Old Battree at Merry^s point formerly Stood.”¹²

March 13, 1709/10. “The Select men haveing proposed to y^e Town at this meeting, That whereas the water wayes for Landing from Winisimit are out of Repaire, And Since the North Battree is New built there is a comodious place at the west end of the Old Battree, wher: there is no Tide to annoy the Fery boats Landing there, they propose that the S^d wayes be there built on the Townes ground w^{ch} may be an Advantage.

“Voted. A Concurrence to y^e S^d proposalls abt a water way to be built at Merry^s point.”¹³

¹³ Town Rec., 1700–1728, ibid., viii. 70. [In February and March, 1708/9, the heirs of John Smith of Winnisimmet, tenant of the Ferry farm, sold a wharf in Boston. The land conveyed lay on both sides of Lynn Street (now Commercial Street), and bounded northwest on Henchman’s Lane. (Suff. Deeds, L. 24, ff. 132, 135, 168, 170; Boston Rec. Com. Rep., vii. 94.) At the same time John Brintnall, son-in-law of John Smith, and his successor as tenant of the farm and ferry at Winnisimmet, bought what is now the United States Hospital estate in Chelsea. (Vol. i. pp. 43–45.) His further tenancy of the ferry was uncertain, as the arrival of the proprietors, Edward and Rebecca Watts, was anticipated. (Vol. i. pp. 580, 582.) Possibly the ferry from Winnisimmet had been in the habit of landing passengers at ferryways belonging to John Smith near the foot of Henchman’s Lane, and that the town now decided to have a landing-place for the ferry from Winnisimmet at Merry’s Point, where ferryways were ordered fifteen months before for the ferry from Boston to Winnisimmet.]

Humbly prays yo^r Excellency and this Hon^{bl} Court to take the premisses into your just Consideration and to Grant yo^r Petitioner a Reasonable Allowance for the Services aforesaid as in your Wisdom you may Judge Meet.

Dec. 3, 1711. "At a motion made by Mr. Thomas Gyles Ferry man, Liberty is granted to him to joyn wth Mr. Watts in Setting up a third boat to ply between Boston & Winnisimmet, So as that he as Lessee to the Town, retaine y^e one halfe of y^e whole benefitt of that Ferry dureing the term of his Lease."¹⁶

More legislation was required to regulate the ferries:

1711/12, March 21. "Whereas, notwithstanding the provision made in and by the act passed in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty, King William the Third, entituled 'An Act in addition to the act for regulating ferries,' there is still great complaint of neglect of a due attendance of the ferry from Boston

to Winisimmit, and from thence to Boston, to the grievous delay, inconvenience and damage of travellers, and others constantly resorting thither for passage, and there being but one boat on a side hitherto provided to tend the said ferry, and the river wide, and the number of passengers much increased by the growth of the towns on the road in which the said ferry lies, —

“ Be it therefore enacted

(Sect. 1.) “ That, for the more speedy transportation of passengers, especially posts, there be from henceforth, at all time and times hereafter, a third, sufficient, suitable boat and appurtenances, with able, sober persons to row in her, provided and kept constantly to attend the said ferry, for the transporting of passengers, horses and other things over the river; one of the three boats, in turns, to be always passing on the water, from side to side, in all proper seasons when boats may safely pass, not being obstructed by ice or extraordinary stormy weather; and as one of the said three boats shall land on either shoar, the other boat, on the same side, shall put off immediately: the three boats to continue plying from side to side, with all industry and diligence, daily (except on the Lord’s day, and then to pass no oftner than necessity shall require), from sunrise until nine of the clock at night, from the first of April until the first of October, and until eight at night, from the first of October to the first of April, annually, and after those hours, upon any necessary occasion, especially posts, for which there shall be paid two shillings (except posts), if it be with one person only, and if more, [then] double ferrage for the whole number, over and above the two shillings, among all the passengers in equal proportion; and that two boats be lodged on Winisimmit side every night, and one on Boston side; and the ferry-men employed in the said boats, respectively, are required to give constant and diligent attendance, and not to deny or delay the speedy carrying over any passenger or passengers, especially posts, according to the true intent and meaning of this and the former laws relating to ferries, under the penalty therein provided.

(Sect. 2.) “ That it shall and may be lawful to and for the ferry-men to demand and receive pay of all passengers, except posts, before they set them on shoar, and that they shall not be required or obliged to exchange for above the value of three shillings and sixpence, where the ferrage does not exceed that sum; and that the town of Boston, and the proprietors of the farm on Winisimmit side, who claim the privilege of the said ferry, do respectively maintain, and, from time to time, keep in good repair, sufficient and convenient ways for passing to and from the ferry-boats, from the landing place on either side, any law, usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.”¹⁷

June 23, 1718, it was enacted that “two of the three boats appointed for the service of the said ferry shall be always passing on the water”; and that ferrymen should keep “a pair of planked trucks of a sufficient breadth for the safe and more convenient passing of coaches, colashes, horses and cattle in and out of the ferry-boats.”¹⁸

The ferry landings both in Boston and Chelsea have changed their positions more than once since they were set up. Maverick’s ferry landing was from the United States Hospital grounds westerly of the bridge; and later, easterly of the bridge about a third of the distance to the present slip. On the Boston side, Merry’s point, some distance southeasterly of the present slip, was the old slip.¹⁹ This was found inconvenient, and for many years efforts were made to have it established at the foot of North Street, now Hanover Street, which finally succeeded.²⁰ When the Winnisimmet Company purchased the present ferry slip, it extinguished the rights of Boston in the old town ferry.

Petition for a New Landing

To the Inhabittants of the Town of Boston, at theire publick Town Meeting holden by adjournment the 16th of March 1713 : 14

²⁰ [No resident of Rumney Marsh is recognized among those who signed the petition of March 15, 1713/4, and out of 114 signers of the petition of 1734, only two. The petitioners were residents of the North End of Boston, to whom the ferryways at North Street gave convenient access to the sea. (see infra, p. 125.) March 15, 1708/9, the town voted: “That the Town Slip at the Lower end of North Street Shall be cleared from any Incumberance: lying there, and that the Sd Slip Shall be Kept clear, for the benefit of the Town and the Inhabitants thereof.” (Boston Rec. Com. Rep., viii. 60.) But John Greenough, who owned a ship yard adjoining this slip (Suff. Deeds, L. 26, f. 78; L. 53, ff. 187, 188, Boston Rec. Com. Rep., viii. 54; xi. 74), continued to encumber it. (Ibid., xi. 102, 164, 243.) He was desirous of its repair in 1714. A new wharf was built in 1715 and rented to him. Ibid., 240.]

It is therefore proposed by John Greenough, David Robinson, Fortune Reddock and John Souther, on the behalfe of themselves and others of the Neighbourhood who are nextly Concerned,

That they will make, Carry out, and maintaine Sutable and Sufficent wayes in the Town Slip, from the Lower end of North-Street So farr as boats may Land at all times of the Tide, and also will reparaire the wharfe at the end of the s^d Street which is now very much faln to decay, and at their own charge will bear on halfe of the Cost of making the s^d Wayes and repairing the s^d Wharfe, for the free use of the Town and the Inhabitants thereof. Provided the Town will Assign that place for the s^d use, and defray the other halfe of the s^d Charge thereof.

speedy transportation of passengers, with two sober, able-bodied men (one to be a white man) constantly to attend each boat, two of which were to be equipped "with good sails and two good oars, the other two to be row-boats or barges, and furnished with four oars each." Two of said boats (one to be a row-boat) should constantly ply from Boston to Winnisimmet, from sunrise until nine at night, from April to November; and from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. the remainder of the year. Also it was enacted that when any one of the boats landed on either shore, the other boat on the same side should immediately put off; and that one or more of the ferrymen should, within the hours mentioned, "constantly abide at or near each boat, to keep them from grounding, and to attend on passengers." Suitable penalties were provided for neglect of duty. The fares were to be as follows: for each passenger in a row-boat, nine pence; "for a horse, eighteen pence; for a horse and chaise or chair, with two wheels, three shillings"; for other luggage over fifty pounds, at "fourpence halfpenny per hundred, in bills of public credit of the last emission, and no more; and for each passenger in one of the sail-boats, sixpence; for a horse, eighteen pence; for an horse and chaise or chair, with two wheels, three shillings"; for other luggage over fifty pounds, at the rate of "threepence per hundred, in bills of publick credit of the last emission." The act was to continue in force for three years from its publication and no longer.⁴⁵

The ferries between Boston and Winnisimmet were not merely for the convenience of those places, for before the opening of the Salem and Newburyport turnpikes to Boston, about 1803, they were the only means of direct inland travel to Salem, Portsmouth, and the whole eastern country.⁴⁶ Members of the General Court, judges, and military companies from Essex County, generally reached the capital by way of Winnisimmet Ferry. But boats propelled by sails or oars were inconvenient for the transportation of teams. Ice in winter, and occasional head winds and rough water at all seasons, made passages irregular, protracted, and often dangerous.⁴⁷ These hindrances at an early date led to the setting up of inns at Winnisimmet. It was usual for travellers from the east intending to tarry over night in Boston, to leave their horses at Winnisimmet;⁴⁸ and for those intending a journey to the eastward to go by boat to Winnisimmet, and to hire there teams to their destination.⁴⁹

⁵⁰ Mass. Col. Rec., ii. 87. Goodman Smyth, afterwards better known as Lieutenant John Smith, was for many years tenant of Governor Bellingham's Ferry farm, and manager of the ferry. His license was renewed from time to time as late as 1681. [The lease of John Smith dated from January, 1664/5. (Vol. i. p. 438.) John Pemberton was tenant of the Ferry farm in 1662. Presumably "Goodm Smyth" of 1644 was Francis Smith, father of John Smith. The preceding March at a Quarter Court at Boston: "francis Smith is graunted his bill of 2^{lb} 3^s 11^d for ferridge, & horse pasture, of Magistrates, & Deputies horses from the 25th, of ye 2^d Moth 1642, to the 5th of the 1st Moth 1643" (Records of the Court of Assistants, ii. 139.) In later years Deputies to the General Court from the eastward were accustomed to ride to Winnisimmet, and leave their horses there at pasture during the session of the Court. Presumably Francis Smith, the ferryman, was "Goodm Smyth," the innkeeper, and also tenant of Richard Bellingham, the owner of the ferry franchise, and an influential member of the Colonial government at the date when the license for an inn at Winnisimmet was granted. (Supra, note 48.) Francis Smith, in May, 1748, received a license to sell wine at Reading. According to Eaton (History of Reading, 111), Francis Smith was a proprietor in Watertown in 1636/7, "stopped a while, it is said, at Chelsea Ferry," and settled in Reading in 1647. In May, 1647, Francis Smith and Lieut. Sprague were appointed by the General Court to lay out a highway from Winnisimmet to Reading. (Mass. Col. Rec., ii. 192.) This same General Court of May, 1647, licensed as innkeeper Samuel Davis of Winnisimmet.)]

1661, November 5. "Jn^o Pemberton & Jn^o Moulton are allowed to keepe a publick house of intertainmen^t att Winisimett till April court next." ⁵³

John Brintnall, in his petition to the General Court in 1711, says that "for the Space of Seventeen years Last past" he had "kept the Ordinary jn Wiñysimett and the fferry betwixt that and Boston" and that he was "about to Remove from that House and Service." The house was the Watts ⁵⁴ house on the Ferry farm. ⁵⁵ In 1709 Brintnall purchased the Maverick estate, on which Samuel Maverick's Palisade House was standing in 1660. In 1712 the selectmen "Voted, that John Brentnall & Edward Watts at their Respective Houses at Winnisimett be Allowed & Recomend^d as Inholders." ⁵⁶ So at that time there were two inns at Winnisimmet, across the street from each other.

When Edward and Rebecca Watts, in 1710, came over to their Winnisimmet estates, they then, or soon after, occupied the Ferry farm with the inn; and after his death the selectmen, July 12, 1714, approved as an innholder, "Rebecca Watts Widd^o at her House at Winisimett"; and October 31, 1715, her son Edward, "to Sell Strong drink as an Inholder at his House at Winesimett." ⁵⁷

In 1754 Edmund Dix of Chelsea petitioned the General Court to empower the Court of Quarter Sessions to license him to keep a tavern at Point Shirley, in a building already improved as such, alleging that since the "cod fishery business"

In 1712 and 1713, both John Brintnall and Edward Watts held licenses; the former paid £4 each year; the latter £4 in 1712, and £5 in 1713; after 1713 the name of John Brintnall disappeared from the list. In 1717, he was fined £10 and costs for selling strong drink without license. (Records of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace.) had been carried on a great number of persons were employed there, with no public house to entertain them. June 27, 1757, the selectmen [of Chelsea] approved of John Chandler to keep the Inn.⁵⁸ Between 1766 and 1774 Mrs. Abigail Hawkes, widow of Jonathan Hawkes, who died in 1762, was the innkeeper at Rumney Marsh, and to her house the town meeting was often adjourned. The old Hawkes Tavern is still standing on School Street, Revere, and was the residence of the late Captain John Tewksbury. About the same time Captain Richard Watts was innkeeper at the ferry.⁵⁹

Edward Watts, who managed the Maverick ferry, and Thomas Gyles, the lessee of the town ferry, worked them as one; as later did Samuel Watts and Thomas Gyles, lessees for seven years from March 1, 1729/30, at £20 per annum.⁶⁰ The arrangement of the ferries may be gathered from the Watts MSS.⁶¹

As we have reached the time when Rumney Marsh was set off from Boston as the town of Chelsea, thereby parting with its legal interest in the Boston ferry to Winnisimmet, I shall not longer follow its history except to say that the franchise and real estate therewith connected were sold to the Winnisimmet Company, November 15, 1836.⁶² The time for the history of the Company will come; but I shall not anticipate it, and will only notice such incidents respecting ferry regulations

⁶¹ October 7, 1715, when Thomas Gyles and Edward Watts were interested in the ferry, they contracted with James Combs for one year in running the boat between Boston and Winnisimmet, and when the boat was not running, for other service, as they might direct; and for these services they agreed to pay Captain Arnold £3. 2s. for Combs' passage, presumably from England, and at the end of the year, £9. 8s., in Province Bills, with "Meat Drink Washing & Lodging." When Samuel Watts became sole owner of the Ferry farm including the ferry, as well as innholder, he made a similar contract with George Campbell, March 1, 1728/9, for £23; and March 26, 1729, purchased of Abigail Thomas a negro woman, named Qushaby, and her child Venus, and their wearing apparel, for £110. as were for the accommodation of travellers, and the occasions when the ferry has been obstructed by ice.

The first is from Shurtleff's Topographical and Historical Description of Boston.⁶³ "The Chevalier François Jean — for he had not then attained the rank of Marquis — in the course of his travels, left Salem on the fourteenth of November, 1782, on horseback for Boston. He describes his approach to the town in the following words: 'The road from Salem to Boston passes through an arid and rocky country, always within three or four miles of the sea, without having a sight of it; at length however, after passing Lynn, and Lynn Creek, you get a view of it, and find yourself in a bay formed by Nahant's Point and Pulling's Point. I got upon the rocks to the right of the roads, in order to embrace more of the country, and form a better judgment. I could distinguish not only the whole bay but several of the islands in Boston road, and part of the peninsula of Nantucket [a mistake for Nantasket], near which I discovered the masts of our ships of war. From hence to Winisimmet ferry you travel over disagreeable roads, sometimes at the foot of rocks, at others across salt marshes. It is just eighteen miles from Salem to the ferry, where we embarked in a large scow, containing twenty horses; and the wind, which was rather contrary, becoming more so, we made seven tacks, and were near an hour in passing. The landing is to the northward of the port, and to the east of Charles-Town ferry.' " ⁶⁴

⁷⁷ Even when the harbor was not frozen the passage from Winnisimmet to Boston by ferry-boats with sails was sometimes dangerous. APPENDIX

[The Landing-place of Winnisimmet Ferry in Boston]

WHEN Thomas Gyles took a lease of the ferry from Boston to Winnisimmet in November, 1708, Merry's Point near the North Battery was assigned as the starting place of the ferry. Its location there can be seen on Burgiss' plan of the town. A few facts have been gathered as to earlier landing-places.

At the January term of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace in 1707/8, a complaint was entered by the selectmen of Boston against William Parkman, shipwright, for an encroachment "over the Town Slip or Ferry way being part of the Common highway leading from the Mill Bridge towards Winnisimmet in Boston . . . by Erecting a hallow wharff upon the same now in the Tenure of William Greenough of Boston, Shipwright."¹ The complaint was entered under an order from the selectmen to the town clerk, October 8, 1707, directing him to make complaint "Ag^t William Parkman for building a hollow wharfe, Over the Town-Slip Nigh Mr. Edward Budds Wharfe."² October 22, 1708, the selectmen ordered that "William Parkman be directed to remove y^e Incumbrance at y^e Towns Slip at y^e end of North Street," and on November 16, the selectmen "Signified to Mr. Budd that they do Assert as belonging to y^e S^d Slip from y^e upper to y^e Lower end of his wharfe the breadth of the Lower end of north Street Measuring from Mr Nashs Shop & wharfe as it now Stands & that what incroachment is there made is done on Mr Budds Side." November 30, 1708, William Parkman, who lost the suit in the court, delivered formal "possession of the Slip at y^e end of North Street" to the town clerk, and Merry's Point having been chosen as the future landing-place for the ferry, an agreement was then entered into between the selectmen and John Greenough, according to which he was to pay thirty shillings a year for the use of the slip.³ From these extracts it appears that the foot of North, now Hanover, Street was an earlier landing-place for Winnisimmet Ferry than Merry's Point. Yet the selectmen's vote of November 29, 1708, shows that Greenough had occupied the slip at the end of North Street for over two and one half years. John Scollay, predecessor of Gyles as lessee of the ferry, was for many years before his death landlord of the Salutation Inn at the corner of Hanover Street and Salutation Alley. Presumably the ferry boats started, therefore, from the "water ways and Flatts belonging to the Salutation Tavern,"⁴ that is, from Atlantic Avenue near Salutation Alley, until the death of Scollay, in September, 1707, when the selectmen found it necessary to bring suit to recover possession of the earlier landing-place.⁵

The slip at the foot of what is now Hanover Street dated, apparently, from the year 1678, as in June of that year the selectmen "Agreed with Thomas Atkins Carpenter to make a good and substantiall wharfe & a slip therein of 8 foote broad to lead downe a horse without danger, betweene the wharfe of y^e Widdowe Hett to the wharfe of James Nash, And to make the High way against the s^d Wharfe suffitient and substantiall & conformable to the other high wayes adjoyninge, to be all finished and completed within 5 monthes after the date hereof."⁶ February 23, 1677/8, the selectmen leased Winnisimmet Ferry to Joseph and Benjamin Williams, who may have disposed of their rights, as in July, 1680, Francis Hudson was in possession. Possibly during the lifetime of Robert Williams, Winnisimmet Ferry started from his land on

⁶ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., vii. 121; also pp. 64, 146, 195. The wharf of Edward Budd had formerly belonged to Eliphalet Hett, from whom it descended to Nathaniel Parkman, whose widow conveyed it in 1702 to Edward Budd. (Suff. Deeds, L. 20, ff. 530-533; L. 21, ff. 43-46.) Eliphalet Hett had purchased the land from Judith Douglas, widow, January 7, 1667/8. (Ibid., L. 15, f. 117.) William Douglas had purchased it, with land to the west, later owned also by Edward Budd, from Walter Merry, who signed the conveyance in behalf of himself and Thomas Anchor. The land was described as lying between the lots of John Sweet and John Seabury. Seabury purchased his land of Walter Merry November 25, 1639. (Boston Rec. Com. Rep., ii. 43; also ibid., part ii. 46.) James Nash acquired this. (Suff. Deeds, L. 7, ff. 256-258; L. 13, f. 409.) The street described in 1707 as leading from the Mill Bridge toward Winnisimmet, was mentioned in 1650 as the "Croise way that Leads from the Water Mills unto the water side betwene Good Duglas and Water Merries garden." (Boston Rec. Com. Rep., ii. 100.) Presumably it was the highway mentioned December 2, 1644, when the selectmen voted to "pay unto Walter Merry 5s. for Fencing set up at the upp end of his garden by reason of the high way there." Ibid., 81.

Lynn (now Commercial) Street near Sliding Alley,⁷ and after 1678, from the town's slip at the foot of Hanover Street. It is certain that the landing-place was in this immediate neighborhood throughout this period, as frequent references are found in Suffolk deeds to the "Street that leadeth from the Mill bridge towards Winnisimmet Ferry place," and to the Backstreet (Salem Street) "that leads from the water mill in Boston towards winnysimmet ferry place."⁸ The channel was nearer to the north end of the town than to the older settlement by State Street, where Long Wharf alone touched the channel.⁹ Only a short slip was necessary to enable ferry-boats to land at the north end at all tides.

To the Gentlemen Select Men of the Town of Boston —

We the subscribers, in behalf of our selves & Brethren, who attend the Ferry Boats at Winnisimmet, do Humbly represent,

That the Ferry ways on the Boston side, are very much out of repair, to the great annoyance of Passengers & their Horses, inso-much that great Complaints are daily made, attended with threats to present the Town of Boston, for neglecting to repair the same —

Proposals of Joseph Oliver of Boston, Ferryman; to the Gentlemen Select men of the Town of Boston; for taking a Lease of the Winnisimmet Ferry ways, respecting that part which appertains to the Town of Boston, upon the following Conditions. —

1st That he proposes to take a Lease of the said ways, for the Term of 15 years, at the yearly Rent of one shilling Lawful Money ^{per} Year:

2^d That he will put them under good repair to accommodate Passengers, both Foot & Horse, with the usual Carriages, which repair, he is well Convinced, will be attended with such an expence, as will in the greatest probability last Thirty Years, so that at the expiration of said 15 Years, they will be left in good repair; and if he should be spared in Life, he may probably be a Tenant for the same hereafter:

3^d You will please to observe, That after such repairs are made, your proposer runs a great risque of being obliged to quit by the Enemy, or otherwise, & he thinks the said Lease ought in Justice to the proposer, to be made to him, his Heirs & assigns for the said Term of 15 Years

Sirs

You will find by looking into the Laws relative to Winnisimmet Ferry; that three Ferry-boats only are to be kept, one for Boston, & two for Winnisimmet side of the Ferry

Therefore J presume, that neither you, nor any Person or Persons that may Apply to you to hire the Town's privilege in that ferry will pretend to keep two Ferry-boats. And as great Inconveniences may arise & the publick as well as the subscriber be materially injur'd by putting the Town of Bostons right into the hands of strangers. Therefore J should incline to hire that Right; upon Condition, that for making and maintaining the Ways on Boston side, I shall be intitled to that Privilege, for the Term of fifteen years, and am your humble Servant Samuel Watts

Henry Howell Williams respectfully sheweth,

That in Consequence of an Order of Notice from this Court for all Persons interested to appear and Shew Cause against granting a Petition prefered by Augustus Holyoke and Others for the Erection of a Bridge from Charlestown to Chelsea. He begs leave to remonstrate against the same. Because the Ferry called Winnisimmet is an antient Ferry & from Time immemorial & untill a very few years past was the most accustomed Rout from the Eastern parts of the State to the Capital; That since the building of Malden Bridge the Proprietors of said Ferry on the Chelsea side discouraged by the Loss they anticipated in Consequence of that undertaking permitted the Ferry Ways to go to Decay to the great Injury of many Travellers who still frequented the same, untill your Remonstrant urged by the Request of many Citizens purchased the Estate to which the Ferry was appendant, at a great price, That he employed a large sum in repaireing & placing the above Ferry in an improved & Convenient State & your Memorialist is free to Acknowledge that he has derived a very Considerable income & emolument from his Labours & it is with regret that your Memorialist is obliged to add that by the proposed

Bridge, the Benifits arriseing from his sole Exertions under very disadvantageous circumstances, will be annihilated & the great Sums he has expended, be totally Lost to him & his family; he would further suggest to this Honorable Court to Consider the Disadvantages that must result to him from this Bridge opening an easy Accomodation to the Idle & Disolate of the neighbouring Capital on Sundays, to divest the Labours of the Week by traversing his fields and exposing his Grounds to depradations

Wherefore to prevent these Manifest Injuries, he is compelled to solicit the Protection of this Court & to pray that they will either reject the project of the Petitioners, or to subject them in Case the Legislature should grant their Petition, to make your remonstrant such a seasonable Compensation as may be justly adjudged upon a fair Inquiry, he is entitled to receive from a Set of Men who are contemplating the advancement of their own Interest, & Your Memorialist as in Duty bound shall pray &c

*General Sumner's Description of the Ferry*²⁰

Among the earliest recollections of my youthful days are the annual visits of the families of the different proprietors, and their intimate connections, to Mr. Henry Howell Williams, the tenant at the Island. This Mr. Williams was also the lessee, and afterward the owner, of the ancient ferry between Boston and Winnisimmet, the boats of which stopped at Noddle's Island on their passage from the one place to the other. We used to put up our horses in the barn of Mr. Fenno, who kept a grocery store and a house at the foot of Hanover Street, for the accommodation of passengers who crossed the ferry. The boats were old-fashioned, with sails and with drops on each side to admit the carriages, which were drawn into the boats by hand, after the horses were taken out and led on board. They were so narrow that the carriages stood across them, with their shafts projecting over the water. It was not often that carriages were taken over to the Island; but, as my grandfather Hyslop and his wife were aged persons, they usually crossed the ferry with theirs. When, from the state of the tide, the boat could not get to the wharf, nearly opposite the house, without grounding on the flats, it was necessary to land the passengers at the ferry ways, which were laid for that purpose from Smith's Head (where Weeks's wharf now is), into deep water towards the channel, which was only eighteen rods distant from that point. . . . The Rev. William Greenough of Newton, who had exchanged his interests in the Island with his brother David for an equal share of the Chelsea farm of four hundred acres, the title to which came from the same ancestor, was always, with his family, a part of the company. He, in his turn, entertained the same party, once a year [in the old Newgate house], at Mr. Eustis's, the tenant of that farm, of which he was the chief proprietor. My father, not having any large possession of his own, at a convenient distance, to reciprocate the civilities of his kinsmen, invited them with their families and friends to a farm of his of about sixty acres, lying above Sumner's paper-mills in Dorchester. . . . Although the party did not receive the generous supplies which Mr. Williams's table afforded of roast beef, oysters, and English porter, nor the china bowl full of punch that stood in the corner of the room,—to which the guests might help themselves before dinner, or when they pleased; nor the roast pig, fat mutton, chickens, and ducks, which Chelsea farm afforded, yet the children did not lack a sufficiency of milk and eggs, and the party enjoyed themselves in the fields as well, probably, as if the farm had been capable of furnishing a more sumptuous entertainment. . . .

No rent was taken for the numerous beds of oysters planted on the flats for the daily supply of the city, other than that Mr. Williams and the proprietors had the right to take as many oysters as they chose. The proprietors exercised their right only at the time of their annual visit, and probably their respective families had a better supply of oysters the day afterward, than they had on any other day in the year. . . .

After the recent settlement at Chelsea by the Winnisimet Company, it employed large ferry-boats, propelled by steam, instead of the two-masted sail boats which they had bought. They discontinued the landing of passengers at Noddle's Island, which had now been purchased by the East Boston Company after Mr. Thomas Williams ceased to use it; but this was not until the East Boston Company had obtained from the city the franchise of a ferry at a more convenient place to East Boston, and had set up their boats and established the ferry from Lewis' wharf, on the Boston side. The tenants of the Island had also a prescriptive right to land their own boats, to carry cattle over and back, and here was the place of landing their milk cans for their Boston customers. They did not use the ferry merely in their passage to Boston; but they also used that part of it which lies between Noddle's Island and Winnisimet, in going to the Chelsea farm of four hundred acres, which was near the Chelsea meeting-house, and, belonging to the same proprietors, was usually leased to the same person who hired the Island. The passages between the Island and both the termini of the ferry were then frequent and necessary. Although it interfered with their right, to land passengers on the ferry-ways, the proprietors, receiving no notice of the sale, made no serious objection to the grant by the city, for a few thousand dollars, of the town landing in Boston, to the Winnisimet Company, who, with their purchase of the farm owned by the Williams family at Chelsea, bought also the ferry and the boats, of which their father, Mr. H. H. Williams, died the sole proprietor, he having grown rich by his position as tenant of Noddle's Island for the very unusual period of nearly forty years. Some time before his death he became purchaser of Governor Bellingham's very valuable and very extensive farm in Chelsea, at the ferry landing, and removed his family thither, leaving his son, Mr. Thomas Williams, his successor as tenant of the Island. This amiable gentleman, active, judicious, and enterprising, and his wife, who was the late Secretary Avery's daughter, will long be remembered by all who knew them. He succeeded his father and had the sole management of the Island Farm, and seemed to be as much interested in it as if it was his own. Having often heard the writer confidentially express his intent (whenever he could accomplish it) so to connect the Island with the city as to make it a part of it, he in his turn consulted him about the sale of his father's farm in Chelsea to the Winnisimet Company at the price which that company offered for it, apprehending, as he said, that it might be considered by the writer as an interference with his plans of improvement on the Island. No objection on that score being offered, but the building of a town, as it were, behind Noddle's Island, which lies much nearer to the city, being considered rather advantageous to the Island than otherwise, Mr. Williams accepted, in behalf of the heirs of his father, the offer for their estate at Chelsea, and thus opened the door to the improvements which the enterprising Winnisimet Company projected and put into execution.

CHAPTER XXV

HIGHWAYS AND TOWN WAYS AND BRIDGES

WE are too far removed from the first settlement of the town to understand the life which the earliest comers lived. Many of them were men of education, contemporaries of Shakespeare, personal friends and co-laborers with Cromwell and Milton in the great work of reforming the English church and constitution, and competent for affairs of the greatest magnitude. But when they came to the wilderness, their time and thoughts were necessarily occupied by matters of but little interest to us. The regulation of cattle pastures, the yoking of swine, the erection of party fences, and the making of roads, though not very lofty matters, were of importance to them. Three governors and a secretary of state settled a highway from Winnisimmet to Lynn, and much of the legislation of the General Court and of the town was devoted to similar matters.

I propose, therefore, to bring together what I find in the first hundred years respecting the building and repairing of the highways at Rumney Marsh. In no other way can we get so vivid an idea of what they cost. The ways at Winnisimmet and Rumney Marsh, as will be seen, were often before the General Court and the town of Boston, in whose care they were until 1739, when the town of Chelsea was set off. But if, as I suppose, the old road from Winnisimmet to Lynn and Salem, — the present Washington Avenue and the continuation thereof through Revere, — was the oldest county¹ road in Massachusetts, it was worth the attention it required; and more especially so, since it was the most direct road by which inhabitants of Essex, and travellers from the eastward, could reach Boston by land.

¹ [It was called in the early records the "Country" road, presumably because it was laid out by a committee of the General Court.]

1639, December 3, at a Court of Assistants, or Quarter Court, held at Boston: "Boston, for defect of their wayes between Powder Horne Hill & the written tree, is fined 20sh^s, & enjoined to mend them./" ²

At the session of the General Court beginning May 13, 1640: Ordered that "Mr. Willi: Hauthorne, Mr Samu: Symonds, & Mr Tymo: Tomlins are to set out the nearest, cheapest, safest, & most convenient way between Linn & Winnetsetmet, & to settle it accordingly. . . .

"When the way is layd out between Linn & Winnetsetmet, it is to stand both for the foote way, as also for the horse, cart, & drift way, as they shall settle it, & no other to bee allowed for horse nor ffoote./" ³

The selectmen, October 26, 1640, ordered: "The Bridge to bee built at Romney marsh is to be donne with all speede, and Mr. Cogan hath undertaken to see the same donne for the Towne of Boston." ⁴

Quarter Court, Boston, December 1, 1640. "Boston, the wayes being newe layde out, had time to repair them between Powder Horne Hill & the written tree till the [blank]." ⁵

At a General Court held June 2, 1641: "The Governo^r, Deputy Gov^rno^r, Mr Winthrope, Seni.; Mr Humfrey, Inc: Nowell, Mr Hauthorne, Mr Hibbens, & Mr Coitemore are appointed to settle, for a finall conclusion, the way from Winnetsetmet to the written tree./" ⁶

The Selectmen, July 26, 1641: "Ordered that the Constables of Boston shall pay those workemen that were employed about the way at Rumney marsh, betweene Winnesemett and Lynne, at 1s. 6d. a day; if it be payd in Indian Corne, they are to have it at 3s. a bushel. . . . [It's agreed that our bro. Beamsly is to be payed for 10 rods of Causway done by him on the further side of the bridge at Rumney marsh, at 6s. per rodde, together with a small parcell of worke on the hither side of the said Bridge, which cometh to 1s. 6d.; in all, £3 1s. 6d.]" ⁷

At a General Court, October 7, 1641: "It is ordered, that the high way between the written tree & Winnet semet should bee made sufficient for carts, horses, & men by Boston wthin 3 months, upon paine of 20^l. . . .

The Order for the High Way frō the Written Tree to Winnētsemet

Wee, whose names are hearunder written, being appointed by the Co^rt to lay out the country high way frō Winnet semet towards Linne, have agreed that it shall go, as formerly, from the water side to the foote of Powder Horne Hill, & from thence about the west end of the said hill, & over the east end of Sagamore Hill, & thence to turne up above the swamps to the line of partition between Charlstowne & Boston, ruñing along thereby conveniently near to the great swamp, turning downe by the south side thereof to M^r Keaynes cart way over the said swamp, & so along in the said cart way over the brooke neare unto the ould bridge, & thence in the most convenient way to the new bridge./

RICH^B BELLINGHAM, Go.;
 JOHN ENDECOT, Dep.;
 JOHN WINTHROPE,
 & INCREASE NOWELL." ⁸

We can trace the line of the road thus laid out and substantially remaining to-day. It began in front of the old ferry ways, westerly of the Charlestown bridge, and ran easterly across Salem turnpike, then turning westerly recrossing the turnpike (so I understand John Low to say); then easterly and again crossing the turnpike in front of the old tavern, which stood easterly of the Salem turnpike, and nearly opposite the foot of Beacon Street; thence trending easterly through Park, Pearl, and Hawthorn streets; thence westerly across the turnpike into Washington Avenue, as it now runs past the easterly side of Woodlawn Cemetery northerly to Lynn.⁹ But did it run easterly or westerly of the great hill which bounds the Lynn marsh on the west? There is an old cart track, still practicable, which passes the easterly side of that hill, which may have been the old road.¹⁰ The exact position of the "written tree,"¹¹ which served to mark the boundary between Boston and Charlestown then — now Revere and Malden — is not known, it having long since disappeared.

At "a generall Townsmeeting," January 10, 1641/2: "It's agreed that for the making of the high wayes at Romny Marish now ordered by the Court, each man in particular throughout the Towne shall afford their helpe, in six severall Companyes, at the appointment of William Tyng, Treasurer, Captaine Gibones, Captaine Keayne, John Newgate, Samuell Cole and Joh. Oliver."¹²

August 29, 1642. "It's Ordered [by the selectmen] that such at Rumney marish as have bene defective in their hands and Teames for mending the high wayes heere in the Towne, according to order, shall yeild their helpe in mending their high wayes in Rumney marish, and others that are bound by order to worke at the highwayes in Rumney marish, shall worke at the high wayes about the Towne in their stead."¹³

Samuel Chittenden and Jeffrey Williams were not built until after the Salem Turnpike had been laid out, and the curve in the road from Chittenden's house to the bridge was due to the fact that the town claimed as a public landing place the shore between the bridge and the western boundary of the Ferry farm. See supra, vol. i. pp. 57-59; infra, p. 176; also the map opposite p. 294, vol. i., and the earliest plans of the Ferry and Shurtleff farms cited vol. i. p. 391.]

Generall Court, 1642, September 27. "It is ordered, that the high way from the written tree to Winnetsemet should bee alowed through M^r Keaynes & M^r Newgates ground till the other way bee mended, & the gates made convenient or left open for men to passe./" ¹⁴

At a meeting of the selectmen, December 2, 1644: "Its ordered that the Constables shall pay unto Walter Merry 5s. for Fencing set up at the upp end of his garden by reason of the high way there, and 3s. for the use of his boat to Winnesemet to carry workmen to repaire the high wayes there." ¹⁵

The expense of fencing against the highways probably led proprietors of adjacent lots through which a road passed to run their division fences across the highway and thus prevent cattle passing out of their own fields into those of their neighbors. At such points, gates or bars became troublesome to travellers, and this led the General Court, which met May 26, 1647, to order:

"Upon information y^t divers high wayes are much annoyed & incumbred by gates & rayles erected upon them, it is ordred & enacted, . . . y^t, upon any information or complaint made eith^r to y^e Co^rte of Assistants, or any County Co^rte, of any such gates or rayles . . ., y^e same Co^rte shall appoint a comittee of discreet & indiffrent psons to vei^w such incumberance, & to ord^r y^e reformation thereof; & if y^e pties whom it shall concerne shall not submit to such order, they shall require them to appear at y^e next Co^rte, where y^e cause shalbe heard & determined for y^e ease & conveniency of travelers, wth due respect to y^e ppriet^{rs} cost & damage." ¹⁶

The following may be the first law passed in Massachusetts, making towns liable for the condition and safety of highways within their limits.

As dwellers along the route they protested against the road laid out by Lieutenant Sprague and Francis Smith. The cost of fencing, they said, would ruin many small proprietors. They asked “that the way vnto wenesemet from Redding may be in the highway leading toward the penie ferrie, vnto the house of James Barritt & so by the towneway leading directly vnto winesemet, lying on the head of the fīue Acre lotts, by the South spring, wch is Allso A playne, firm trodd way & but litle about. the wch they now stand charged to fence Against & cannot secure their planting without it.” According to Corey the South Spring was at the junction of what are now Chelsea and Ferry streets in Everett.]

September 10, 1653. “Thomas Marshall, John Smyth,²⁴ & John Sprague, beinge chosen to lay out the country high way betweene Reddinge & Winnesemett, do lay it out as followes: from Reddinge towne, through Maldon bounds, betwixt the pond & John Smyths land, & so by the east side of M^r Joseph Hills land, to New Hockley Hole, & so in the old way by the Cow Pen, & thence along on the east side of Thomas Coytmores lott, by Ele Pond, in the old way, to Thomas Lynds land, then through the first feild, & so by the feild by his howse, from thence, on the old way, by Maldon meeting howse, through the stony swampe, from the road there vpp betwixt Richard Addams & John Vphams lotts, into Charlstowne bounds, through W^m Johnsons & Richard Dexters land into y^e way by the South Springe, & so on the south side of Thō Whitamores howse²⁵ into M^r Bellinghams land, into the way that goeth to the fferry; the ſd way to be fower pole broad, in good ground, & six or eight where need requires.”²⁶

April 29, 1650. “It was ordered that M^r. Elias Maverick and James Johnson, who were chosen by George Burden; Deacon Eliatt, and M^r. Thomas Clarke who were chosen by the Towns-men in the preſence of M^r. Newgate and with Consent of him:

The estate of William Ireland and Aaron Way was on both sides of Washington Avenue, from Governor Bellingham's land on the south as far north as the easterly side of Woodlawn, where the Newgate farm began.

March 31, 1656. “Ordered [by the selectmen] that Wm. Ireland and Aaron Way shall bee allowed fourty shillings for the

Col. Rec., ii. 4.) Mr. Holyoke's farm was the Tuttle farm. (Supra, vol. i. p. 204.) The road passed through the farms of John Newgate and George Burden (later the Way-Ireland farm) towards the mill in Malden. This mill, built by Thomas Coytemore about 1641, passed in 1652 under the control of John Cogan. It stood near Malden Square “near the present Middlesex Court, between Pleasant Street and the river.” (Corey, 86). For over half a century it was for the people of Winnisimmet and Rumney Marsh the nearest mill by a land route. Thus the road from Mill Street by Beach and Fenno streets to Washington Avenue dates as a highway from the year 1650. See supra, note 19, for the road from Washington Avenue to Malden.]

country high way that is laid out through their land att Rumny Marsh.”³⁰

The contract in 1654 with Ireland and Way, to continue seven years, was to make and maintain a certain part of the highway. This allowance of “fourty shillings” two years later may have been for some land taken for the [country] way now Washington Avenue.

I cannot define the roads which are the subject of the following orders; but generally they relate to the present road from Revere to Winthrop.

April 30, 1666, “Let Tuttle, Corn^t Hazy, Sam Daus, are made choice of as a Committie to settle the high way at pulling point leading out of the necke to Rumny marsh, And to ishue all such differences about high wayes betwixt neighbour & neighbour & to make returne thereof the next metting day.

“Mr Deane Winthrop, Cap^t Edward Hutchenson, James Bill, are made choice of as a Committie to Settle the high way from the high way that is apointed to be layed out from pulling point to the Country high way & soe likewise a high way leading to Maldine & likewise to settle such high wayes as shall be conuenient betwixt neighbour & neighbor. makeing returne thereof.”³¹

The above order seems to relate to the road which runs northerly from Woodlawn over the low land towards Saugus.

1671, November 27, "The agreem^t with W^m Ireland & Aron Way concerninge the high way at powder horne hill made the 27 : 8 : 1661. fol. 5. is continued for 10 yeares, for 25^s. p. ann." This was as follows: "Itt is Agreed with W^m Ireland & Aron Way to make and keepe in sufficient repayre all y^e country high way from y^e foote of powder horne hill to Mr Newgates lott for y^e space of 10 yeares next ensuing, & to leaue y^e same in y^e like sufficient repayre att y^e end of y^e tearme afores^d. In consideration whereof y^e Towne is to allow to y^e afores^d W^m Ireland & Aron Way 25^s. p. anu. during y^e s^d tearme." ³⁴

This agreement defines more clearly than the former the road which Ireland and Way were to keep in repair; from the foot of Powder Horn Hill, near Mr. Levi Slade's, to Mountain Avenue, easterly of Woodlawn. ³⁵

1695, March 25. "The Agreement made with W^m Ireland & Aron Way to repair the highway at Rumny Marish from Powder horn Hill to M^r. Newgates lot made 27 Oct^r 1661 is continued for 10 years more." ³⁶

With this elaborate description of the highway, referring to houses and lots, it would be possible to locate not only many of the important estates in Winthrop and Revere, but also the position of the dwelling houses on them. The estate called "Col: Shrimptons ground" is that known as the Newgate farm.

John Yeamans, a nephew of Gov. Shute, was, in 1727, the owner of Noddle's Island, where he had his home, and also of the Newgate farm in Revere. A portion of this farm touched Chelsea Creek near the Town Landing, or Slade's Mill, in Revere. For convenience of communication between his estates he conceived the plan of erecting a bridge from East Boston to Chelsea, but between what precise points is not now known. The action of the town was as follows:

1726 [1727] March 14. "Voted on the Petition of John Yemans Esq^r &c. about a Bridge to Nodles Island be Referred to a Co^mitte to Consider and make Report to the next Gen^l Meeting.

It is hardly necessary to say that nothing came of Yeaman's proposition with such terms imposed. Sumner, in his History of East Boston, refers to a similar scheme made by a "Bostonian" in 1796. ⁵⁴

as in Chelsea, they must wind around the sides of the hills, above the marshes, and generally require deep excavations into them. Those who see Washington Avenue to-day, — broad, and presenting no formidable grades, — can have no exact idea of the same road as it was thirty years ago, when it was a narrow road-bed climbing the southerly slope of Powder Horn Hill, or of the cost of putting it into its present condition. The marsh and low lands through which the road ran to Saugus presented equal, though different, difficulties, as is seen by the town votes respecting it.

Following the plan I have adopted, I shall continue to present such items from the town and other records as best show the labor and cost to our ancestors in building and maintaining roads and bridges.⁸¹

The following entry indicates the earliest movement, so far as I have noticed, to build a bridge from Winnisimmet to Charlestown.

At a meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Chelsea on Febyth 3 1796 to see if the Town will take any Measure to obtain a Bridge over Mistick river from Chelsea to Charlstown point . . . The form of a petition to be preferred to the General Court Being read which was as followeth Viz^t
To the Hon^{ble} the Senate and House of representatives in General Court assembled —

The Inhabitants of Chelsea in the County of Suffolk in Town meeting Leagaly assembled this third Day of Febury 1796 Respectfully represent that a Bridge from Chelsea to the east point of Charlstown would be of great publick Conve[n]ance and utility an[d] especially to the Inhabitants of the extreme and populous

Territories lying Northeasterly & easterly of the Metropolis. It is a fact Demonstrated by actual admeasurement that from the Great Eastern road through Chelsea Beginning near a small house Called Black Anns and passing the most Convenient rout to Mistick river and from thence by a Bridge to Charlestown point & Charles river Bridge their is a saving of two miles nearly Compared with the rout over Malden Bridge Which is of great importance when the numbers who Travail or labour on this road to go [to] & from Boston are Considered as losing so much time A Bridge at the place now proposed which is remarkable suitable and secure as it respects nature of the Bottom was earnestly Desired at the time of the Grant of Malden Bridge but the affair was not then pursued from an apprehension that the Travailing would not Support two Bridges These apprehensions are now removed and Considering the Extensive nature of the Grant to the proprioriters of Malden Bridge and their great profit upon their undertaking which are known to have accrued already, to them it is presumed that they will not when so fully Compensated, oppose the prosecution of the Design The Grant of Malden Bridge has taken from this Town all the Advantages they before enjoyed as a princaple evenue to Boston by means of their Ferry and which the little Demand their is for it is Very much neglected, this situation becomes more irksome and Disagreeable, as the inhabitants have occasion to Contemplat the Advantages which the aid of Goverment administered to other places. It being assartained to this Town that Individuals of Sufficernt Abilitys are Discirous to build at their own expense and resque a suitable Bridge to accomadate Traivelling from Chelsea to Charlestown point if leave their for may be obtained from the Legeslature with reasonable allowance tolls and an incorporation for the Security of their property — and this Town freely declaring their Consent to any alteration of the Publick roads that be found neccessary to shorten the Distance Respectfully pray this Hon^{ble} Court that an act of incorporation under Sufficeant regulations and reasonable and allowance may be grainted to Sam^l Cary Aaron Dexter Sam^l Danforth Aaron Putnam Joseph Russell Abijah Hastings Joseph Green James Floyd Jn^r John Sale Jn^r James Stowers Andrew Leach Daniel Moson and their associates and they have leave to Build a Bridge over Mistick river from Chelsea to Charlestown point in the place that shall be found most Convenient.⁹³ —

In October, 1799, the town passed several votes respecting agreements with Malden, for the repair of the "County Bridge" between the two towns.⁹⁵

1801, April 6. "Voted That the town do not object to the turnpike road from Salem to Boston, the Proprietors of said road making good to the town & individuals, all damages sustained by said turnpike road Provided also that the inhabitants of the town have Liberty to use the same within the Limitts of s^d town free from Any Expence. . . . The Selectmen with Henery H Williams & Samuel Cary Esq^f be a Committee, to treat with, inform and enquire of, the Committee for the above turnpike road."

1801, May 13. [The town] accepted the report of the referees, William Sherburn, Elisha Sigourney, and Joseph Barrett, on the subject of a road newly laid out. They reported that they had "heard the parties fully on the subject of dispute and after mature consideration" they were "of Opinion that the town of Chelsea ought to pay M^r Ezekiel

They wished to build a "Bridge over Mystic River from the East Point of Charlestown, called Moulton's Point, to Chelsea Shore near Winisimett Ferry-Way." February 25, a hearing was appointed for the May court. The project was opposed by the proprietors of Malden Bridge, and by Henry Howell Williams, proprietor of Winnisimmet Ferry. June 17, 1796, the matter was referred to the second Wednesday of the next session, but was not called up on that date. Mass. Archives, Senate Doc. No. 2123.]

SALEM TURNPIKE

1801, October 12. "That the Committee Chosen April 6th 1801 Respecting the Turnpike Road & Bridge Between Salem & Boston be desired to Attend on s^d business at the next session of the Gen^l Court, Agreeable to the Vote of the town April 6th 1801."

List of Persons whose land was taken for Salem Turnpike, as laid out by the Committee appointed by the Court of General Sessions of the Peace for Suffolk County, March 28, 1803. Said road was laid out as follows: viz, over the Rivers, four rods on each side of the staked line; over the marshes, forty-two feet on the southeast side and ninety feet on the northwest side; and over the upland four rods wide, that is, two rods on each side of the line; and over the marsh and creek near Cheever's brickyard, eight rods wide, to wit, six rods on the southeast side, and two rods on the northwest side of the staked line. John H. Proctor, of Revere, has a copy of the plan as laid out.⁹⁶

1804, January 23. David Floyd and Samuel Low were chosen a committee to oppose "a road contemplated by Richard Shute of Lynn & others leading to the Westward of Boyintons Hill so call'd." Also chose Dr. Jonathan P. ⁹⁹ [In January, 1804, the Newburyport Turnpike Corporation petitioned the General Court for permission to build the road to Malden instead of to Chelsea Bridge. Owing to a request for a new bridge over Charles River, action was deferred until February, 1805, when a committee was appointed to view the ground. It reported March 1, "that the difference in distance on an Air line" from the point to which the road was then completed, Rand's corner, was fourteen rods in favor of Chelsea Bridge, but "considering the Nature of the Ground" they thought a better and shorter road could be built with less expense to Malden than to Chelsea Bridge. Directors of Salem Turnpike & Chelsea Bridge." Nathaniel Hall, Samuel Low, and Joseph Stowers were chosen a committee "to act respecting a Petition of the Salem Turnpike road & Chelsea Bridge Corporation for moving their Turnpike Gate on to said Bridge," for opposing said petition.¹⁰⁰

1806, May 5. An article in the warrant for the meeting was: "To see if the Town will permit Wil^m Hall and Others to work on the Highways near Chelsea Bridge & erect Guide Post near the same under the direction of a Surveyor free of expence to the Town."

Voted that he should not have liberty to do this.

1816, May 6. Voted to oppose Ebenezer Breed's petition to the General Court for a bridge from Hog Island to Mrs. Cary's farm in Chelsea.¹⁰¹

1822, March 16. The town raised the question whether the passage through "Breeds Bridge (so called)" could be "enlarged, and made more convenient for Vessels."

1824, April 5. "Voted That the Town purchase a Vessel load of wood & prosecute John Breed for all damage & cost by detention in passing his Bridge, in bringing the same to the Towns landing, he first being notified of the same."

1827, May 7. "Voted, That the Towns Representative advocate the cause of the Charlestown free Bridge."

¹⁰⁰ [William Gray et al., Proprietors of Salem Turnpike and Chelsea Bridge, explaining that by their act of incorporation they could place but one toll-gate between Breed's Island in Lynn and Mystic River, and that at present teams evaded the toll by slipping round the toll-house on the old road, petitioned the General Court for permission to move the toll-gate to the eastern draw of the bridge. By order of the Court a hearing was appointed for June 13. A joint committee of the two houses advised that the petitioners have leave to withdraw their petition, but the Senate did not accept the report. Twice permission was given to bring in a bill, but in both cases consideration was postponed. (Mass. Archives, House Docs., 5642, 5643, 5829, 5858; House Journal, May 30, June 8, 1805; March 8, June 19, 20, 1806; Feb. 14, 1807; etc.) In 1827, the toll-house stood at the entrance to the bridge just south of Dr. Dexter's gate. Mass. Archives, Maps and Plans, 1826; supra, vol. i. 58, 59; infra, p. 176.]

¹⁰¹ [January 12, 1816, John Breed petitioned the General Court to be allowed to build this bridge, and January 20 the Court, after reference to a committee, ordered a notice of a hearing published. January 27 the selectmen of Chelsea petitioned for a postponement in order that the matter might be placed before a town meeting, as the "Bridge would be nearly a mile below the landing place on said tide waters, where a great quantity of wood is annually landed for the consumption of the inhabitants of said Town & where considerable other business is done." The petition came up a third time in June, 1816, and was granted. Mass. Archives, papers filed with chap. 31 of the Acts of 1816.]

CHELSEA BRIDGES

"The Chelsea free bridge, 690 feet long, was constructed across Chelsea Creek by a company incorporated on the twenty-eighth of March, 1834. It extends from the northerly end of Chelsea street in East Boston to a point in Chelsea, formerly a part of the farm of the late Dr. Benjamin Shurtleff, who gave a road through his land for the benefit of free travel. The corporators named in the act were Messrs. Benjamin T. Reed, Amos Binney, and John Henshaw. The bridge was opened for passengers in October, 1834.¹⁰² It was rebuilt in 1848, and on the eleventh of May, 1857, its name was changed to Chelsea street bridge. It is kept in repair by the cities of Boston and Chelsea.

"The East Boston free bridge, now called Meridian street bridge, 1,515 feet long, was built by a company consisting of Messrs. Henry D. Gardiner, Morrill Cole, Watson G. Mayo, and others, who were incorporated on the fifteenth of May, 1855. It was purchased by the city and completed in December, 1856, and extends from the northwest part of East Boston to Pearl street in Chelsea.

"The Chelsea Point bridge, 570 feet in length, was built by a company incorporated on the first of April, 1835, and was opened for travel in the fall of 1839. It crosses a wide creek which separates the easterly end of Breed's Island from Pulling Point in the town of Winthrop. The corporators were Messrs. Joseph Burrill, Joseph Belcher, and John W. Tewksbury. The city was authorized, by an act passed on the seventeenth of April, 1849, to purchase this bridge, and on the first of July, 1850, it was laid out as a highway."¹⁰³

¹⁰² 1835. Letter of Franklin Dexter and others to the Secretary of the Treasury, asking that the Winnisimmet Company might, at its expense, make a continuation of its marginal road, not less than thirty nor more than fifty feet wide, over the beach belonging to the United States [between Pearl and Shurtleff streets]. This request was accompanied by a plan showing the proposed extension, and the site of the old Shurtleff house and barn, which stood on the Eustis farm. The Secretary, Levi Woodbury, thought that the request should be laid before Congress, and it may have been. 24 Cong. U. S., 1 Sess. House Doc. 18. [An act authorizing this road was passed by Congress, and approved by the President July 1, 1836. House Journal, 24 Cong. 1 Sess., p. 1182. This road, the present Marginal Street, extended northward to Chelsea Street bridge.]

*Petition of Chelsea in opposition to Malden Bridge, 1786*⁸

To the honorable Senate and House of Representatives in General Court assembled

The Petition and Remonstrance of the Town of Chelsea respectfully sheweth

⁷ The endorsement on the paper.

⁸ Mass. Archives, filed with chap. 69 of Acts of 1786. With it was filed a paper to show that the distance from the "N. House" to Winnisimmet was 4 miles 93 rods; to Penny Ferry 5 miles 46 (or 37) rods. In April, 1796, a new road was laid out that shortened the distance to Malden Bridge. An unsigned petition from Medford pointed out that Newbury, Salem, and Marblehead had not supported the petition for the bridge, "And perhaps

That having been informed by a Committee from the Town of Medford that a Petition is before your Honors for Liberty to build a Bridge over the North River at a Place called Penny-Ferry, which they say would be of ruinous Consequences to their Town and we think would do us an irreparable Injury by depriving us of the Advantages from Winnisimmet Ferry; we therefore assure ourselves of your Honors deliberate and impartial Attention to the Subject. Perceiving the present Humor for Bridge building, we had in Contemplation to petition for a Bridge from Chelsea to Molton's Point; which would prove to be of less Detriment to the Town of Medford; of much greater Advantage to the Public, and insure much higher Profits to the Undertakers than a Bridge at Penny Ferry; as every impartial person acquainted with the local Situation and the Travelling on the eastern Road must be sensible. But upon a careful Estimate; we found, a Bridge, tho' in a Situation so much preferable, would promise a great Loss to the Proprietors; and therefore we declined it.

As the proposed Bridge over Penny Ferry is much a Novelty in this Neighbourhood, and appears to us to be pushed with much zeal by a few interested Persons, and apprehending from it the inestimable Injuries to the Towns of Medford and Chelsea would vastly over balance any pretended Prospects of public Utility, and the Nature of the Thing being vastly too important and interesting to admit of a sudden Decision; so, for these weighty Reasons we most earnestly beg your Honors to defer the Matter, for this Session at least, that the Subject may be better investigated and understood. But if your Honors in Wisdom should think otherwise we must in justice to ourselves further observe, for this reason, because they had rather put up at Winnisimmet, & pass over that ferry than to travel two or three miles out of their way, pay the tolls of two bridges, and put up their horses in Boston, where horsekeeping is much dearer." They added that "eleven years since the British troops burnt the ferry house on Malden side, & destroyed the ferry," which had not been re-established, as the hope of profit was slight. Dr. Samuel Danforth signed the petition for Malden bridge.

That as we already suffer a Loss of three thousand Dollars in Consequence of an unhappy Mistake in the Valuation of 1781, so if your Honors should direct the bridge to be erected at Penny Ferry and thereby entirely strip us of the Advantages that accrue from our Ferry and consequently of all Traveling thro' the Town, we rest assured that you will do us the Justice, which cannot be denied us, of transferring, by the same Act that shall convey our Right and Privilege to the Town of Malden, an adequate Proportion of our public Taxes.

And your Petitioners as in Duty bound will ever pray &c^a

ECCLESIASTICAL

THE population of Winnisimmet, Rumney Marsh, and Pullen Point between 1635 and 1680 is uncertain; but in 1688 the number of rateable estates was twenty-five, and, allowing five persons to each, there would have been a hundred and twenty-five inhabitants.¹ From the outset circumstances had not favored rapid increase of population. In Winnisimmet, now Chelsea, there were probably not more than five families — those of Elias Maverick, and of the four tenants on the great Bellingham farms.² A large part of Rumney Marsh, now Revere, was included in the Keayne, Newgate, Tuttle, and Cogan estates, and there was a similar state of things at Pullen Point, now Winthrop. The estates were too large, and the non-resident proprietors too many, to promote rapid settlement.³ For these and other reasons the precincts at the north of Boston and forming parts of it grew less rapidly than those communities which had separate municipal organizations, and were comparatively late in coming to their scanty religious and educational privileges.

² [There were two houses on the Maverick farm, — one occupied by the widow of Elias Maverick and her son Paul, the other by Elias Maverick, Jr. The farmhouse of William Ireland and Aaron Way was also within the limits of the present city of Chelsea.]

³ [In December, 1771, Jonathan Green and Samuel Watts, in a petition to the court as agents of Chelsea, which wished to be relieved from the necessity of sending two jurors to every court, said that there were then eighty-eight non-resident proprietors, some of whom made use of the land they owned, while the tenants of others were men of small substance, hence there were only thirty men in the town qualified to serve as jurors, and several of these were over seventy years of age, and ordinarily excused by the court. Suff. Early Court Files, No. 102,015.]

Lechford says in 1641: "Where farmes or villages are, as at Rumney-marsh and Marblehead, there a Minister, or a brother of one of the congregations of Boston for the Marsh, and of Salem for Marblehead, preacheth and exerciseth prayer every Lords day, which is called prophesying in such a place."⁴

And Savage says: "In Keayne's MS. it appears, that, in our church, early in 1640, 'a motion was made by such as have farms at Rumney Marsh, that our brother Oliver may be sent to instruct their servants, and to be a help to them, because they cannot many times come hither, nor sometimes to Lynn, and sometimes nowhere at all.' On this much debate followed. His father spoke first: 'I desire what calling my son hath to such a work, or by what rule of God's word may the church send out any of her members to such as are not of the church.' Cotton answered, at some length. Two of the lay brethren proposed objections, to which Wilson briefly replied, and the subject was postponed. On 23 March, Wilson made a full statement of the general consent of the church, and the candidate closed thus: 'Serjeant Oliver. I desire to speak a word or two to the business of Rumney Marsh. I am apt to be discouraged in any good work, and I am glad, that there is a universal consent in the hearts of the church; for if there should have been variety in their thoughts, or compulsion of their minds, it would have been a great discouragement. But, seeing a call of God, I hope I shall employ my weak talent to God's service; and, considering my own youth and feebleness to so great a work, I shall desire my loving brethren to look at me as their brother, to send me out with their constant prayers.' From his will, I find, he married a daughter of John Newgate, and left three children, two sons, and a daughter, who afterwards married a gentleman of the name of Wiswell."⁵

John Oliver, the son of Thomas Oliver, graduated at Harvard College in 1645, and died of a malignant fever in 1646.

Winthrop says: "It swept away some precious ones amongst us, especially one Mr. John Oliver, a gracious young man, not full thirty years of age, an expert soldier, an excellent surveyor of land, and one who, for the sweetness of his disposition and usefulness through a public spirit, was generally beloved, and greatly lamented. For some few years past he had given up himself to the ministry of the gospel, and was become very hopeful that way, (being a good scholar and of able gifts otherwise, and had exercised publicly for two years)." ⁶

Samuel Maverick, writing about 1660, says of Rumney Marsh, "There are many good farmes belonging to Bostone, which have a Metting House, as it were a Chapel of Ease." ⁷

Some of the inhabitants of Rumney Marsh had church relations with the Boston church in 1665 as appears thus:

"These do testifie vnto the honoured Gen. Court y^t m^r John Tuttle, William Hasie, and Benjamin Muzzie of Boston — Rumnie marsh, are vpon Good testimony of others, and my owne knowledge or experience both orthodox in the Christian Religion, and of unblameable conversation, as I do believe, and doe humbly comend them therfore vnto the Acceptance of the hon. Court, into the Society and Companie of our freemen, according as they expresse their desires therevnto, and Aymes at the Common Good therein. 2^d d. of the 3 m. 65.

John Wilson Senior.

Hezekiah Vsher." ⁸

⁶ Savage, Winthrop, ii. 257. See also ibid., i. 96, note (2) for some account of the Oliver Family. [Sibley, Harvard Graduates, i. 102-106.]

⁸ Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., xii. 105. Muzzey, who was tenant of the Keayne farm in Revere, and Tuttle and Hasey, who lived not far from the Winthrop road, were, in 1665, members of the First Church in Boston. Going to church was a serious undertaking for those who had to cross an uncertain ferry, besides the long travel from Revere to the water side. [William Hasey could go by boat from the landing place on his farm (supra, vol. i. p. 244). Muzzey and Tuttle required the certificate of a Boston minister; they may have attended church in Malden or Lynn.] Every citizen or freeman as he was called, must not only be a member of the church, but also in "good and regular standing." Citizenship was conferred by the General Court on petition, and as in this case, with a certificate of church-membership and good character. Massachusetts was

On this testimony, May 3, 1665, W^m Hazzey and Benj. Muzzezy were admitted freemen.⁹

What local religious privileges, save those above mentioned, the inhabitants of Winnisimmet and Rumney Marsh enjoyed before the formation of the church in 1715,¹⁰ under Thomas Cheever is now a matter of conjecture. For many years previous to that date Cheever had resided at Rumney Marsh, where he owned an estate.¹¹

He taught the children there as early as 1709, perhaps earlier, and may have preached there before the organization of the church. The following vote of the town of Boston indicates the earliest movement towards the erection of a meeting-house at Rumney Marsh.

March 11, 1705/6. " . . . next was read the Petition of Sundry of the Inhabit^{ts} of Rumny Marsh abt^t the building a meeting house there. . . .

settled by a land company which was a close corporation. It claimed the right to determine who should be members of it and vote in its affairs. It was an age of sects and schisms; but the Puritans allowed no sectaries other than themselves in their community, or at least with power to vote in their affairs. Consequently, those who became citizens, that is, members of the corporation, were voted in. If they did not conduct themselves to suit the majority, they voted them out. An understanding of these facts furnishes a key to much that seems extraordinary in their proceedings.

[In 1664, in response to the King's letter of June 28, 1662, the General Court changed the law as to freemen, voting that men twenty-four years of age, "householders and settled inhabitants in this jurisdiction," might be admitted as freemen by vote of the General Court on "presenting a certificate, vnder the hands of the ministers or minister of the place where they dwell, that they are orthodox in religion, & not vitious in their liues, & also a certificate, vnder the hands of the selectmen of the place, or of the major part of them, that they are freeholders, & are for their owne proper estate (wthout heads of psons) rateable to the country in a single country rate . . . to the full value of tenne shillings, or that they are in full communion wth some church amongst vs." (Mass. Col. Rec., iv. pt. ii. 117.) The certificate in the text meets the requirements of the first alternative. William Hasey was not a church member, as his children in 1664 and earlier were baptized in the right of his wife. When John Tuttle and William Hasey were nominated to the General Court at the October session in 1662 for lieutenant and cornet of the Three County Troop, a certificate was demanded that they "be circumstanced as the law provides." At the session beginning May 3, 1665, the court approved their election, and ordered the Secretary to give them their commissions. Mass. Col. Rec., iv. pt. ii. 66, 149.]

1706, March 29. The committee thus appointed not being "fully prepared to make report thereof" were "continued in that Service until the next meeting"; and on June 10, to "the next Publick meeting in March," 1706/7, — which carried the subject over into the next year. Even then, March 10, 1706/7, it was voted "that the Committee ab^t the Petition of Severall of the Inhabitants of Rumny marsh ab^t building a meeting House there, be continued and desired further to prepare and make report of what they thinck proper to offer in that affaire unto next Gen^l meeting of this Town."

Two years passed before the matter was again considered.¹³ In the meantime the people had become impatient of the delay.

1708/9, March 14. "Whereas Sundry of the Inhabitants of Rumny marsh being present and desireing that their Petition (formerly given in & lying on file wth the Town Records, praying a Grant of Sutable encourag^{mt} in Order to their building a Meeting House) may be further considered and Granted.

"Voted. That the Survivers of the former Committee thereunto Appointed Viz^t Elisha Cook Esq^r Elisha Hutchinson Esq^r

¹² Town Records in Boston Rec. Com. Rep., viii. 35, 36.

¹³ [Presumably these postponements were to await the issue of an effort to validate the will of Governor Bellingham. The petition for the building of the meeting-house was presented to the Boston town-meeting during a lull in these proceedings. (Supra, vol. i. pp. 536, 537.) Shortly thereafter Allen renewed the struggle. Thus in February, 1704/5, James Allen petitioned the General Court, but without success. In July and August, 1706, he renewed his efforts. Defeated before the General Court, the contest was transferred to the law courts. At the January term, 1706/7, a judgment was rendered at the Inferior Court in favor of James Allen. If carried into execution it would have obviated all need of help from the town treasury. The appeal of Edward Watts against this decision of the court was to come before the Superior Court at the term beginning on the first Tuesday of May, 1707. Final judgment against the will was not rendered until the May term of court, 1708. At the next annual meeting of the town the people of Rumney Marsh revived their petition, as stated in the text.]

Sam^{ll} Sewall Esquire, Penn Townsend Esq^r unto w^{ch} committee is now Added Edward Bromfeeld Esq^r who are desired to Consider of that Affaire and to make report to the Town at their next Meeting of what they Shall thinck proper for y^e Town to do therein."

1709, April 29. "Agreeable to the report now made by the Committee apointed at y^e Last meeting to consider about building a meeting House at Rumny Marsh.

"Voted. a Grant of One hundred pounds to be raised and Laid out in building a meeting House at Rumny Marsh.

"Voted. That the afor Said Committee . . . are appointed and impowered to direct, both as to the place and manner of Erecting S^d meeting House." ¹⁴

But the scheme of a new meeting-house met with opposition from some of the principal inhabitants at Runney Marsh, as appears from the following paper: ¹⁵

Save as stated by themselves, their objections are conjectural. Colonel Paige worshipped at Malden. Elisha Bennett lived in the extreme northerly part of the town near Lynn, and the Bill family at Pullen Point, — all remote from the site of the proposed new edifice.¹⁶ There is no reference to this remonstrance on the records, nor did it delay the enterprise; for Sewall records:¹⁷

1710, July 10. "Mr. Jn^o Marion and I went to Rumney-Marsh to the Raising of their Meetinghouse. I drove a Pin, gave a 5^s Bill, had a very good Treat at Mr. Chievers's; went and came by Winnisimmet. . . .

It is generally thought that the present church edifice, now owned by the Unitarian Society in Revere, is the structure erected in 1710, and referred to above by Sewall.¹⁹ It appears that before the erection of the meeting-house of 1710, there was an old meeting-house standing, as is the tradition, nearly

¹⁸ Three months later, the heirs of Lieutenant Joseph Hasey, undoubtedly in accordance with their earlier agreement, gave the land by a deed, the substance of which is as follows:

Elisha Tuttle, Sr., Asa Hasey, and Abraham Hasey, sons of Lieutenant Joseph Hasey, reciting that, "Whereas upon the Petition of the Inhabitants of Rumney Marsh unto the Inhabitants of Boston aforesd laying before them the great need [they] had of a Convenient place to meet in for the attending the publick Worship of God on the Lords day and at other times the Inhabitants of sd Town at a Generall Town meeting did grant unto the Petrs an hundred pounds towards the building a meeting house," and chose Hon. Elisha Cooke, Colonel Elisha Hutchinson, Samuel Sewall, Esq., Colonel Penn Townsend, and Edward Bromfield, Esq., a committee to see to the laying out of said £100: Now, therefore, "for the promoting so good a work" we grant unto them, for the use of the inhabitants of Rumney Marsh, a certain tract of land "thirty feet from North to South and thirty four feet from East to West for sd. house to stand upon and ten feet more to measure from the backside of sd. house Northward and twenty feet more to measure from the East end of sd. house and forty feet more to measure from the South side of sd. house," which is "bounded by the highway on the Westerly side." October 6, 1710. Suff. Deeds, L. 33, f. 244. This conveyance was not easily traced on the records.

[Apparently this lot stood on the town road on the dividing line between the Tuttle and Hasey farms. The conveyance was a deed of gift.]

opposite the present Orthodox meeting-house. The records speak of its occasional use for a schoolhouse, for town meetings and for other purposes as late as the early years of the War of the Revolution, after which no more is said of it. In 1660 Maverick speaks of a meeting-house, and about 1750 we hear of two known as the old and the new meeting-houses.²⁰

²⁰ September 3, 1759. Voted Samuel Floyd, Jonathan Hawks, and Samuel Pratt "be a committe to find a spot of ground to set a pound upon and that they make enquire who are the lawful owners of the spot of ground where the old meeting House stood." In August, 1755, a meeting-house was built at Point Shirley, and after this the meeting-house in Revere, where the town meetings were frequently held, was commonly called the old meeting-house. May 18, 1756, the town of Chelsea voted that the tax collected at Point Shirley for the support of the ministry should be expended there, and this vote was repeated in succeeding years.]

As a town burial-ground was generally considered a proper adjunct to the meeting-house, which was town property, I anticipate the history of the former by giving the following votes, though they relate only by inference to the present burial place, which had been in use more than half a century. [Supra, vol. i. pp. 238, 239.]

March 7, 1743. The town voted to accept a convenient piece of land for a burying place from Joshua Cheever, Esq. Town Rec. i. 11.

"Extract from the will of Elder Joshua Cheever late of Boston 1752, L. 45, f. 303. 'Item, the Burying ground in my Land at Chelsea I give the same to the said Town for ever for that use only, with so much more Land Contiguous as shall be necessary for that use, with a Convenient way to Carry their Dead to said burying ground, reserving to my heirs, executors administrators & assigns forever the Herbage.'" Ibid., ii. 108.

May 14, 1804. Joseph Green, Samuel Low, and Seth Copland, "to enquire into the right priviledge the town have or may have in passing to and from their burying ground." Ibid., 203. The way to the Burial Ground was defined Nov. 4, 1812, and was substantially the same as it now is. Ibid., iii. 5, 9, 10. [See also supra, vol. i. p. 218.]

[UNLIKE the custom of country towns in New England, the churches of Boston were maintained by voluntary contributions, not by a town rate; its inhabitants attended the church of their choice. Some living in Rumney Marsh joined the church in Lynn, which was accessible by land when Boston harbor was blocked with ice. For the farmers living along the "Country road" to Lynn, and especially for those living in the "Panhandle," this was the most accessible church, until the one in Malden was gathered. Thomas Stocker and his wife, tenants on the Cogan farm, belonged to the Lynn church.¹ Capt. Robert Keayne left legacies to the two Teaching Elders of the church at Lynn.² Edward Holyoke lived in Lynn before he married the widow of Richard Tuttle, and his daughter, wife of John Tuttle, was a member of Lynn church.³ When a church was gathered at Rumney Marsh in 1715 Edward Tuttle, Sr., was received from the church at Lynn, and was "dismissed back" June 29, 1718. It was then discovered that his wife Abigail had never transferred her membership from Lynn to Rumney Marsh. Four years later Elisha Tuttle was received from the Lynn church.

William Stitson and Elias Maverick, two of the earliest residents of Winnisimmet, joined the church in Charlestown, which was nearer than Boston both by water and by land. In 1678 Elias Maverick advocated the election of Daniel Russell to the pastorate of the church, and was appointed on a committee to tender the office to him.⁴ The children of Elias Maverick, Jr., and of Paul Maverick were baptized by the pastor of Charlestown.⁵

Shortly after John Oliver died⁶ a church was gathered at Malden.⁷ Rev. Michael Wigglesworth was ordained as its pastor in 1657. Its early records have been lost, but it is known that some inhabitants of Rumney Marsh attended church there. John Doolittle of the Cogan farm left a legacy to its pastor.⁸ His successor John Floyd, who lived for a few years in Malden, was an attendant there, and John Floyd's son Hugh did not transfer his church membership from Malden to Rumney Marsh until 1724.⁹ Henry Green, at one time tenant of the Newgate farm, Isaac Lewis, tenant of the little Keayne farm and in 1691 purchaser of the Weeden farm, and John Chamberlain, tenant of the Dudley farm, lived in Malden before settling in Rumney Marsh. Nicholas Paige of the Keayne farm owned a pew in Malden church. Ensign John Center, whose mother was a member of the First Church in Boston, and whose wife was a member of the North Church, subscribed for the enlarging of Malden meeting-house in 1703, as did also Thomas Pratt of the Way-Ireland farm and Daniel Hutchens of the "Panhandle." John Brintnall and his family attended Malden church; his grandsons, John and Benjamin Brintnall, did not remove their church relations from Malden to Chelsea, until after Rev. William McClenachan was settled in 1748.¹⁰

In 1650 the North Church was built, and as it stood near the landing-place of Winnisimmet Ferry, it was the Boston church most frequented by the people of Rumney Marsh. When Increase Mather escaped secretly on his mission to England in 1688, he was carried "by certain well-disposed Young Men of his Flock" from his brother-in-law's house in Charlestown to Aaron Way's, and thence by night to the ship in the harbor.¹¹ Aaron Way joined Mather's church in 1661, and in 1698 his widow and children were dismissed by it to South Carolina.¹² Of the tenants on the Bellingham farms Samuel and Elizabeth Townsend joined the North Church September 18, 1681. William Eustace, second of the name, owned the covenant there in 1713, and with his wife Sarah was admitted to membership January 15, 1720/1; and his brother Joseph was admitted March 24, 1689. Ruth, wife of the second John Center, joined this church February 7, 1691/2, and her children were baptized there. Thomas Townsend of the Parker, later the Cheever, farm joined the North Church October 30, 1681, and his children's baptisms were recorded there. The children of his father-in-law, Samuel Davis, his predecessor on the farm, were baptized by the pastor of the First Church. William Hasey, second of the name, joined the North Church April 14, 1678. His children were baptized by its pastor. In 1715 William and Asa Hasey were dismissed from the North Church to join in organizing the church at Rumney Marsh. The children of the first William Hasey were baptized by the pastor of the First Church in the right of his wife, as were also the children of his neighbors, Edward and Elizabeth Weeden. Apparently James Bill, Sr., of Pulling Point attended the North Church; he and his wife were buried on Copp's Hill.

Cotton Mather, pastor of the North Church, recorded in his diary¹³ at the end of his thirty-first year, 1693: "Memorandum: (Tho' tis hardly worth Remembring) Many Families of my Flock, residing on t'other side the water, putt themselves unto considerable Trouble, every Lords-day, to attend upon my Ministry. Now, tho' it would be a considerable Diminution of my Auditory, yet J have often called upon them, to gather and settle a church, among themselves, and offered them all the Assistance that J could possibly give them, in their doing so. At Length, perceiving, that ye Thing which hindred them, was, That it would bee too great an Expence, for so small a Village, to maintain their Minister themselves J made them an offer, that if they would furnish themselves with a worthy Minister, J would assist his maintenance as far as J could, and even abate my own poor Salary for it. They wondred at the generosity of these Tenders, and J glorified y^e Lord Jesus Christ, & His Gospel, by making them. Nevertheless, they never Accepted y^m "

At the close of the diary for his thirty-ninth year (1701) he defended his opposition to the establishment of the Brattle Square church against the charge of self-interest, insisting that such a charge was manifestly unjust toward a minister who was "of such a Temper, that perceiving a considerable & valuable part of his Flock, to putt themselves unto a deal of Trouble, to attend upon his ministry (by passing a Large Ferry Every Lords-Day) he shall one year after another call upon these Beloved Christians, to leave his ministry, & sett up a New church by themselves, & sett up a worthy pastor over them, to support whom, he shall offer to Contribute not a Little, and part with some of his own Salary."¹³ The two Boston churches invited to the council which ordained Rev. Thomas Cheever in 1715 were the North Church, and its daughter, the New North Church.

February 10, 1701/2, Cotton Mather recorded in his diary that he had established many "Religious private meetings, among the ¹³ MSS. Collections of Mass. Hist. Soc.

Christians in my Neighbourhood," and that he had "at least Thirteen or Fourteen of these (besides my vast Congregation) under my charge. They unavoidably demand of me, a deal of Time, and Care, & expensive Industry; nor do J know any minister upon Earth at this day, that has ye like Number to look after."¹⁴ Presumably such neighborhood meetings were held by his parishioners at Rumney Marsh.

The petition from Rumney Marsh read in the Boston town meeting March 11, 1705/6, has not been found. The initiation of the movement at that precise time was probably due to the course of events in Malden, and was also influenced by the contest over Governor Bellingham's will.¹⁵ Nine months before, on June 10, 1705, Rev. Michael Wigglesworth died, and a long strife ensued before David Parsons was settled in 1709. May 7, 1706, Cotton Mather recorded in his diary: "The church of Malden, has long been embroil'd with much contention and confusion." He hoped that his going thither to serve as moderator at their church meeting would "putte a just period unto their Differences, and also diverte ye Trouble of an Ecclesiastical Council, which was preparing to come unto them."¹⁶ The petition which opposed the building of a meeting-house at Rumney Marsh, was presented several months after the installation of Rev. David Parsons. Of the men who signed this petition Nicholas Paige owned a pew in Malden meeting-house, John Center and Thomas Pratt had contributed to its rebuilding in 1703/4, and John Brintnall is known to have been an attendant there. Elisha Bennett, Thomas Berry, William Bordman, John Lamson, Thomas Marble, John Wait, Samuel Breeden, all lived in what was later known as "Chelsea Panhandle," a narrow strip of land between Malden and Lynn.

While this latter petition was circulating at Rumney Marsh, the following presentments were made. At the January term of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, 1709/10, William Colmer of Rumney Marsh was presented "for absenting himself from the Publick Worship of God: appeared, and not producing Evidence to Evince the Contrary" was fined five shillings and costs. He was also "presented for Drunkenness, appeared and denyed the same, and being Convict thereof by the Oaths of two Witnesses" was fined five shillings and costs. Jonathan Tuttle was presented for absence from public worship, "owned the same," and was fined as above.¹⁷ This is the first instance on record of the presentment of an inhabitant of Rumney Marsh for non-attendance at church. Two years later, at the April term of Court, 1712, "John Trumbal of Rumney Marsh being presented by the Grand Jury for absenting himself from the Publick Worship, Appeared and pleaded Illness and Indisposition of Body, was admonished & upon promise of amendment was dismissed he paying Costs of Court."¹⁸

At the August session of the same court in 1714, "Jonathan Bill and Joshua Bill Sons of Joshua Bill of Pulling point being presented for hunting and killing Foxes on the Sabbath Day in the latter End of April or the beginning of May last past, the aforementioned Jonathan Bill Appeared and being heard thereon Ordered That upon the said Bill's paying Costs the presentment be dismissed."]¹⁹

Rev. Thomas Cheever

THOMAS CHEEVER,¹ son of Ezekiel, the famous school-master, was born at Ipswich, Massachusetts, August 23, 1658, and graduated at Harvard College in 1677. He was admitted to the First Church of Boston, July, 1680, and took the Freeman's oath the following October 13th. He began to preach in Malden February 14, 1679/80, at the age of twenty-one, and was there ordained as colleague of Michael Wigglesworth, author of "The Day of Doom," July 27, 1681. Like most of the clergy of that day, he was not without interest in political affairs. Edward Randolph, the "evil genius of New England," arrived in Boston October 26, 1683, with the writ of quo warranto against the Massachusetts Charter, and in the narrative of his proceedings read to the Privy Council March 11, 1683/4, he says: "About 7 or 8 dayes before the Generall Assembly broak vp, a libellous Paper was dispers'd in Boston highly reflecting vpon yo^r Ma^ts Proceedings against that Colony, as directly contrary to yo^r. Mat^s Gracious Letters formerly sent them, and further adding, That the late Declaration relating to the horrid Conspiracy was butt a sham plott &^a. That the Govern^r. Magistrates and Ministers were greivous Backsliders and betrayers of their Libertyes and Country &^a. It was verily beleived that one Cheefers a young hott headed Minister was the Author of that Paper, not without the Privacy of some of the Deputyes, and therefore great Endeavours were vsed to gett the matter Smothered." ²

Two years later he encountered far more serious charges. March 15, 1685/6, Sewall writes in his diary: "Mr. Wigglesworth here, speaks about a Council respecting Mr. Thomas Chiever." And again, March 28, "Letter read from Maldon directed to the three Churches in Boston, desiring Council respecting their Pastor Mr. Tho. Chiever, who is charg'd with scandalous immoralities, for which [he] hath not given satisfaction.”³ Sewall gives an account⁴ of the proceedings of the Council at Malden April 7, 1686, which he attended. Increase Mather was moderator. Cheever met the witnesses face to face, and his venerable father, who desired to be present, “was admitted and bid wellcom, except when Council debated in private all alone.” The Council found Thomas Cheever accused of “scandalous breaches” of the third and seventh⁵ commandments, and that the evidence seemed to be satisfactory. The Church at Malden had declined all testimony of alleged transactions before his ordination, and some of a later date where the witnesses seemed prejudiced or incompetent; and the Council, on the same considerations, waived such testimony. Cheever denied many of the charges, and pretended not to remember as to others; but the Council found that he had been “too much accustomed to an evil course of Levity and Profaneness,” and advised the church to suspend him “from the Exercise of his ministerial Function; and also to debar him from partaking with them at the Lord’s Table, for the space of Six Weeks, untill which time the Council will adjourn themselves, to meet at Boston. And that in case he shall in the mean while manifest that Repentance which the Rule requires, they should confirm their Love to him, and (if possible) improve him again in the Lord’s Work among them.”⁶

At this adjournment the Council reported as follows, the original of which is in my possession:⁷

“The Elders & Messengers of y^e Churches assembled in Council April 7. 1686 at y^e desire of the Church in Maldon, having upon adjournment mett at Boston May 20 & 27 & June 10, and there taken the state of that Church into further consideration, do declare & advise as followeth;

I. Inasmuch as wee understand that Mr Thom^s Cheever has now declared, that as to y^e scandalous words which have been

⁵ [These breaches were the use of “light and obscene expressions (not fit to be named) in an Ordinary at Salem,” and “as he was travailing on the Rode.” Ibid., 21*, 22*.]

⁶ [Rev. Michael Wigglesworth, in thanking the Council, said the church “had cause to condemn themselves, as for other sins, so their sudden laying Hands on Mr. Chiever; and now God was whipping them with a Rod of their own making.” (Ibid., 23*). The church was also rebuked by the Council, — “for not observing the Rules of Christ, in endeavouring to prevent Evils by giving seasonable notice to Mr. Chiever of their Dissatisfactions,” and for “that want of Love, and for that bitterness of Spirit, which appears in sundry of them.” See also Corey, Malden, chap. ix. Mr. Corey is a descendant of Rev. Thomas Cheever.]

⁷ [Chamberlain MSS., A. 45, Boston Public Library.]

Testified and proved against him, he doth know and with shame and sorrow confess that he has spoken words of y^e same nature more then is charged upon him, and doth not deny but he might use those very expressions which are by y^e witnesses mentioned, and that he doth judge himself before God and man, as one that has exposed Religion and y^e ministry to Reproach, opened y^e mouthes of y^e wicked, sadned y^e hearts of y^e Lords Servants, for which he beggs Pardon of God & his People. And considering that some of y^e Bretheren testify, that they have observed his Late conversation to be humble & Penitent, Wee conceive that y^e church in Maldon may without breach of y^e Rule so far confirm their Love to him, as to Restore him to their cōmunion, & to grant him a Loving Dismission to some church according as himself shall desire. We therefore cōmend to their consideration these Scriptures following. 2 Cor. 2, 7, 8. 1 Cor. 13, 4, 7. Deut. 29, 29.

II. Since it is not Probable that M^r Cheever's continuance in Maldon, nor yet the Present exercise of his ministry there, will tend to y^e Peace of that Place, or to y^e Edification of y^e church, nor to his own comfort: wee advise him, the said M^r Cheever to request his dismission, and we advise y^e church to comply with his desires therein. This counsel we conceive to be grounded on such Scriptures as these, 2 Cor. [. . .] and 12, 19. 2. Thess. 3, 16. 1 Tim. 3, 7.

III. Wee advise the Church & Congregation of Maldon duely to incourage and to hold in Reputation their Rever^d & faithful Teacher M^r Wigglesworth, according as God in his word does require them to do. 1. Thess. 5, 12, 13. And that they Conscientiously endeavour to live and Love as Bretheren, forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any, even as Christ forgave you, so also do you.

Thus do we cōmend you to y^e grace of o^r Lord Jesus Christ

^s [In his diary for the year 1686 Cotton Mather refers to “having seen a poor young Minister, terribly stigmatized for his Misdemeanours by a Council, whereof I was myself a Member”; and in moralizing thereon, he determines “to bee exceedingly tender, careful, just & kind about y^e Reputation of all other persons; Never uttering any Reproachefull Thing of any one whatsoever unless it bee not only True in itself but also proper and useful to bee mentioned.” MSS. Diary (p. 5), Mass. Hist. Soc.]

Strife continued in Malden; and, December 14, 1686, six days before the arrival of Sir Edmund Andros, a committee appointed by the Council December 8, repaired to Malden to settle “the maintainance of the Ministry there.” The committee's report was signed by William Stoughton and

For nearly thirty years following his dismissal he was in comparative retirement at Rumney Marsh, until his settlement there October 19, 1715, as pastor of the Church then formed. He taught school at Rumney Marsh 1709-1719. During these years his pupils in "reading, writing and cyphering," averaged twenty-two.⁹ He was the author of "The Church's Duty and Safety. Boston. 1715," and "Two Sermons Preached at Maldon. The First, August 26, 1722. On the Sabbath. The Second on a Particular Fast, June 4th 1725. Printed for, and Sold by Nicholas Boone, at his Shop in Cornhill, 1726."

"He lived," says Sibley, "to be the oldest surviving graduate" of Harvard College. He died December 27, 1749, at the age of ninety-one. His early ministerial life was clouded by grave charges; but whatever his faults may have been, he nobly redeemed them by a long life of useful and honorable service, and died greatly respected and beloved. In 1722 and again in 1725, he preached two sermons to his old people in Malden and these were printed in 1726. He was thrice married: to Sarah, daughter of James Bill, Sr., of Pulling Point; second, February 11, 1702, to Mary Bordman of Boston, who did not live long;¹⁰ and third, July 20, 1707, to Elizabeth Warren.

The following account of Rev. Thomas Cheever is from a Sermon by Rev. Joseph Tuckerman, D.D., preached at the twenty-fifth anniversary of his settlement at Chelsea.¹¹

Richard Wharton only, though Captain Winthrop, Increase Mather, and Mr. Willard had also been appointed by the Council for this service. They found that Mr. Wigglesworth was the duly ordained Teacher of the church and was so far recovered from his illness that "for many months last past he hath constantly attended the service of the Ministry"; they ordered the town to pay him a salary. They also reported "that tho' there hath been for some years past an other person (vizt Mr. Cheevers) ordained to the Service of the Ministry there, yet the said Cheevers haveing been convicted of severall greivous faults and debaucheries very Scandalous to his Ministry, whereby he is made uncapable of his Office there," they ordered "that no further disturbance or offer be made by any of the Inhabitants againe to restore the said Cheevers to the service of the Ministry in that place which will so apparently attend to the disturbance of the peace, and dishonour of God." “Mr. Cheever had been minister of the church in Malden; but his records contain no reference to this fact; and whatever were the circumstances which occasioned his separation from that church, they do not appear to have come before the council which ordained him here. But one only remains among us who distinctly remembers him; although two others who sat under his ministry are still living with us. I am told that he was much respected at home; and his records bear ample testimony to the regard that was felt for him by neighbouring churches. There was at that time more of ostensible discipline in the church, than there is at this day; and the minute detail which he has left of complaints and investigations, of publick censures, acknowledgments and pardons, at once indicate the strong feeling which the church then had of its power and its duty, and shew that he was not behind those of his coteremporaries, who were most zealous for ministerial fidelity, in this department of the sacred office. But I know not that we have any reason to think, that this mode of exercising power contributed to the advancement of the true interest of the church. That it gave occasion for the indulgence of bad passions, is as certain, as that it availed in any instance to the correction of evil. It grew, however, out of the spirit of the time, and is now almost unknown in this section of our country.

“In consequence of his age and infirmities, it was determined that the 7th of October, 1747, should be observed as a day of fasting and prayer, for the purpose of imploring the direction of Almighty God in the choice of a minister, as colleague with the Rev. Mr. Cheever. Some of the neighbouring churches were invited to join in the solemnity.”

CHAPTER XXVII

FORMATION OF A CHURCH, AS GIVEN BY REV. THOMAS CHEEVER

THE records of the church during the pastorate of Rev. Thomas Cheever are still extant and are of more than usual interest in that class of literature. Cheever was often a member of ecclesiastical councils, and he has entered the letters-missive, the proceedings, and the results in this volume.

This day the Church was gathered at Rumny-marish, and Mr. Thomas Cheever was ordained their Pastor:]

The Churches sent unto for their Countenance & Assistance by their Delegates, Elders & Messengers, were the Old North-Church at Boston,² the Church of Lynn;³ the Church of Redding;⁴ & y^e New-north Church at Boston.⁵

The sermon was preached by Mr Thomas Cheever.

After the Sermon, they proceeded to Gather the Church: the Rev^d Doctour Cotton Mather, who was chosen to manage & Moderate the whole affair; having briefly declared to y^e whole Assem-

¹ Some years ago deeming these records of great value, and observing the risks to which they were exposed in going about the country among antiquaries and others, often careless about their return, I copied the whole of the volume, and now propose to print such portions of it as are of historical or genealogical interest. Admissions to the church and baptisms are removed to the appendix. [With this exception, all omissions are indicated.] Words in brackets, worn away in the original, are from an early copy in the possession of David Floyd, Jr. [The original records have been deposited by the church in the Revere Public Library.]

bly the Occasion of the present Solemnity, did publickly read the Covenant, by which the persons more immediatly Concerned, did Coalesce into a Church-State, for the enjoyment of all Special Ordinances, & for the performance of all the Duties, which the Lord Christ hath prescribed unto his Disciples, in such Churches &c. desiring the Brethren to stand up & manifest their Consent thereunto openly, which they did accordingly.

Here follows an exact copy of the Covenant, with the Brethrens names.

We, whose names are hereunto Subscribed, apprehending our selves called of God to Combine together, in order to the forming of a Church-state among us for the observation & enjoyment of all the especiall Ordinances; which we are per[suaded to] be a Singular Service for our generation; Under a deep sence of our Unw[orthiness] to be so highly favoured of the Lord, to transact personally with so Glorious a [Majesty] and acknowledging our utter inability to keep Covenant with God, unless the Lord [Jesus] by his Spirit & Grace inable us thereunto; admiring that free & rich grace which Triumpheth over so great Unworthines, with humble dependance upon him for his grace & assistance, do make & renew our Covenant with God, & one with another, as follows,

In the first place, we do declare & profess our hearty belief of the Christian religion as contained in the holy Scriptures, which God hath given unto man, to be the only, perfect, sufficient, & perpetuall Rule of his faith & life, heartily resolving by the help of divine grace to conform our lives to the Rules of our holy Religion.

And we do this day give up our selves to that God, whose name alone is Jehovah, ffather, Son, & Spirit, the only true & living God, & Avouch him this day to be our God, chusing & cleaving unto him as our God & ffather, our portion & chief good.

We give up our selves also to our Glorious Lord Jesus Christ, who is the Lord our Righteousness, adhering unto him as the only Head of his Covenant people, & take him for our Only Redeemer & Saviour, our Prophet, Priest, & King, & for our Captain & Leader to bring us to eternal blessedness. Likewise we profess our Everlasting & indispensable Obligation to Glorify God in all the duties of gospel Obedience, as becomes his Covenant people; forever engaging by the help of Christ to endeavour to keep our selves pure from the sins of the times, and to observe & attend the duties of a Church-state, and of a Society Confederated for Obedience to, and enjoyment of him in all Gospel Ordinances.

[At the same time we give our offspring with our Selves up unto the Lord, humbly adoring his grace, that we and our children may be looked upon as the Lords; promising by his help to do our utmost in the methods of a religious education that they may be the Lords.

Moreover we do give up our selves to one another in the Lord, engageing to walk together as a Church of Christ in the faith & Order of the Gospel, [so far as the Lord hath or shall reveal] unto us, (& particularly as is held out in the Platform sett forth by these Churches, unto [which] for the substance we declare our adherence) promising in brotherly love to watch over one another, & to avoid all sinfull stumbling blocks, and contentions as much as possible: and to submit our selves to the Discipline & Government of Christ in this his Church; and to the Ministerial teaching, guidance, & Oversight of the Elder, or Elders thereof, in all things agreeable to the Rules of Christ in his word, and conscieusly to attend the Seals & censures, and all the holy Institutions of Christ in Communion with one another, desiring also to walk with all Regular & due Communion with other Churches.

And all this we do, flying to the blood of the Everlasting Covenant for pardon of many failings, desiring to depend humbly upon the Grace of God in Christ, to enable us to a faithfull discharge of our Covenant duties both to God & one another: & wherein we shall fall short, humbly to wait upon his Grace in Christ, for pardon, acceptance, and healing for his own name sake.

Amen.

[When] the Covenant was read & the Brethren had manifested their consent thereunto, [D^r] Mather did declare unto them, that they were now acknowledged by the Delegates of the Churches, as one of their Sister Churches, & that they were intrusted with the powers and priviledges which Christ had given unto his Churches: of which this was one special priviledge to choose their Own Officers: He therefore desired them, that, as they had formerly chosen M^r Thomas Cheever for their Pastour, if they did continue in the same mind, and also did desire that the s^d M^r Thomas Cheever might now be Ordained & Solemnly sett apart to the Pastorall Office & charge over them, they would manifest it by lifting up their hands; which they [did.] Whereupon they proceeded to the Ordination. The Charge was given by D^r Cotton Mather. The Rev^d M^r Jeremiah Shepard: M^r Richard Brown. & M^r John Webb did Assist & join in Imposition of hands. The right hand of fellowship was given in the name of the Delegates of the Churches: by the Rev^d Mr Jeremiah Shepard, both unto the [s^d] Mr Thomas Cheever as the Pastour of y^e Church; & unto the Church as a Sister Church.

After all a psalm was sung: & y^e Assembly dismissed with a blessing by the new Ordained Pastour.⁶

I shall continue the church history of Rumney Marsh as found in its records, for the church and state were one in a sense and to a degree no longer true. In seeking for the life of a community, therefore, we must not disregard the history of the church.

At a Church Meeting appointed: Novemb: 9th: Mr John Tuttle¹⁰ was chosen to the Office of a Deacon: who accepted the same.

At the same meeting, it was agreed that One flagon, two platters, four cups, one bason with table cloath & one napkin should be bought for the use of the Church: M^{rs} Tuttle wife of Deacon Tuttle was desired to buy the same, Mr William Hassey was desired to be assisting unto her in that affair: & the Charge to be paid by the Church.

It was also agreed at the same meeting to have the Sacrament of the Lords-supper upon the last Lords-day in Novemb: instant: and the next time upon the last Lords-day in February: and afterwards once in six weeks: untill the cold & short days:

It was also agreed that the Charges of the bread & wine for y^e Sacrament should be paid, by a contribution to be made every Sacrament day: and that each Communicant should give six pence a time during the first year; the Overplus to be reserved as a Church-stock in the hands of the Deacon.

1717: September: 27th: At a Church-meeting appointed to deal with our brother Edward Tuttle for disorderly forsaking the fellowship of the Church, (he having absented from the Sacrament of the Lords-supper three several times one after the other,) and to know the reason of the same; he gave no other reason but this, he was dissatisfied because I refused to baptize one of his Grand-Children, viz, a Child of his Son John Tuttle;¹¹ he was told that could not be allowed for a sufficient reason, for as much as I had openly & fully declared my judgment in that matter before we Signed Our Church-Covenant; he gave in a written acknowledgment, in which he owned the irregularity & disorder of his former absence, expressing his sorrow for the same, & desiring forgiveness both of God & the Church for his offence, & promising to return to the Communion of y^e Church according to his Covenant duty, &c: Hereupon the Church declared their satisfaction therein, & so y^e matter was lovingly ended.

Attest. Thomas Cheever Pastour.

1718 June: 29: Edward Tuttle sen^r was dismissed back to y^e Church of Lynn, upon his desire, he was always uneasy & therefore y^e Church readily voted his dismission that we might have no farther trouble with him.

1719 May: 24th: Abraham Skinner, Thomas Skinner; & Mary Skinner all of Maldon were received to full Communion, and were baptized at the same time.

When Abraham Skinner abovenamed first offered himself to our Communion, & before he was publickly propounded, I stayed the Church, and acquainted them with his desire; and because there had some years since been a charge brought against the s^d Abraham Skinner for stealing or carrying off a post from the parsonage land in Maldon, the Church did appoint severall of Our Brethren, viz: L^t John floyd, William Hassey, Daniel Floyd, & Thomas Burdit to enquire into that matter, who accordingly enquired of Deacon John Greenland of Maldon, William Serjeant and others, and reported unto the Church, that they found the s^d Abraham Skinner had been charged, prosecuted, & condemned by the Court for stealing or carrying off a post as afors^d, upon the single evidence of one Thomas Parker of Maldon; this being directly contrary to the Law of God, 19 deut. 15: 18: Mat: 16: 8: John: 17: the Church judged that the fores^d matter was not sufficient to barr his being received to Communion, nor could they look upon the s^d Abraham Skinner duely convicted of the crime he was charged with. The Church was the more confirmed in this their judgment, because the s^d Parker had weakned his own Evidence by contradicting it. Which thus appears. When s^d Thomas Parker was about joyning to the Church of Maldon, the aforenamed Abraham Skinner gave in a charge against s^d Parker in writing, a copy of which charge follows.

Maldon, December y^e 30 day 1713:

To the Reverend M^r David Parsons pastor of y^e Church of Christ in Maldon,

I the Subscriber, hearing that it is the desire of Thomas Parker to joyn to the Church of Maldon, Sir I thought good to acquaint you, that I have known this Thomas Parker to be guilty of falsifying or lying, which is a breach of the ninth Commandment, the which I can prove:

Abraham Skinner

Here follows a copy of the evidences to prove the charge against Parker, which being brought to me, I thought good to enter them in Our Church book that our proceedings in this matter may be clear.

Hannah Skinner & Mary Skinner both of Maldon being of full age do testify & say, that they did both of them sometime in y^e moneth of January in y^e year 1710 then hear Thomas Parker of Maldon say, that he being by some persons charged with the stealing of postes on the parsonage land in Maldon, said he had confessed the stealing of one post & no more, but at the same time said, he had taken or stolen more, but would never confess them to those he had made his former confession unto: and they farther say that y^e s^d Thomas Parker did then with tears confess & say, that Abraham Skinner was now complained of for the stealing the postes that he had stolen or carryed away.

Thomas Skinner & Mary Skinner both of Maldon, of full age do testify & say, that they did sometime in the moneth of March in the year 1711, then hear Thomas Parker of Maldon solemnly protest & say, that he could not, nor would not take any Oath referring to the postes, that were carried or stolen off the parsonage land in Maldon, that should any wayes be to the dammage of Abraham Skinner, for said he if I should swear that I did ever see Abraham Skinner carry, or bear of any post, or posts off the parsonage land, I should take a false oath: but at last did say, he could not tell what he should swear, till he came to the Court.

¹³ The foregoing illustrates Cheever's character. He seems to have been conscientious, thoroughgoing, and able. As an ecclesiastical review of legal proceedings it also illustrates the time in which he lived. Thirty years before this the Bible was largely relied upon as furnishing rules of evidence, and the clergy were often called upon by the courts to lend their aid in the determination of legal questions, especially those which involved moral character. At this date there were not more than one or two educated

1720. June: 3^d At a Church-meeting appointed to choose a Deacon, one or more: Deacon Tuttle by reason of his weaknes of body desiring to be released from his Office: it was in the first place carried by a Major Vote to choose two Deacons, first one; and afterwards a second; and that there should be a Majority of the Voters to make a choice. Accordingly, when their Votes were brought in for the first Deacon, our brother M^r John Chamberlane ¹⁴ was chosen by a Majority of the Voters. When the votes were brought [in] for the second Deacon, there was not a Majority of the Voters for any person, till the third time of Voting & then our brother M^r Samuel Tuttle was chosen by a Majority of the Voters, (as was then thought, but afterwards there appeared some mistake.) ¹⁵ L^t John Floyd & Asa Hassy & Jacob Hassy were appointed to treat with the beforenamed persons and to make report to the Church, whither they did accept & would serve in the Office of Deacons, as soon as conveniently they could. Attest Thomas Cheever Pastour.

The services of Rev. Thomas Cheever were constantly sought in ecclesiastical councils; and he most assiduously entered the letters-missive, the proceedings, and the results in his records, which constitute a mine that has often been worked by those curious in such matters. To print these in full would be impracticable, but I shall make a note of each and an abstract of the one which follows.¹⁶

Rev:^d & Beloved.

These are to signify to you, that we have a very Mournfull Case to lay before you, scil. the Deplorable Condition, which our Beloved Sister Church in ye Town of Wenham, is lapsed into. For that according to our present View the s^d Church seems to us, either Obstinate bent upon a design to subvert the ancient Constitution of these Churches, or through the prevalency of some temptation are rushing upon their own Confusion, which God of his infinite mercy prevent. Now R^d & Beloved brethren, under so awfull a prospect, we hold our selves in duty bound to express, & open their condition to your selves & other Churches in order to their Relief, if God will succeed us. Therefore these are to notify you, that upon a Complaint exhibited to this Church, by M^r William Rogers¹⁷ member of ye s^d Church in Wenham, wherein he Complains of great injustice done him in ye s^d Church &c: Whereupon we sent a Delegation of prudent men to Represent us, with Instructions to make farther enquiry, & Administer a word of advice, if they judged the Complaint sufficiently evidenced & just. The s^d Church in Wenham has all along, since our first sending to them in this present case, Manifested much Obstinacy, & put great contempt upon the Proceedings of this Church, & thereby have plainly trampled upon, & indignified the Constitution of the Churches, of which we shall give a fuller account, when the Churches sent to shall Convene at the time & place appointed. Yet Beloved! Our Delegation, notwithstanding all slights put upon them, have with great patience & stability of mind pursued duty for the good of the Church & Partie, but the s^d Church has been very Obstinate, & we are without hopes of their Compliance, but by this way we are now taking. That R^d & Beloved, these presents are in the Name of Christ, farther to Carry on the Process against the s^d Church in Wenham, according to the Direction given by the Rule for the third way of Communion in these Churches. Therefore we now more fully acquaint you & other Churches, that ye s^d Church is still under offence, for that having injured their brother by their Male-administrations, yet have Obstinate refused to comply with their duty, under all the steps we have taken, & offers made by our Delegates for his relief & their healing. The Admonition, which has been drawn up in very Christian and proper terms sent & left among them for their use & direction, no improvement is made of it by their Pastour according to its intent, but he rather

Meditates, as we judge, in Combination with some of his brethren how to defeat the whole Process: wherefore we now call upon your selves, & other Neighbour Churches to joyn with us in Seconding of the Admonition which has been dispenced. We have with submission to Divine providence appointed to meet you at Wenham upon the 29th day of this instant July, at ten of the clock before noon: the house for the Elders & Messengers to meet at in the Morning, upon their first coming into the Town, is the house of Mr Samuel Kimbal. Thus, Rev:^d & Beloved! having offered to your Cognisance a case of such great importance, wherein the Glory of Christ is so peculiarly embarqued, and the Constitution of his Churches is in such imminent peril, we doubt not, but you will readily come into the Service, by sending, as we now Pray & desire you, your Elder or Elders & other Messengers to joyn in Concert with Our selves & other Churches sent unto, for the support of our Action, reinforcing our Admonition, & carrying on of Process till it shall come to a final issue. So recommending all that shall be involved, & so great an example, by our most Ardent Prayers to the Grace & Conduct of our Blessed Lord.

To the Rev:^d Mr Thomas Cheever Pastour, to be Communicated to the Church of Christ in Rumny-marish.

We rest your loving Brethren in the bonds of y^e Gospel. John Wise Pastour by Order of s^d Church of Christ in Ipswich.

A true copy: Attest Thomas Cheever.

ſ^p Mr Sam^l Kimbal.

I received this letter July 18th, and communicated it to the Church the next Lords day, and the Church readily Voted to comply with the desire of Ipswich 2^d Church, and chose Lt. John Floyd & Mr William Hassy to accompany me & attend that Service.

Attest Thomas Cheever Pastour.

Here follows a copy of y^e Result of the Council of Churches called by the second Church in Ipswich, to Assist & advise in the case of Mr William Rogers Member of the Church of Wenham, he having complained of injustice done him by s^d Church of Wenham, unto the 2^d Church in Ipswich, & desiring that they would make enquiry in order to his relief according to the third way of Communion directed in the Platform.

July 29th 1719:

The Delegation of five Churches, viz: the 2^d Church in Ipswich, the Church in Rumny-marish, the Church of York, & the two Churches in Glocester, regularly met at Wenham, this twenty ninth day of July 1719, & then & there having supervised the case of M^r William Rogers, relating to the Suspension he sustains under the Censure of the Church of Christ in Wenham, & finding the Admonition dispensed by the second Church of Christ in Ipswich, to the s^d Church in Wenham to be just. Yet considering the great importance of the matter now before us, & being desirous & willing, that the s^d Church in Wenham might have farther time offered to them, to reconsider what has past, and the imminent peril they are in of incurring the displeasure of the Churches in the Association, if they will abide a full process: and considering that they have obstinately refused to attend on the process commenced against them hitherto. We have therefore adjourned to the last wednesday in September next ensuing, & then to meet at the house of M^r Samuel Kimbal, when & where the s^d Church of Wenham shall have opportunity to offer any just reasons, why the s^d Admonition should not be fully executed upon them: and order that they be duly Notified by the Moderatour of this Delegation, viz: the Pastour of the s^d Church in Ipswich: and moreover we also appoint, that the s^d Moderatour draw up in form, after the best manner he can to suit the Occasion, our final Resolve in the case & have it in readiness for us.

Wenham: Sept: 30th: 1719:

We, the Delegation of five Churches, viz: the Second Church in Ipswich which did begin the Process, the Church of Rumny-marish; (the Church of York not appearing the weather being bad,) & the two Churches in Gloucester, being now met by adjournment in Wenham abovenamed: After very Solemn & humble addresses unto God for direction in this great concern devolved upon us by his wise providence, we now proceed.

ffirst, We sent a Notification to the Church of Christ in Wenham on the 15th of this instant, wherein was set forth, that the Delegation of the s^d five Churches, formerly mett in the Town of Wenham at M^r Samuel Kimbal's on 29th of July last, to supervise the case of M^r William Rogers, relating to the Suspension he was under from the s^d Church in Wenham, did then & there find & declare, that the Admonition dispensed by the s^d 2^d Church in Ipswich to the s^d Church in Wenham, in order to the restoration of the s^d Rogers was just, & also the s^d Church in Wenham was in the s^d Notification Directed to attend on the Delegation now mett, but the s^d Church refusing to submit to the s^d Notification, & still persisting in their Obstinacy, We now in the name of Christ, & in right of the Churches we represent, proceed to draw up a more

first, That the Management of the 2^d Church in Ipswich towards the Church in Wenham is well & sufficiently founded in the Canon of these Churches, and the process of y^e s^d Church is to be justified from what the Platform of our Church discipline says about the third way of Communion of Churches, & therefore the s^d process is agreeable to the way of Ord[er] and tends greatly to the promotion of Union, peace, truth, holiness & mutual edification in, and to the establishment of the Churches, and is a laudable & proper example for us, & all other Churches in the Consociation, to follow, and imitate one towards another in such like case.

Secondly. We therefore condemn the Church in Wenham for slighting & rejecting the Process, & method taken with them by the s^d 2^d Church in Ipswich; the s^d Church in Wenham ha[ve] thereby put high contempt upon the Constitution of these Churches, notwithstanding they did so solemnly & publicly upon the Pacification, promise¹⁸ for the future to Submit to the third way of Communion in the Platform, & by their s^d contempt have begun such a rupture & breach in their alliance & gospel order, which, if not check't & stopt in time, tends to the utter ruine and subversion of the Noble frame & constitution of these famous, ancient, & flourishing Churches. And therefore we farther declare that our judgment is, that the s^d Church in Wenham, they continuing in fellowship with these Churches, & all other Churches in this grand Association, are bound by the Canon at their utmost peril to Submit to such a method when taken with them by any Neighbour Sister Church upon such or the like sufficient cause.

Thirdly. Thus having abundant reason to justify the 2^d Church in Ipswich in their proceeding & having fully supervised the case of s^d Mr William Rogers, we do now in Concert with the s^d Church declare, that y^e s^d M^r Rogers has not given any just offence to the s^d Church of Wenham, by any groundless or injurious charge against his Pastour, on 31st of january 1716/17 in those words of Opposition for which he was Suspended, in that they were sufficiently evidenced unto us to be true. Therefore we now more formally & publicly Justify the s^d Admonition dispensed on the 19th of May 1719 by the s^d Church in Ipswich to the Church in Wenham, in favour of s^d M^r Rogers as aboves^d:

ffourthly. In consideration, that the s^d Church in Wenham hath all along manifested great Obstinacy, & now also after due patience & long waiting for their Compliance, the s^d Church still continue very inflexible & obstinate, therefore in the Name of Christ & of the severall Churches we represent, these presents are to set forth & declare, that we the s^d Delegation having joyned our selves do in concert, execute, set on, and second the s^d Admonition, & for that end do now advise, direct, & Admonish the s^d our much pitied & greatly beloved Sister Church in Wenham, that after such a long & unjust delay, they do now release their s^d brother William Rogers from the s^d suspension, and restore him to Communion with the s^d Church in Wenham, & by all due means & brotherly deportment towards him establish him in the persuasion of their brotherly love to him; and also we still continue to advise the s^d M^r Rogers, upon the Churches receiving him to their fellowship, that he suppress all hard resentments towards his Pastour, & brethren, notwithstanding the unkindnesses & injustice he has met with from them: 12: rom: 1: cor: 13: And for the present relief of s^d M^r Rogers, while the s^d Church shall deliberate, we grant a permit to the s^d Rogers for Occasional Communion with any of our Churches. ffinally thus hoping our s^d beloved Sister Church in Wenham, will well consider, how they have swerved from the rule of Charity & justice in the case of their s^d brother Rogers, & also revise what ruptures they have made in the Order of these Churches, & also we hope & pray that the Grace of God may be sufficient for them, and influence their minds under the present awfull crisis they are reduced to, and dispose & bow their hearts to comply with their duty, in the reasonable & just directions that we have laid before them, & so prevent those other more terrible parts of the process which remain yet to be fulfilled; but if not, God assisting, we are resolved to execute the same, & that by pursuing every step to a final issue according to the direction of our Platform.

Wenham: Octob: 1st: 1719.

We the Delegates of five Churches, (the Church of York being not here, the weather being bad) having mett at this time by Adjournment at the house of M^r Samuel Kimbal in Wenham abovs^d, and our Sister Church in Wenham remaining very obstinate, & still continuing to resist the regular Process carried on against them in the case of M^r William Rogers; having found on the 29th of July last, & then declared the Admonition dispensed by the 2^d Church in Ipswich to the s^d Church in Wenham to be just, from the sence of duty incumbent on us, & faithfulness to Christ, & his Churches, and a due regard to justice we have seconded, & this day farther administred the s^d Admonition to the s^d our Sister Church in Wenham, as does more fully appear in the Instrument of Execution we have published against the s^d Church, reference thereto being had. And farthermore considering how much the well being of these Churches doth depeind upon the careful conduct, wise & good management of this important business, which God in his holy & wise providence hath at this juncture devolved on the Churches we represent, & nextly on our selves, we now in due form make a farther pause, & shall still wait a convenient space of time for the Submission of the s^d Church in Wenham, expecting their complying with their duty, as set forth in s^d Admonition, that has been reinforced, seconded, & published against them as aboves^d. And moreover considering at what distance several of us dwell, & also that the time of the year is hastning on, that may make it more difficult for travel, we therefore judge it meet to make some suitable precaution in the business, that is to say, if the s^d Church in Wenham shall fully, & in due time comply with the s^d Admonition, then the Delegation of the s^d five Churches is dissolved; but if not, we shall continue in being as a representative body, God helping of us, & shall proceed with the process, & our next step will be to draw up & publish our forbearing Communion with the s^d Church of Wenham for our s^d five Churches: & then we shall farther also do & perform such other acts as are agreeable with the canon & government of these Churches, in order to, & in hope of the repentance & full compliance of the s^d Church in Wenham. And for the future we leave the affair, as it is now stated, to the conduct & management of the Delegates of the three Nearest Churches in the s^d Delegation to draw up in form what may be farther needfull, & transmit the same to the Delegates of the other Churches concerned for their approbation, & also if there be Occasion for it, to determine on time & place when, & where a grand Council of Churches¹⁹ shall be Convened, as the Platform doth direct; and also to fix the number of Churches, & who shall be Cited through the whole Consociation, in order to the Definitive sentence in this case. And moreover before we dismiss this present Session, we declare, that upon issuing out the Sentence of forbearing Communion with the Church of Wenham for our s^d five Churches, which God prevent, if it be his holy will, by bowing the hearts of our s^d Dear Sister Church to a compliance; but if otherwise, & the s^d Sentence be pronounced by us as above is provided, then we think due care should be taken to grant Occasional Communion to other innocent Members of the s^d Church of Wenham, & especially such as do, & have born due Testimony against the Corruptness & Obstinacy of the fores^d Church of Wenham, they signifying & setting forth that they have so done, & this Provision is made for the ease of the innocent, until the Grand Convention of Churches shall be made in this case, & then to proceed to a more full Renunciation of all right of Relation to, & acts of Fellowship, as the Platform doth more expressly direct to, with the s^d Church. Finally we the s^d Delegation, having made the best provision we can in so great a Concern, do now leave it to the s^d three Churches as aboves^d to take care in all points for the future, & to do what is meett according to their best discretion in the case relating to the s^d Church of Wenham and the s^d Mr Rogers, & to give to the Delegates of the other two Churches an account of things from time to time for their approbation, before any thing of moment as aboves^d be fully Executed.

¹⁹ This "grand Council" may have been an "occasional Synod" to be called agreeably to the Cambridge Platform of 1649, which contemplated invoking the civil power to enforce its decisions. See Palfrey, New England, ii. 184, 185 [also The Platform of Church Discipline, 1649, chap. xv. § 2; chap. xvii. § 9, in Mather's Magnalia, Book v].

Voted nemine non consentiente

John Wise moderatour.

A copy of the result, which the Delegation had unanimously voted & published, was sent by several of the Members of the Delegation, to the R:^d Mr Gerrish Pastour of the Church of Wenham, & left with his wife, he not being to be spoke with by them.

The s^d Mr Gerrish refused to communicate to his Church the result of the Delegation, & see whither they were willing in compliance therewith to restore their brother Mr Rogers, which was justly grievous & dissatisfactory to many of his Church.

On the sixth of January following the s^d Mr Gerrish died, the difference in Wenham not made up. After the death of Mr Gerrish, the Church found their difference not being made up was a barr to their Obtaining another Minister, & thereupon began to endeavour to put an end to their long continued difference, & after some meetings & essays at last at a Church meeting they voted to restore Mr Rogers to their Communion, & to revoke what had pas[t] in the Church formerly against him, & that an account of their doings should be sent to R:^d Mr Wise, moderatour of the Delegation or Council that last met at Wenham, under the hand of Mr Prescott, whom the Church of Wenham had chose to be Moderatour of their Church meetings & to keep their Church records till they had a Pastour settled, and that seeing the end is obtained, which was aimed at by their process, & Mr Rogers restored that they would now cease all farther steps: &c: After R^d Mr Wise received an account of the Church in Wenham's restoring Mr Rogers to their fellowship, he communicated the same to the Delegates of the 5 Churches who declared their acceptance, & so a period put to any farther steps: and the Delegation was declared dissolved.²⁰

To y^e R^d Mr Thomas Cheever

Pastour of the Church of Christ at Rumny-marish.

Honoured Rev^d & Beloved.

It having pleased the most Glorious Head of the Church, after, as we hope, our most earnest, humble & Solemn Supplications unto him, on a day of fasting & prayer for his gracious Guidance & Assistance, in a matter of so great importance, to Direct us of the New-North-Church in Boston by a very considerable Majority of Votes, to Invite the Rev^d Mr Peter Thacher late of Weymouth, to the Pastoral Office among us, and to Incline him to accept of our Invitation. We have agreed upon Wednesday the 27th of this ²⁰ Though the proceedings of the Wenham Council are connected with Chelsea history only by the presence of the pastor and delegates of the Rumney Marsh church I have given them to show the spirit of those days. As I have already said, from the beginning of the colony even to recent times the union of the church and state was intimate. The platform above referred to was adopted by a synod of churches convened by an act of the General Court; and this fact gave its results something of the effect of legal enactments. So that an "admonition" of the Wenham church by a council regularly convened and proceeding according to the platform was something more than a brutum fulmen; and a persistent disregard thereof might have been followed by serious consequences. How far it would have endangered the legal status of the church, I cannot say; but a church and pastor under excommunication would have been in an extremely unpleasant predicament. The ordinance of baptism was regarded as of vital importance to the child's welfare, both here and hereafter. But would it be valid and efficacious if administered by a pastor, whose refusal to commune in the "third way of communion," the communion of discipline, had led to his excommunication? This would have been only one of many unpleasant consequences, not lightly to be incurred.

It is scarcely necessary to add that the union of church and state no longer continues, having been abolished in 1834. The town formerly stood in the same relation to the church as the "society" does now. The church called the minister, and the town concurred or non-concurred at its pleasure. The town voted the salary, and the settlement, which was for life, became a legal charge upon the town. Churches could not be formed at pleasure, but legislative authority was required. When more than one was needed in any town, it was divided into precincts, and these became legal corporations for religious purposes.

present January (God willing) to fix him in the full Exercise of s^d Office among us. We therefore humbly & earnestly intreat the Presence of your Rev^d Pastour with such Messengers, as you shall think proper to send with him, to Concurr with the Elders & Messengers of Several other Churches in Exercising such Acts of Communion with us, as the Solemnity of the Occasion may call for.

We earnestly ask your Prayers, that Grace, mercy, & peace from God our Father, & from Our Lord Jesus Christ may be multiplied upon us, & upon our Offspring, & with our humble beseeching the Throne of Grace, that the same inestimable blessings may descend on you in a most plentiful manner.

We Subscribe Yours in the faith and fellowship of the Gospel.

To the Rev^d Mr Thomas Cheever John Webb, in the name and at to be Communicated. the desire of the Church

You are desired to meet at the Pastours house by Nine of the clock in the Morning.

I communicated this letter to the Church on 17th jan: who readily complied with the desire of Our Sister Church and chose L:^t John Floyd, Mr William Hassey, & Mr John Chamberlane to accompany me and concurr with the other Church or Churches that should attend that service.

True copy. Attest Thomas Cheever Pastor.

After our return I acquainted the Brethren, whom I sent for to my house, and who gave me a meeting all except two or three, with what we had done as to the installing y^e Rev^d Mr Peter Thacher in the Pastoral Office at the New-North Church, together with the reasons for our doings therein,²¹ who declared their approbation of the same. Attest Thomas Cheever Pastour.

only Mr. Thacher of Milton and Mr. Chiever of Rumney-Marsh acted in the Installment of Mr. Thacher. For though Mr. Fisk was here with his Delegates; two of them, Mr. Lynde and Mr. Osgood (3 came not; Col. Browne, Daniel Epes esqr., Mr. Timothy Lindal) yet the church had limited them so that they saw not cause to Act. And Mr. Thacher is his Unkle. It seems there was a long and shamefull Tumultuous disturbance in the Meeting-house. Mr. Thacher of Milton pray'd, Mr. Thacher of Weymouth preach'd from Psal. 57.2. I will cry — After the church had voted him the Pastor, and Mr. Thacher had accepted; Mr. Chiever declar'd him to be the Pastor of that church. No Psalm was sung. Col. Taylor, Townsend, Fitch, Secretary were there. Mr. Leverett acted not because Mr. Apleton the Pastor was not present. And none from Charlestown." (Diary, iii. 242.) The dissatisfied brethren described it picturesquely in their Account. "When the Council (that is to say, the Messengers of Romney-Marsh) were come together at the House of Mr. Webb," the dissatisfied brethren entered a protest, and also in the meeting-house they made "vehement Protestations against what was a doing," and demanded a Council. "But the first thing done was, That One who had no pretence to act as a Moderator there, proposed unto the Brethren of the Church, who were for Mr. Thacher, whether they renew'd their Choice of him for their Pastor, which they signified by Lifting up their Hands; and Mr. Thacher declared his Acceptance of it. And so the Man declar'd him their Pastor, without any Prayer, or any Charge, or any thing else that belonged unto such a Sacred Affair. After long Debates, and much Confusion, Leave was obtained for a short Prayer, and Sermon. And this passed for an Ordination." Rev. Increase Mather in a leaflet of three pages entitled "A Further Testimony against the Scandalous Proceedings of the New-North Church in Boston" (Boston Public Library, *G 376.40) bore testimony as follows:

"An Ordination or Instalment of a Minister in Boston, in which the Ministers of the Town could not in Conscience be Concerned; and in which the Churches sent unto to give them the Right Hand of Fellowship, have some, if not the most of them, refused to send their Messengers; And in which after the Ordination, there was no Right Hand of Fellowship given, And in which there was no Solemn Charge given to the Person Ordained or Installed, And in which there was no Express Ordination-Prayer, is a Nullity and no Ordination, but an heinous Transgression of the Third Commandment; The like to which was never before known in New-England, no, nor in the Christian World. . . . They have offended Christ in a refusing the help of a Council, when earnestly advised to it by all the Ministers of God in Boston. . . . This I who have been an Unworthy Servant of Christ in the work of the Gospel for more than Fifty Eight Years in Boston . . . being now Aged, and expecting every Day to be called out of this World, account it my Duty to leave this as my Dying Testimony with the Churches in New-England. Increase Mather." See also "A Vindication of the New-North-Church in Boston," signed by Caleb Lyman, John Barret, and John Dixwell. No charge of unfitness was brought against Rev. Peter Thacher, and his settlement was warmly advocated by Rev. John Webb, one of the two Boston pastors who had assisted in the dropped because of great uneasiness; it was in the first place carried by a unanimous Vote to choose but one Deacon at present : and when their Votes were brought in, there was not a Majority the first time for any person : when their Votes were brought in y^e 2^d time: our brother M^r John Chamberlane was chosen by the Majority of Voters, Attest Thomas Cheever Pastour.

Nov: 7th At a Church meeting to choose another Deacon to be joyned with Deacon John Chamberlane; When their Votes were brought in, our brother M^r William Hassy²² was chosen by a Majority of Votes & voters: our brother Chamberlane was not present, it was therefore proposed & assented to by the Church, that their accepting the Churches call to s^d Office should be manifested by their sitting in the Deacons seat. And whereas at the last Church meeting there was discourse about making some allowance to the Deacons for their trouble yearly, as also to make allowance to the Churches Delegates sent to Wenham & to Boston &c. Deacon Tuttle declared openly that he desired nothing for the time he had served the Church in the office of Deacon. After which it was unanimously Voted that no allowance should be made to the Deacons nor to any others out of the Church-Stock but with the knowledge & consent of the Church, & that the Deacons should give account of their doings in their Office unto the Church once in a year, to prevent any dissatisfactions or mistakes.

A Church meeting, in which the Church Covenant was read, showing that we fixed upon Congregational principles, according to the Platform sett forth by these Churches, in which both the power of the Elders, and the liberty of the Brethren are so sett out, as that no Church act is compleat & perfected without the consent of both: when it was put to Vote, whither the Church did consent to and were willing to abide by the s^d first settlement & Covenant, there was an unanimous consent manifested by lifting up the hand. Afterward upon debate with reference to the former Church meeting, notwithstanding it appeared that M^r William Hassy had a Major Vote to the Office of a Deacon, because of the fierce opposition made by three or four of the Brethren; upon the motion of another Brother, that we might for the present rest contented with but one Deacon viz: M^r John Chamberlane, till spirits were better composed; to prevent far-vide hooks & staples that are wanting to secure the s^d Windows for future and also to take care of said Windows as their should be need for the future, and these things to be paid for out of the Church-stock in his hands: it was likewise Voted that the land belonging to the Meeting-house should be fenced in with a good board fence, and to be paid for by the Church; M^r Samuel Watts, Jacob Hassy, & John Leath were chosen a Committee to take care for the doing of it, as also to make steps at the South-door. This last Vote being afterwards objected against by Several of the Brethren was laid by: Attest Thomas Cheever pastour.

²⁴ Hitherto I have never been certain that the Revere church edifice now standing was the one built in 1710, or a later structure. The town records make it clear that there were for many years, say from 1740 to 1776, two meeting-houses severally called the old meeting-house and the new meeting-house. But there is no record of the building of more than one house. [See supra, p. 186.] It is certain that there was a meeting-house in 1660, and one built in 1710. The entry in the church record settles it that the

At the Meeting aboves^d, it was proposed to the Consideration of the Church, with respect to the Difference & distance that does still continue between the Church and Severall of the Inhabitants in this place: Whither some Overtures for peace should not be made by the Church, unto our afors^d Dissenting Neighbours & ffriends? After much debate pro and con: and after the Objections made by some were answered, and the unhappy effects of the Want of peace, how mischievous it might prove in after times; as also the great blessings of Peace, & ye special blessing pronounced by Our Saviour unto peace-makers and after Some of the Brethren declared that Some of the Principal of Our Dissenting Neighbours & ffriends had manifested a desire of peace. The Church Unanimously Voted to send in the following words their proposal to Our s^d dissatisfied Neighbours to be Directed to L^t John Brintnal to be Communicated to the rest.

edifice which existed in 1722 had galleries and a south door, which agrees with the present edifice as it stood before its front was changed some years since. I addressed a note to S. A. Hall, Esq., of Revere, on the subject, who very courteously replied as follows:

Revere, Feb. 14, 1882.

MELLEN CHAMBERLAIN, Esq.

DEAR SIR, — In answer to yours of January 25, I must report no knowledge as to the Old Meeting-house. . . . My mother used to tell us that there was, previous to the erection of the present house, a log meeting-house which stood just north of Mr. E. M. Farnsworth's house, or perhaps where that stands; and as her ancestors had lived here continuously since before the present house was built, perhaps this is more likely to be correct than any other tradition in regard to the location.

In regard to the time of building it, or when it was demolished, I have no knowledge. . . .

Yours respectfully, S. A. HALL.

Whereas there hath been, & is still an Openly continued distance & difference between the Church of Christ in this place, & some of the other Inhabitants, which we think cannot but be Uncomfortable both to them and Us, as well as displeasing unto Our Glorious Lord. We have therefore, (upon serious Consideration of our said differences with the uncomfortable effects, as also from some intimations given us by Some of our Brethren, that Some of Our s^d Neighbours & friends were Desirous of peace, to let it appear that We are desirous of a good peace with all Our Christian Neighbours & friends,) agreed to make this Overture, unto Our Dissatisfied Neighbours and friends, that they would be pleased to let us know, what are the hinderances unto a peace on our part, that so we may remove them, if we judge them capable of being removed, that for the future there may be a better understanding among us, that we may live & love as Brethren, & the interest of Christs Kingdom may be the better promoted among us, to the good not only of the present but Succeeding Generations. We would earnestly pray Our dissatisfied Neighbours & friends to let us hear from them with all Convenient speed.

²⁵ I find nothing more in relation to the subject of the foregoing letter. Cheever's amiable and Christian spirit must have tended to disarm his opponents. I now go back several pages and follow the order of narration in the records. [The letter to John Brintnall was not inserted immediately after the vote authorizing it, but two pages later, among the letters from Watertown. John Brintnall attended the church in Malden. His daughter married a son of Rev. Michael Wigglesworth, whose colleague Rev. Thomas Cheever had been, until dismissed in 1686 after much unpleasantness. Lieutenant John Brintnall signed the petition that opposed the building of a meeting-house at Rumney Marsh in 1710. His son Thomas joined Cheever's church in 1728. His son John must have attended there. See infra, the vote of the church October 27, 1735. In 1748 Nathan Cheever, son of Rev. Thomas Cheever, opposed the settlement of Rev. William McClenachan as his father's assistant, and was dismissed to the Second Church in Malden, January 10, 1748/9, while Benjamin Brintnall, grandson of Lieutenant John Brintnall, was received from the same church in Malden, January 20, and his brother, John Brintnall, a year later. Supra, vol. i. pp. 46-52.]

the Church of Christ in Rumney marish Sendeth

Rev:^d & Beloved

We received notice this week, of a Letter sent to you, to Desire your Assistance in the Ordination of M^r Robert Sturgeon, to a Church in Watertown: what Church is intended we are at Uncertainties, but suppose they may be Some persons partly of the Eastern, & partly of the Western precincts in Watertown, who endeavour to impose upon you: for there is such a party in the Town, who have for some time had M^r Sturgeon preaching among them, & seem to have been Clandestinely carrying on a Design to embarrass y^e Affairs of y^e Town, which were lately Established by the Act of y^e General Court. We also desire you to send your Pastour & Messengers to Assist in a Common Council, with the Pastours & Messengers of other Churches, on Tuesday next, to hear what may be Offered unto you, by those who first sent to you and by Agents for both of the Precincts of y^e Town, Reasonably hoping you will bear due Testimony against all Disorders.

We are your very loving Brethren in the fellowship of the Gospel.

You are desired to meet at eight Henry Gibbs, Pastour

At a Council, of Nine Churches, Assembled at Water-town, at the Desire of the Eastern Church in s^d Town, A part of which Council being also Convened at the Desire of Such as Attend on the Publick Worship of God in the Middle-Meeting-house in s^d Town. On Febr: 27: 1721/2, To advise & determine on what should be Offered to them, relating to the Ordination of the Rev:^d M^r Robert Sturgeon.

After humble Supplication to heaven, and an impartial hearing of what was offered to us by all Parties, we advise & Determine as followeth Imprimis. Whereas there are a Number of Persons in s^d Water-Town, who by a private Subscription and Pretended gathering of a Church, have Attempted the Settlement of the s^d M^r Robert Sturgeon as their Gospel Minister, We are of Opinion, that the Proceedings, of the s^d Subscribers relating to M^r Sturgeon's Settlement, are Contrary to the Designe of the General Court Act, relating to the Division of Water-town into two Precincts.

2. We also are of Opinion, that the afor^s Proceedings are not agreeable to the good Order, & practise of the Churches of Christ in New-England, neither are those, that call themselves a Church, to be Owned as such for the reasons beforementioned.

3 Wherefore we Determine & Declare, that the Ordination of no Person on the forementioned or the like foundation Ought to be Proceeded in.

4 And whereas the Western Precinct have Erected a Meeting-house, which it is supposed & hoped will in a very little time be fitt for the Publick Worship of God, and upon hearing of what hath been alledged, We are of Opinion, that it will be very Conducibile to the peace of Water-town, that the Eastern Precinct do proceed to Erect & finish a Meeting-house on School-house hill, within a year at farthest from this time, & accordingly we earnestly advise them thereunto.

5 Whereas M^r Joshua Warren with Others, in the behalf of the Subscribers for M^r Sturgeon's Settlement, have asked the Advice of this Council concerning the Maintaining of Preaching, in the Middle Meeting-house in Water-town, till One is provided on School-house hill; the Council judge it Advisable that there be Preaching at the s^d Middle Meeting house, untill according to the Order of the General Court, the Meeting house be fitted for the Worship of God in the Western Precinct, and farther we cannot see reason to advise.

And we pray the God of Peace to give you peace always by all means.

Watertown. April: 27: 1722.

The two Churches in Watertown, viz: the East & West part thereof, to the Church of Christ in Rumny-marish, Wish the Multiplication of Grace, mercy & peace from God the Father through Our Lord Jesus Christ.

Reverend & Beloved.

The very difficult Circumstances of our Town in General, & each of these Churches in it, are such (through the holy & Sovereign Providence of God) that we Eminently stand in need of Direction & Assistance for giving light & Restoring peace unto us, from the Neighbour Churches in Communion with us. The Occasion whereof is the Coming of a Gentleman lately from Ireland into our Town, viz: M^r Robert Sturgeon, who has been endeavouring to Constitute a Third Church in the Town, in a very factious & Schismatical manner. We having used all the more Private Methods to prevent the Growth of these Disorders: and also called a Reverend Council, who by their Elders & Messengers Condemned the Proceedings of said M^r Robert Sturgeon & his Party; yet he & they bidding defiance to all these Methods have gone on with great Resolution. We have in this case no better Remedy, than to call in farther Council; and we do it the rather, because this Schisme is like to be a spreading Leprosy through all the Churches in the land except timely Suppressed. We therefore the Afflicted Brethren in Watertown entreat your Assistance by your Elders & Messengers, on the Next Tuesday to Meet in Council on this important matter, that by the blessing of God upon this Institution of his, Our present Disorders may be Redressed, and all such bold Attempts for the future on the Order of the Churches in this Province Discountenanced; whereby also the Supream Authority of the land in Civil Respects has been Oppugned, as you will be more particularly enformed, when Present with us. Desiring your instant prayer on our behalf, We are your very loving Brethren in the Fellowship of y^e gospel 1723: Dec: 1st: The following letter was read unto the Church: To the Rev^d Mr Cheever, Pastour of y^e Church of Christ in Rumny-marish.

From the Church of Christ in Redding North-precinct, to the Church of Christ in Rumny-marish, Grace & Peace be multiplied to you from God y^e Father & our Lord Jesus Christ.

Rev:^d & Beloved, Whereas nine of y^e Brethren of this Church have apprehended themselves to be much aggrieved by their Pastour, in being denied y^e Priviledges of the Brother-hood; and in his partiality in y^e Administration of the affairs belonging to this Church of Christ: which matters of grievance are manifested by sundry positive articles, in a writing drawn up & signed by them, & delivered by them to him their Pastour: and we being apprehensive of our present incapacity to put a peacable issue to this Difference among our selves. We, viz: the Pastour, the Dissatisfied Brethren, with the other part of the Church do earnestly desire the presence & Assistance of your Rev:^d Elder, with two of your Messengers, on Tuesday y^e 26th of Novemb, and if Thanksgiving should be in that week, then we shall expect you, on 3^d of Decemb, which is the Tuesday following, to hear & Determine the matters of Difference among us.

So commending you to the grace & blessing of God in our Lord Jesus Christ, & desiring your earnest prayers to God for us.

We rest, yours in the faith & fellowship of the Gospel.

of y^e Brethren.

The Churches that are sent to, are y^e first Church of X in Marble-head, y^e 1st Church in Reading, y^e Church in Woburn, the first Church in Salem, y^e Church in Rumny-marish, the 2^d Church in Andover, the Church in Billerica:

²⁷ 1723, March 31. "I preached all day at Maldon & in y^e Evening to a Society of Young People at Rumney Marsh." Diary of Rev. Samuel Dexter of Dedham. N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg., xiv. 35.

Afterwards y^e Church in Lexinton, was sent to, in the stead of Woburn Church, y^e Rev^d M^r Fox not being well: & y^e Church in Salem-village in stead of Reading first Church.

The Church upon hearing the letter, readily Voted to comply with the desire of our Sister Church in Reading North-precinct, & Ensign Joseph Belcher, & M^r William Hassy were chosen to Accompany me & attend that Service at the time appointed.

When the time came, M^r William Hassey accompanied me to Reading, (M^r Belcher had a Son to be buried that very day the Council was to meet) where we mett with the rest of y^e Elders & Messengers of the Churches desired to meet in Council.

The Result of the Council here followeth.

At a Council of seven Churches, held at the North-precinct in Reading, on Decemb: 3^d 1723, to hear and Determine the matters of Difference there, between y^e Rev^d M^r Daniel Putnam, and Some of his Church, that call themselves aggrieved. The Rev^d M^r Putnam, & the whole Church, before the Opening of the Council, laying themselves under Obligation to sit down satisfied by the Judgment of this Council.

Whereas, (after having earnestly sought to God for direction) having publickly heard, [and] privately Considered all, that the Several aggrieved Brethren had to alledge [against] the Rev^d M^r Putnam, with his Answers, the testimonies, and the Votes [of the Church relat]ing thereto. We do find

[1 That the allegations] made by the aggrieved, against the Rev^d M^r Putnam, as to his Administrations, are groundless and unjust.

2 That the Aggrieved have greatly departed from the Platform, in chapter tenth; in their Carriage towards the Rev^d M^r Putnam.

3 That although the Aggrieved Brethren have something Softned their Charges against their Pastour, by saying that it is their Opinion, that such things were a breach upon their privileges, and to ask farther light in these matters: Yet it is plain, that they are too positive in their Opinion, and too sharp in the expressing thereof, and sometimes use severe expressions, & heavy insinuations.

4 That the Rev^d M^r Putnam did Use some sharpness, as well as extent of Speech, which the Aggrieved look upon as grievous; which, though he had great Provocation, yet had better have been let alone.

5 That Deacon Thomas Taylor ought to humble himself before God, and to the Pastour, & Church for his Disorder, & Opposition to his Pastour, which he hath manifestly discovered in a day of temptation; and for the future demean himself to the Pastour and Church with much humility & Circumspection, lest he should again give Disturbance to the Church of God, and that so doing, the Pastour and Church receive him into their good Opinion, and Charitable affection.

6 That the aggrieved Brethren, & especially Capt: Thomas Briant, having unjustly charged the Rev^d M^r Putnam, as they do in their paper, and have done more so in their publick reports, do therefore Manifest the sence of their evil, in taking up and spreading such evil reports of an Elder without cause, by humbly asking forgiveness of God, & of their injured Pastour; and in their future carriage submit themselves peaceably & orderly to the Ecclesiastical Administrations of him, who is sett over them in the Lord.

Finally, We earnestly entreat by the Gentleness and meekness of Christ, that both Pastour and people make it their sincere endeavour, to forget and forgive all that hath past as grievous to them; laying aside all heart-burning, & evil surmisings, and harsh speeches of, and to one another; and carry themselves with all gentleness, tenderness, meekness, humility, love & charity, preserving the Unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace, that the God of love & peace may be with them.

of the Council.

I read this Result of the Council publickly, on the next Sabbath, being 8th December.²⁸

1723/4 : Feb: 10: Deacon John Chamberlane laid his Accounts before Ensign Joseph Belcher, & M^r Samuel Watts who were appointed by the Church, to Assist me in that Service, and the Church-stock in his hands was found to be, Seven pounds, seven shillings, & eight pence : 7^{ll} : 7^s : 8^d:

March : 19 : I stayed the Church, and propounded to y^e Church, (which I had propounded before to Severall of the Brethren in private, who very readily consented to the Motion) that upon days of publick fasting, and also on days of publick thanksgiving, for the future, we might have a Contribution for the poor.²⁹ I mentioned several things to show that acts of Charity and alms are

Attest. Thomas Cheever. Pastour.

1724: March: 26^t: On this Day a Contribution was made for the poor, according to the beforenamed Vote of y^e Church; & several of the Congregation came into it, and though it was a foul day, there were thirty shillings gathered, & four pence.

Nov: 5^t: Thanksgiving day, stormy day: the Contribution amounted to twenty shillings & 9 pence.

1724/25: Febr: 16. At a Church-meeting, Deacon John Chamberlane laid his accounts before the Church, and the Church Stock in his hands was found to be 8^{li} : 17^s : 9^d.

At the same, John ffloyd as Executor to his ffathers Will, paid a legacy of ten pounds, given to the Church by his ffather in his last will, into the hands of Deacon Chamberlane in behalf of the Church; and it was Voted by the Church that the s^d ten pounds should be laid out in a silver cup for the Use of the Church with the s^d Lt: John ffloyds name upon it, as his gift, & that Deacon John Chamberlane should get it done as speedily as might be.³⁰

At the same Meeting it was agreed that we should have the Sacrament in the Winter, and that from & after the next Sacra-

³⁰ One of the first steps of the society was to procure a communion service, and "Mrs Tuttle wife of Deacon Tuttle," was chosen to select it. The service then procured must have been for temporary use only, as the church now possesses one which includes several pieces of solid silver, of a date but few years subsequent to its organization. One of these is a bell-shaped flagon, "The Gift of Mr J. Floyd to the Church of Christ in Rumney Marsh, 1724." A flagon similar in shape and workmanship, the gift of Deacon John Tuttle, is without date, but probably was presented about the same time, as the locality is again designated as Rumney Marsh, a name which fell into disuse about 1738. Six silver cups, bearing the date of 1798, and a massive goblet, the gift of Deacon William Harris "with his love," 1824, complete the service as at present constituted. The more ancient pieces bear evidence of repeated use and long service, and with them Phillips Payson and Dr. Tuckerman doubtless administered. [They are now deposited in the Revere Public Library.]

ment day which will be on the last Lords day in february, it shall be observed Once in six weeks throughout the year, and that it should be proposed the Next Sacrament day for the Concurrence of Our Maldon Brethren. This was proposed & consented to upon 28th of february.

At the same Meeting after some Debate about the matter, it was Unanimously Voted & agreed, that the Contribution for the Poor upon publick fast days, & thanksgivings should be Continued, & that Notice should be given, the next time when the Proclamation was read, to the Congregation, that the Church did allow them to Nominate some meet person to be joyned with Deacon John Chamberlane to take an account of what should be collected at such times. Attest Thomas Cheever.

April. 1st: Publick fast, the Contribution amounted to thirty shillings.

Oct: 28: Publick thanksgiving, very warm. The Contribution amounted to thirty five shillings.

1726: March: 24: Publick ffast, the Contribution amounted to twenty five shillings & three pence.

March: 29 Deacon Chamberlane laid his accounts before my self with Several of the Bretheren, & the Church stock in his hands was found to be 10ⁿ : 16^s : 7^d.

Novemb: 10: Publick Thanksgiving. The Contribution was appointed for Ebenezer Hill of Maldon, who, having a sore leg for several years, which the Doctours at last judged incurable, unless his leg was cutt off, which was done the 7th of this moneth, petitioned Our Church and Congregation for our Charity: there was gathered about five pounds ten shillings. £5: 10: 11^d 1727, March: 20 At a Church-Meeting after much Debate, it was Voted, that the Contribution for the Poor upon the next ffast day, which is appointed to be on the 30th of this instant March, shall be for M^{rs} Marbles Daughter Hannah who has been a considerable time Under the Doctours hand, having a dangerous humour in her Mouth & throat: &c : and that Notice hereof should be given to the Congregation the Sabbath before, if they had any thing to Object against the Churches proceeding in this matter.

At this Meeting Deacon Chamberlane laid his Accounts before the Church; and the Church Stock in his hands was found to be: 11ⁿ : 11^s : 5^d: And at the same time The Stock in his hands for the Poor was found to be: seven pounds, one & 4^d: 7ⁿ : 01^s: : 4^d.

March: 30. ffast. The Contribution, which according to the forenamed Vote of the Church was appointed for Hannah Marble, (& of which Notice was given to the Congregation) amounted to: three pounds &c: 3ⁿ : 12^s : 9^d:

Octob: 15th. The Church was stayed & the following letter read unto them. [Asking the Church to send delegates to the ordination of Charles Chauncey as pastor of "the old Church in Boston" Wednesday, Oct. 25, 1727.] The Church readily complied with the Desire, & chose D:^{on} John Chamberlane, M^r Hugh Floyd, M^r William Hassey, & M^r Samuel Watts, to accompany me, & Assist in that Service, at the time & place appointed. At which time y^e Rev^d M^r Charles Chauncey was Ordained to the Pastoral Office in s^d Church. Attest Thomas Cheever.

1727: Nov: 9: Publick Thanksgiving: The Contribution for the Poor amounted to thirty one shillings.

1727/28 ffebr. 28th At a Church Meeting appointed to Consider how the contributions for the Poor should be drawn out, as Occasion should require. It was, after some debate, unanimously agreed to choose three of the Church besides Deacon Chamberlane to be a Committee, and that Notice should be given to the Congregation, if they think meet to Choose an equal number to joyn with the Committee chosen by the Church, and that this Committee of the Church and Congregation shall have full power to draw out, and dispose of what is, or shall be collected for the Poor, according to their best judgment and prudence, untill the Church shall see cause to alter this Method when some other or better Method shall appear: (but if the Congregation do not see cause to Choose a Committee, after some reasonable time of two or three moneths allowed for the consideration of this proposal,) then the Committe of Church shall have the power of drawing out and disposing of the money afors^d and give account of their acting in this affair to the Church once in the year. At the same time M^r Samuel Watts, M^r Jacob Hassey, & M^r Samuel Tuttle were Chosen to be joyned with Deacon Chamberlane as a Committe for the end afors^d, and accepted.

At the same time, Deacon Chamberlane laid his accounts before the Church, and the Church Stock in his hands was found to be twelve pounds & five pence, out of which twenty shillings was disbursed for mending the Meeting house windows, so the Church stock in his hands is but eleven pounds & five pence: 11^l : 00^s : 5^d, and there was found, eight pounds, twelve & four pence in his hands for the Poor: 8 : 12 : 4.

Attest Thomas Cheever Pastor.

March 21: Publick ffast. The Contribution for the poor amounted to twenty two shillings & some pence.

Nov: 7: Publick thanksgiving. The Contribution for the poor amounted to thirty nine shillings & some pence.

1728/9: March 4th At a Church meeting, appointed to receive the account of the Committee chosen to draw out & dispose of the money collected for the Poor. The s^d Committee did give an account of five pounds drawn out & disposed of; viz: three pounds to the Widow Lamson, & twenty shillings in wood to Widow Marble, & as much to her daughter the Widow Tuttle. The Church were well satisfied with what they had done. And chose the same persons, to be a Committee for the same purpose, for this year ensuing. The Church also Voted, that Notice should be again given to the Congregation, if they think meet to choose an equal Number to joyn with the Committee chosen by the Church for the business afores^d, and that Notice be given the next Lords day for Church & Congregation to meet at the Meeting house, the Wednesday next after. Attest: Thomas Cheever Pastor.

At the same time Deacon Chamberlane laid his accounts before the Church, and the Church Stock in his hands was found to be: eleven pounds, seventeen, & 7^d: (11: 17: 7:)

March: 20: A publick ffast. The Contribution for the poor amounted to about twenty nine shillings.

1729 May: 25^t: I Communicated the following letter to the Church.

Woburn. May 19. 1729.

To that Church of Christ in Boston, whereof y^e Rev^d Mr Thomas Cheever is the Pastour, Grace, mercy & peace be Multiplied. &c

The Church & Town of Woburn having made Choice of Mr Edward Jackson to be our Minister, and over us in all matters of y^e Lord; & God having inclined his heart to accept our Invitation. We earnestly desire your presence, & Assistance by your Reverend Elder & Messengers, to meet with the Rev^d Elders & Messengers of other Churches, & joyn with them in putting Mr Jackson into the sacred Office of a Pastour over us, according to the Gospel Directory. And humbly asking your most solemn & fervent prayers to the God of all Grace on our behalf, for a good issue of all our Difficulties, & for y^e Success & prosperity of y^e Gospel among us. We remain Yours in the faith & fellowship of the Gospel.

By order & consent of the Major part of the Church & Town of Woburn.

The day appointed for Ordination is Wednesday June 4th next. You are desired to meet on Tuesday June 3^d at the house of Mr Jonathan Pool Esq in Woburn at One of the clock afternoon to prepare matters for Ordination.

The Church readily Complied with the desire, & chose Dⁿ Chamberlane, William Hassey, & Samuel Tuttle, to accompany me & attend that Service. Afterwards Deacon Chamberlane came to me & Desired to be excused from the Service;

June: 1st I stayed the Church & acquainted them with the desire of Deacon Chamberlane & his reasons, whereupon the Church chose M^r Hugh filoyd & M^r Samuel Watts &c

June 3^d I went to Woburn with those four Brethren accompanying of me, where we mett with the Elders & Messengers of Lexington, Redding, Chelmsford, Billerica, Newtown, and Brookline Churches. When we were formed into a Council, we advised to the most probable Methods we could think of for the Accomodating the differences among them, and laboured with M^r Fox & those that held with him, & also with those who did adhere to M^r Jackson, & who were those that had called this Council, & were by far the greater part both of Church & Town, almost two to one, but our advice was not complied with: whereupon the Council came Unanimously into this Vote.

We judge it not advisable to proceed forthwith to Ordination under their present Circumstances.³¹

The result of a Council of 6 Churches called & Convened at Woburn June 3^d 1729 to Consider & advise with respect to the Ordination of M^r Edward Jackson &c.

After Solemn & earnest prayer to God, the God of all Wisdom & Grace, for Divine direction in the very difficult & arduous affairs before us, & upon the most mature thoughts on the perplexed state of affairs in Woburn, We did Solemnly & Unanimously advise to the most probable Methods, we could think of, towards an Accomodation of their unhappy differences which were not mutually complied with all: whereupon we thought it unpracticable to proceed to Ordination under their present Circumstances. But we with bowels of compassion beg of the Contending parties to leave off strife, & contention, & yet pursue the Methods proposed, or any other that can be thought of, more likely to Compose, & heal their unhappy differences, that if it be possible they may yet live in love and peace, that the God of love & peace may yet be & abide with them.

To the Church of Christ in Rumny-marish, Greeting.
R^d & Dearly Beloved.

Whereas there is a Number among us, who call themselves agrieved Brethren, and as they say have proceeded to extraordinary & uncommon means, in Deposing, upon a Delinquent Officer, and which still as they say has involved them in several difficulties; and for their Publick Vindication, & to hear & advise upon the reasons & Regularity of their Ecclesiastical proceeding, & to direct to peace & good Order; have by their letters missive Convened 7 Churches upon the case, Who by their Elders & Messengers in form of an Ecclesiastical Council, taking the Case into their Consideration, have Adjourned to the first Tuesday in September next, at nine of the Clock in the Morning to meet at the house of L:^t Coolidge at Watertown, withall adding, that the Subscriber be with Convenient speed acquainted with it, with liberty to adde a like Number of Seven Churches to make up a Council: and also to lay before s^d Council what may be matter of Grievance to him. We beseech you therefore R:^d & dearly Beloved to pittie us under our great calamities. To pray for us, that the God of all Grace would restore good Order & peace among us: and afford us y^e Assistance of your R^d: Elder, or Elders & such Messenger or Messengers as you shall think fit, to joyn in the aboves^d Council at time & place, with such other Churches, as we have sent to, to make up our Number; to hear, advise, & direct in the aboves^d case, & in what else may have been amiss in their Conduct, and shall be Regularly laid before the Council. That the Great Shepherd of y^e sheep, through the blood of the Everlasting Covenant, would make you perfect in every good work, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, is the hearty prayer of yours, in the faith & fellowship of the Gospel.

The Churches sent to by M^r Parsons, were M^r Barnards, & M^r HolyOkes, M^r Prescott's, M^r Appleton's, M^r Williams of West-town, & M^r Cooks of Sudbury; & Rumny-marish.

August: 24th. I read the letter to the Church, & y^e Church consented to send our beloved brethren, M^r Joseph Belcher. M^r Samuel Watts. M^r William Hassey. M^r Jacob Hassy. & M^r Thomas Brintnal, to accompany me & attend that Service.

Sept: 2^d: The afors^d Brethren appeared, & attended y^e Service at Water-town on the first day of y^e Council. M^r Belcher & M^r William Hassy desired to be excused from farther attendance.

Mr Jacob Hassy did not attend the last day of y^e Council. But Mr Watts & Mr Brintnal attended y^e whole time. The Council sat at Watertown four days & then adjourned to Boston, to meet upon . Sept: 16.

Sept: 16. The Council mett at Boston according to Adjournment, & sat four days in Mr Colman's Meeting house, and drew up their Result, & then Dissolved.

Mr Watts, & Mr Brintnal attended y^e whole time; y^e other Brethren but part of the time:

The agrieved Brethren at Leicester, being y^e Major part of the Church, had deposed their Pastour for Several crimes which they charged him with, under three general heads. first of Male administration. 2^d: Of Delinquency. 3^d Of immorality: and they branched these heads into Several Articles: 8 under the first: 3 under y^e 2^d: under y^e 3^d head they charged him with Slander in 4 articles: and fraudulent dealing: & lying in 4 articles.

they themselves in their letters Missive call their action extraordinary & uncommon, and well they might; the like was never done in this land before; The Council of Churches called by the Agrieved Brethren, Were Mr Colman's, Mr Thachers, & Mr Checklys of Boston, Reading, Medfield, New-town & Oxford. here follows y^e Result of the Council.

At a Council of 14 Churches, called by y^e R:^d Mr David Parsons, & the agrieved Brethren at Leicester, Convened at Watertown Sept: 2^d: 1729. & after by Adjournment at Boston, Sept: 16. following: to hear & judge of the Reasons & Regularity of the Proceedings of the agrieved Brethren: & also what was matter of Grievance to Mr Parsons, & such other things as should be regularly laid before them. After a long & full hearing of both parties, and repeated Supplications to the throne of Grace, We came unto the following Result.

first. With respect to the Several Articles of Charges brought in against Mr Parsons.

ffirst as to the head of Male-administration.

1: It doth not appear, there was any Male-administration of Mr Parsons, in appointing the Sacrament.

2: That Mr Parsons telling the Agrieved Brethren, that he did not desire their presence, when he called the rest of the Church to ask, Whither they had best to call a Council upon the agrieved's request, was not excluding them from Church priviledges: and that Mr Parsons calling that part, (the Minor part) of the Church, with himself, the Church, and taking their advice, as referred to in the Evidence relating to the calling of a Council, We cannot judge to be a Male-administration.

3. As to the 3^d article referring to M^r Read's admission, if dropt by M^r Parsons just after his receiving the result of the former Council, and before the Brethrens Vote of Deposition, as he declares, We think it ought not to have been alledged as an article against him.

4. That M^r Parsons was guilty of Male administration, in admission of the Members referred to in the fourth article. Yet it is the Opinion of the Council, in consideration of their Solemn Covenant with God & them, that the s^d Brethren be looked upon, and accepted by the Church in Leicester, as Members in full Communion.

5 We judge that the Agrieved Brethrens absence from the publick Worship, the Lords day after their receiving the Result of the former Council, was very blame worthy; yet M^r Parsons was also blame worthy, in not referring to another Lords day, the readmission of those Members.

6. As to bringing cases of private Offence before the Church &c. We apprehend, that as to one of these, viz: L.^t Newhals; it having been transacted before the Churches renewal of Covenant, the Brethren should not have made it a charge upon him. As to the other case of M^r Thomas Richardson, it having been made a publick talk, M^r Parsons apprehended it might supersede a private dealing; which though a mistake & unadvised in him; yet he having issued the Matter; We also apprehend that the Brethren should not have proceeded farther in it.

7. As to the seventh article of Charge, viz: M^r Parsons commanding the Deacon out of his seat &c, though M^r Parsons provocation at time was very great & aggravated, yet we judge, the expressions (as in the words of the evidence) were very rash, & carry in them a power, which does not belong to a Pastour, according to the Constitution of these Churches.

8. That it does not appear, that M^r Parsons laid any Charge against the Brethren, as alledged in the eighth article: yet supposing M^r Parsons had done, as they say, We cannot look upon it a Male administration under their Circumstances.

Secondly, as to the head of Delinquency.

1 That it does not appear, that M^r Parsons was guilty of any Culpable Delinquency with respect to the first article, considering their Circumstances, but rather gave a just answer to them, who desired him to lead them in the Choice of a Ruling Elder.

2 As to the 2^d charge. We apprehend the State of the Church was such at that time, that M^r Parsons acted prudently in proposing, & endeavouring to issue the matters of Difference in another way.

3 That M^r Parsons does not appear guilty of any culpable Delinquency in the case of Slaro Thirdly. As to the head of Immorality: and first. Slander.

1. That we cannot tax M^r Parsons with Slander, in calling a certain Meeting a Cabal considering his explanation of himself, as to his acceptance of the Design of said Meeting, & the time & Occasion of Using the word, and that he professeth he designed no reflection upon religious meetings.

2. That it does not appear, M^r Parsons is guilty of Slander, as charged in the 2^d article.

3. It does not appear, M^r Parsons was guilty of Slander, according to y^e charge in 3^d article.

4. We judge it a rash & injurious expression of M^r Parsons, to call a number of the Church a Mob.

Secondly as to fraudulent dealing.

It is Unanimously agreed, that there does not appear any fraudulent dealing in M^r Parsons, with respect to the bond or Note from M^r Newhal, or with respect to the Deeds of Quit claim.

thirdly. As to lying.

It is Unanimously agreed, that it does not appear to this Council, that M^r Parsons was guilty of lying, in the four several articles charged against him, though we think he should have been more considerate & cautious in the expressions in his letter to the R:^d Doctour Mather.

Secondly. After all that hath been heard & debated. It is Unanimously agreed, that the R:^d M^r David Parsons, hath not been guilty of any such Crimes, as render him unworthy of the Gospel Ministry, or of the Ministry in the Church of Leicester.

Thirdly. That although this Council are very desirous to Assert & Preserve the power of Particular Churches, to Depose, or Disclaim their Officers according to the Rules of Congregational Discipline, as laid down in the Platform: Yet we judge the Agrieved ffraternity in the Church of Leicester were guilty of great irregularity, in proceeding to Depose the R:^d M^r Parsons, as they have done. And in as much as they did it, so soon after the sitting of a Venerable Council, (which after hearing most of their Charges, and Differences, were farr from advising to any such thing); and without seeking farther, and waiting longer for the advice of another Council; as also contrary to the advice and perswasion of many Worthy persons in a private way. Therefore We judge the R:^d M^r David Parsons is still the Regular Pastour of the Church in Leicester.

Fourthly. With respect to the Articles of Charge & Grievance laid before us by M^r Parsons: Several of which he withdrew.

1. First, we judge, (as a former Council did,) that the R^d M^r Parsons hath been shamefully treated, with respect to his Support, for the time past; and do earnestly recommend it to the Town of Leicester, to pay those Arrearages, that have been so long due, and to provide for his Support for the future: and do all that becomes Christians on their part, to Secure unto M^r Parsons a just & full title to his lands in Leicester.

2. We cannot but bear Our Testimony against such Unreasonable & Unjustifiable actions, as that of Opposing M^r Parsons his going into his Pulpit on the Lords day, & setting up another in Opposition to him, in such an unseemly way & manner, though they might be led into it from their Misapprehension of things.

3. We judge it the Duty of the Agrieved Brethren & people of Leicester to Return from their Private Assembling on the Lords day, to the Publick Worship of God under the Ministry of the R^d M^r David Parsons.

4. We judge that Deacon Southgate ought not to Withhold the Churches Vessels from the Use of the R^d M^r Parsons, and the Church.

Fiftly. Having thus given Our thoughts, upon the several matters laid before us. We do, as in the fear of God, and tender mercies of Our Lord Jesus Christ, earnestly beseech Our Beloved Brother in Christ, the R^d M^r David Parsons, Seriously & with grief to lay to heart the broken State of his flock; and to consider how far any rashness in his words, and hastiness in his actions may have been Offensive to his Brethren, in the day of darkness, & temptation that has passed over him, and be humbled for them. And we do earnestly Recommend to him a just Regard to the Tenour of the Platform of Church Discipline, in the Allowance of the proper power of the Brotherhood pursuant to their Church Vote. We do also with the same earnestness Exhort, & perswade the Beloved Agrieved Brethren of the Church of Leicester, seriously to Consider, how far they have suffered themselves, in the day of temptation, through some mistaken conception of things, to be led into Uncharitable thoughts of, & rash & unjustifiable carriage toward their Pastour: as also how far a too Groundless Spirit of Opposition to their Pastour, may have hindred the growth of the Church, and the Success of the Gospel among them, and deeply to afflict & humble themselves therefor.

And now Brethren, We would call upon you all, with the greatest meekness & Concern of Soul; to remember the Solemn Obligations you have brought your selves under before God, and this Council, to hearken to Our Christian advice, and return to each other, in the love & spirit of the Gospel, and receive one another in the Lord: and put away from you all bitterness, and wrath, clamour, & evil speaking, with all malice, as becomes the Disciples of the Meek and lowly Jesus: to love one another, to put on, as the Elect of God, bowels of mercy, kindness, humbleness of mind, long-suffering, forbearing One another, & forgiving One another, as we hope, God for Christs sake hath forgiven you; and above all put on Charity, which is the bond of perfectness. *13: john. 34. 35: 12. At the same time, Our brother Mr William Hassey was chosen to the Office of a Deacon by a Majority of Votes, & Voters; he Objected his unfitness, but it was left to his serious Consideration, and that he should Manifest his acceptance of the Churches call to s^d Office, by sitting in the Deacons seat. At the same Meeting Elisha Tuttle, being sent to by the Church, came and being asked the reason of his Withdrawing from the Communion of the Church after Considerable debate, he Owned that he had done wrong in his Withdrawing, and that he was Sorry, he had neglected so long without asking a dismission. Upon which the Church declared that they would be satisfied, with what he had declared, for the time past, provided he did return to his duty.

April: 4: A General ffast.

The church at Rumney Marsh received a letter from the Second Church of Boston, of which Joshua Gee and Samuel Mather were pastors, calling its attention to "the Scandalous Differences, & Divisions that have arisen & prevailed for some years in the first Church of Christ at Salem," of which Rev. Mr. Fisk was pastor, and that on the request of "a Considerable Number of the Brethren of that Church," the Boston church determined by its Elders and other delegates to visit the Salem church "in order more fully to Understand their case, & to know what might be our farther Duty relating to it."

Accordingly the Salem church were notified of this purpose in a letter addressed to Rev. Mr. Fisk, and asking for a conference on February 20, 1733/4. This letter, however, Mr. Fisk did not communicate to his church; but he and some members of the church wrote private letters to discourage the coming of the delegates of the Boston church. But these letters only served to confirm the latter in "a persuasion, that [they] were called to Testify [their] Communion with the first Church in Salem, according to the Method prescribed in our Platform of Church discipline, commonly called, the third Way of Communion, and agreeably to the Advice of a Council of Churches Assembled at Salem in the Summer past." The delegates proceeded to Salem, but Rev. Mr. Fisk refused to receive them; whereupon they, after inquiring into the state of affairs, as they were directed, signed "a letter of Brotherly Admonition" to the Salem church, and waited on Mr. Fisk and entreated him "to accept & communicate it"; but this also Mr. Fisk refused, "declaring he would have nothing to do with a letter that came in the third way of Communion: so that [the Boston church was] denied the Priviledge of Communion with Our Brethren the first Church in Salem, either by letters or by conference."

There appear to have been three ways of communion between churches: First, by mutual care; secondly, by consultation with one another; and thirdly, by admonition.³⁴

Being thus repulsed in their friendly offers, the Boston church made one more endeavor to bring Mr. Fisk to reason according to the Platform, and accordingly wrote to him enclosing a copy of their former letter of admonition, and beseeching him to relieve the Boston church of the necessity of calling in other churches to assist in the work of discipline. But Mr. Fisk remained obdurate, and took no notice of the second letter. Whereupon the Boston church sent letters to several other churches, among which was that of Rumney Marsh, asking them to appear by their Elders and other delegates at a conference to be held at Salem, to join in "Seconding our Charitable Admonition" to the Salem church.³⁵

April: 14: I read this letter to the Church : And they readily complied with the business, and Consented to Send our Beloved Brethren. Deacon Chamberlane, Deacon Hassey, Capt Samuel Watts & Mr Jacob Hassey, with my self to Attend that Service.

Deacon Chamberlane at his desire was excused; the other three attended the service.

1734: Ap: 28: This 28th of April, I acquainted the Church, that we according to their Vote Went to Salem, the 23^d of this instant; Where we mett the Delegates of the Second Church in Boston, and the Delegates of the third Church in Boston, & the Delegates of the first Church in Gloucester. After we were formed into a Council, the Delegates of the Second Church in Boston laid before us the Case of the first Church in Salem, from a considerable Number of letters, & other Papers, as also their Charitable Admoni[tion] to the s^d first Church in Salem, whereby it did plainly appear to us, that there had been Scandalous Contention in the first Church of Salem of long Continuance, & that they had Neglected to use proper means for healing their Divisions. Whereupon We were convinced it was our Duty to joyn with the Second Church in Boston, in Seconding their Charitable Admonition. Here follow's a Copy of what was done by the Council.³⁶

1734, May 15: At a Church-meeting appointed to deal with our brother William Tuttle for drunkenness, he Offered an acknowledgement which was read; and after Considerable debate about his acknowledgment, whither it were sufficient for his being restored to the Communion of the Church at the Lords table from which he had absented himself for a considerable time, it was Concluded on the Negative, for these reasons: first, because he had contracted a habit of drunkenness by frequent acts; & also because he had often made great promises of reformation to such of the Brethren as had dealt with him about his sin, but all were soon forgotten: & also because he did not offer his acknowledgement untill he knew the Church had appointed to deal with him. Upon the whole the Church concluded he should be Suspended from the Lords table for some time to see Whither his seeming repentance were attended with fruits meet for repentance & a reformation: the Sentence of Suspension was formally pronounced.

June: 9. At night I acquainted the Church with the result of the Council, upon their Adjournment to Boston, May 28th; who on May 30th, Unanimously concluded, that Our Churches ought to make use of a Synod, or Council of Neighbour Churches Walking orderly, for the conviction of the first Church in Salem, according to the Direction of our Platform; together with the Several Churches which they agreed to Call in, (27 Churches sent to) ³⁷ and read the copy of the letter to be sent to those Churches. The Church Voted, that their former Delegates should attend this Service untill the matter were brought to an issue.

1734/5: ffeb: 21: At a Church Meeting appointed to consider what we had to do farther in the case of the first Church at Salem: after the reading of some letters, & the proposals made by M^r ffisk to his aggrieved Brethren, with the remarks of the Council upon them, as also the Result of the Council; and some debate; the Church Voted their approving and accepting the judgment of the Council; I then read the following declaration and the Church Voted it without any contradicting, & that it should be publickly read the next Lords day, which was done accordingly. Attest. Thomas Cheever.

We the Church of Christ in Rumny-marish, having upon the call & invitation of the 2^d Church in Boston, sent Our Elder & other Delegates, to meet with the Delegates of the s^d 2^d Church in Boston, and the Delegates of some Other Churches, at Salem upon the 23^d of April last; when & where they mett with the Elders & Delegates of the 3^d Church in Boston, & the first Church in Glocester: and having the state of the first Church in Salem laid before them by the Delegates of the 2^d Church in Boston, together with the Charitable Admonition of the s^d Church given to the first Church in Salem for their Neglect of the Means of peace under their Scandalous Contentions; & being fully satisfied that there has been a Scandalous Contention for a long time in the first Church in Salem, and that s^d Church has Neglected to use the proper means for healing their Divisions; and that the 2^d

Church in Boston had just reason to give an Admonition to the first Church in Salem for that their Neglect; and that they had given their Admonition with Regularity, Prudence, and tenderness; and being fully sensible of the just Occasion of Uniting with the Delegates of the 2^d Church in Boston, in Seconding their Charitable Admonition, both because the first Church in Salem still Continue in Contention, refuse to hearken to the Admonition given them, & still Neglect to Use the means of peace:

Accordingly Our Delegates, with the Delegates of the third Church in Boston, & the first Church in Gloucester Uniting with the Delegates of the 2^d Church in Boston, made their Application to the Rev:^d M^r Fisk, that he would allow them a Conference with him & his Church upon the Melancholy Occasion; and when this was absolutely refused; they joyned in Seconding the Admonition of the 2^d Church in Boston, as both the reason of the thing, & the Platform of our Church discipline, agreeably to the Rules of Gods word directed: And having adjourned to meet at Boston on May: 28: that they might know, whither their Admonition had the desired good effect on the first Church in Salem, it then appeared by letters & testimonies received from 21 aggrieved Brethren at Salem, that the s^d letter of Admonition had been once and again refused by the Pastor, with repeated declarations that he would neither hear, nor receive it; so that the first Church in Salem appears to continue Obstinate & impenitent under Scandalous Divisions, & refuses to hearken to the Charitable Admonition of Neighbour Churches. Whereupon the Delegates of the 4 abovementioned Churches were Unanimously of Opinion, that their Churches ought to proceed to make Use of the help of a Synod, or Council of Neighbour Churches Walking Orderly, for the Conviction of Our Brethren of the first Church in Salem. Accordingly by their letters they Called in a great Number of Churches, to meet at Salem on the 16th of July.

When we received from Our Delegates an account of what they had done in Our name, and what they had farther concluded upon, We were well satisfied therewith, and Voted that Our former Delegates should attend this Service, untill it were brought to an issue. The Major part of the Churches, that were sent to, did meet at Salem, on the 16th of July, by their Elders & other Delegates, & having formed themselves into a Council, by choosing R^d: M^r Nehemiah Walter of Roxbury their Moderator; they sent for the Delegates of the four Churches abovenamed to lay before them the Melancholy case of the first Church in Salem; the Steps they had taken, & what they had to Offer, for the Justification of their Apprehension, that that Church is Obstinate & impenitent in Scandalous Division among them: which when they had done, and Answered Several Objections made against their proceedings; The Council justified the Proceedings of the s^d 4 Churches, & desired the 4 Churches to joyn with this Council, in their farther proceeding, as by their Votes app[ear.] When the 4 Churches were joyned with the Council, the Council reinforced the repeated Admonitions given to the first Church in Salem, by leaving with them a letter of Advice for their Conviction, & Adjourned to 15th of October.

The Council met again at Salem according to Adjournment, Octob: 15: and having Examined & Maturely Weighed the case of the first Church in Salem, as they say in their Result, and having Offered other proper Methods for their Conviction, which proved ineffectual, the Council declared their Apprehension & judgment, that the first Church in Salem hath Slighted all means that have been used with them, nor have complied with their Duty as a Church, in any one particular: and farther declared that, as the s^d Church, Notwithstanding a long Series of Reproofs, Admonitions, & advice & other Means, upon the account of their Open Offences, still remains Obstinate, We the Council afor^s^d think Our Selves called to bear Witness against the Male-administration of that Offending Church, according to Direction of Our Platform of Church discipline. Accordingly in the Name of Our Lord Jesus Christ, We protest, declare, and publish, that this Church is become Obstinate & impenitent Scandal, and hath justly exposed it self to a Sentence of Non-Communion from Our several Churches. Having made which Declaration, We farther proceed to Declare to all the Churches of Our Lord Jesus Christ through this Province; that the first Church in Salem hath ju[stly] forfeited the Priviledge of Communion with these Churches, & deserve *to be deprived of the priviledge. However the Council, conformably to the pattern of Our great Saviour, who hath compassion on the ignorant, and on such as are out of the way, think & make known, that the Churches, to which we respectively belong, may out of tenderness & compassion delay to Pron[ounce] the Sentence of Non-communication for the space of three Moneths after the Date of this our declaration: and if after the patient & tender delay of this Sentence, it shall not appear [to] our respective Churches, that the first Church in Salem have repented & betaken themselves to the use of proper means of peace and healing, We then advise, that Our Churches, approving and accepting the judgment of the Council, do Declare the Sentence of Non communion respectively concerning them; and that they Withdraw themselves from Participation with them at the Lords table, and from such other acts of holy Communion, as the Communion of Churches doth otherwise allow and require.

We the Church beforenamed declare, that we approve and accept the judgment of the Council, and having waited four moneths, to see whither the first Church in Salem have repented, and betaken themselves to the Use of proper means of peace & healing; but no such thing appearing, We now Proceed to declare the Sentence of Non Communion concerning them. Accordingly in the Name of Our Lord Jesus Christ, We do solemnly publish & declare that we will not hold Communion with the first Church in Salem, neither by participation with them at the Lords table, nor any other act of holy Communion, as the Communion of Churches doth otherwise allow and require. And in as much as there are Several Members of that Offending Church, named in the Result of the Council, who do not consent to the Offence of the Church, but do in due sort bear Witness against it, We will receive them to wonted Communion. ³⁹ The trial and condemnation of the Salem church, proceeding with great regularity in accordance with the accepted ecclesiastical rules in such cases, led to results far more serious than would follow in these days. Then the Church proceeded to the consideration of their choice of M^r Jacob Hassey to the Office of a Deacon their last Meeting, because some manifested great uneasiness about that Vote, desiring the Church to reconsider it; after considerable arguings pro and con; When it was put to the Vote, Whither the Church did abide by their former Vote, it passed in the Affirmative by a great Majority of at least two to One: Then the Church proceeded to make Choice of Deacon Chamberlane, M^r Samuel Tuttle, & M^r Nathanael Oliver to treat with Capt. After considerable debate, and the answers given by those Brethren to what M^r Tuttle Objected and declaring they had no personal Prejudice against him, and should be glad if he would return to his Duty: M^r Tuttle Owned that he had done wrong in his Absenting himself so long, without endeavouring to remove those Prejudices: and promised that for the future he would attend his Duty in Communion with the Church as long as should be for his edification: hereupon the Brethren declared themselves satisfied therewith, and M^r Tuttle said, he did thankfully accept it. CHAPTER XXVIII

REV. WILLIAM McCLENACHAN'S PASTORATE

THE records of the Rumney Marsh Church by Thomas Cheever cover the thirty-two years between October 19, 1715, when he was ordained, and September 24, 1747, when, by reason of age, and at his request, he was relieved, and Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., appointed church scribe.

The ministers of the Boston churches, of which before 1739 that of Rumney Marsh was one, were supported by free weekly contributions; but in the country, compulsory laws were necessary,¹ and thereafter the town stood to the church as the modern religious society now does.²

As the town and church were coördinate bodies for the maintenance of religious worship, their separate action as leading to the purpose of each, is best shown by interlacing their records chronologically: and thus I shall present them. But first I gather from the town records a few items about religious affairs between 1739 and 1747 before continuing those of the church.

In the warrant, May 20, 1742, was this article: "Will the town hear a petition of the proprietors of the new meeting house, and accept the same as the town's house."³ I find no action then or afterwards.

March 7, 1743. Would the Town purchase a Bell? Passed in the negative: reconsidered and left to Thomas Pratt, Nathan'l Oliver, Jun., Deacon Jacob Hassey, to consider.

² Dr. Tuckerman, twenty-fifth anniversary sermon, says, that Cheever received his support from the voluntary contributions of those who heard him. But, in March, 1748, the town voted him, "£12. 10 shillings, old tenor, quarterly, during his life, as a consideration of his quitting any claim he may have to the contributions, hereafter to be made on the Sabbath." for a town burying-place. Nath. Cheever and Samuel Pratt to inquire into an old grant (as is supposed) where the burying-place is.⁴

May 18. Accepted the offer of the Hon'ble Samuel Watts, Esq., of £100, old tenor, to purchase a Bell, and the report that a bell of 300 pounds weight, or thereabouts, would do. Hon. Samuel Watts, Esq., to procure it.⁵

March 5, 1744. A committee was appointed to endeavor to raise twenty pounds, old tenor; and if they do, to wait upon Samuel Watts, Esq., and request him to add to it his donation, and send for the Bell as soon as may be.⁶

May 17, 1744. Voted twenty pounds more, old tenor, towards the Bell. Nathaniel Oliver, Jun., John Brintnall, Stephen Kent, with the advice and assistance of Samuel Watts, Esq., to send for it as soon as may be.⁷

March 4, 1745, the town, getting ready for the bell, Voted that the Selectmen take care of the Meeting House in repairing the platform on the steeple.

"Ye affair about ye Bell referred till next May meeting."⁸ No action is mentioned until three years later, March 18, 1748, when it was "Voted that Hon'ble Samuel Watts, Esq., send to England for the Bell that he offered to give to the town."⁹ That was the last of it.

Jany. 12, 1746-7. Voted to comply with the desire of reverend Mr. Cheever to supply the Pulpit this cold season, and fifty pounds, old tenor, for the charges; leaving the number of days of such supply to the discretion of Samuel Watts, Thomas Pratt, and Samuel Pratt.¹⁰

July 16, 1747. A meeting of the freeholders and other inhabitants, to see if the Town will raise money to support the preaching of the Gospel, and choose a committee to provide a minister and lay out the money (if raised for that purpose) and take proper measures to provide a parsonage, in order to settle a minister. Voted to raise eighty pounds old tenor to support the preaching of the gospel, Hon. Samuel Watts, Esq., Elder Hassey, and Mr. Thomas Pratt a committee to provide a minister and lay out said money. Then proposed to choose a committee to provide a parsonage in order to settle a minister: and after considerable debate passed in the affirmative. Honorable Samuel Watts, Mr. Samuel Tuttle, and Hugh Floyd were chosen.¹¹

As arrearages have been brought up, entries from the town and church records will now appear in chronological order.

Chelsea, Sept. 24, 1747. At a Church meeting at the house of the Pastor and moderator of said meeting: He proposed to the Church his desire that Nath'l Oliver, Junr., might be appointed scribe to make and keep a record of the Church's proceedings, which was voted, Nem'e Contrad'e.

Voted, that Wednesday, the 7th of October, next, be a day of fasting and prayer, to implore the direction of Almighty God in the choice of a minister, as colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Cheever. Messrs. Samuel Floyd and Nathan'l Oliver, Junr., in the name of the Church, to invite the Rev. Messrs. Appleton, Emerson, Abbott, Hobby, Prentice, and Cleaveland, to assist in said Solemnity. Elder Hasey to make provisions at his house for the entertainment of said gentlemen, at the church's charge.

Elder Watts, Elder Hasey, and Nathan'l Oliver, Junr., to settle the Church's account with Deacon Hasey, and report thereupon at their next meeting; the same committee to request the donation of Mr. Hugh Floyd, deceased, of his Executor; and if they receive the same in cash or plate, give a discharge therefor, and the Rev'd Messrs. Appleton and Abbott be desired to preach the sermons on the intended fast.

Adjourned to the first Monday after the fast, at Elder Hasey's house, at 3 o'clock, to receive the above reports, and transact any other business.

Die Sabati, Sept. 27, 1747. After divine service the Rev. Mr. Cheever informed the Church that the Rev'd gentlemen appointed to attend the Fast proposed, could not officiate on said day, but would endeavor it on Wednesday, the 14th Octob. Voted to postpone said Solemnity till Wednesday, and adjourned to the Monday following.

Oct. 1, 1747. To see if the town will empower the former committee; or choose a new one, to supply the pulpit three months, on such terms as the town shall agree on. To see what sum of money the town will raise to defray the charge thereof. Voted to empower the former committee. Then asked how long said Committee shall supply the pulpit and after long debate, ¹¹ Town Rec., i. 22.

Voted they shall provide for six months, and to raise £120, old tenor, to defray the charge thereof.¹²

Die Lunae, Oct. 19. The Church met at the house of Mr. Nathan Cheever, inasmuch as the Rev'd Pastor could not travel so far as Elder Hasey's, to which the Church was adjourned.

The Committee reported that the Church was indebted for clements two pounds, thirteen shillings and five pence, old tenor, and the account for the poor stood Cr. in favor of the Church eight pounds, ten shillings and four pence — that there was also in the Deacon's hands an English shilling and a new England sixpence.

Also reported that they thought proper that the heirs of Mr. Hugh Floyd, deceased, should themselves purchase a piece of Plate with their father's Donation, and present the same to the Church; which Reports were severally accepted.

Elder Hasey then presented his account of Charges at the last fast, which was £9-0-2, old tenor. Allowed. Proposed to discharge the same by subscription. Subscribed, £9, old tenor; more than discharged Elder Hasey's account. Delivered to Deacon Hasey, and he desired to Credit the Church therefor.

Moved and seconded that the Church proceed to the Choice of a Colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Cheever. Passed in the negative. Voted the town's committee be desired to request and agree with the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan to preach for the term of two months, on further probation. Then the moderator after prayer adjourned Sine Die.¹³

ings of the Rev. Benjamin Allen, in respect to Congregational order, discipline, and doctrine; and his refusal "to have any application to an ecclesiastical judicature, Saying the law was his Support, thereby he would oblige them to maintain him, and he cared not if ever he saw any of them in his meeting house." He concludes by asking a hearing, civil or ecclesiastical, in any way the General Court might appoint. That body dismissed the petition as irregular, it not having proceeded against the Rev. Mr. Allen in an ecclesiastical way. (Mass. Archives, xii. 162, 166.) But this was mere subterfuge.

Mr. McClenachan's first ministry at Georgetown was short, and that at Cape Elizabeth still shorter. In 1742 he was again at Georgetown, and in 1746, Chaplain to Brigadier Waldo's regiment in the expedition to the Bay of Fundy, from which he returned to Boston in February, 1747. The next year he was preaching in Chelsea, and was invited to settle, though with considerable opposition. One of the dissentients wrote to Mr. Smith in August, 1748, for some account of him, saying, "that after all my inquiries into his character, to me it still appears bad." About 1754 he became a convert to the Church of England, and was sent by the society for propagating the gospel as a missionary to Georgetown, Dresden, and neighboring places on the eastern frontier. He arrived in Kennebec in May, 1756, and established himself at Richmond. In 1758 he moved to Pennsylvania, and was settled over a society in Philadelphia. (Willis, supra. I find a reference to R. P. Robbins, Philadelphia Hospital of the P. E. Church, but have not been able to verify it.)

The following notice of Rev. William McClenachan is from a sermon by Rev. Joseph Tuckerman, D.D., preached on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his settlement at Chelsea, pp. 6-9.

"Mr. McClenachan came into the town a stranger; and after preaching by successive invitations for ten months, and exciting great interest in the pulpit, and as great doubts and fears concerning himself out of it, it was at length 'agreed, that three of the neighbouring ministers should be requested to examine him, with regard to his principles, and other abilities for the work of a gospel minister.' The three gentlemen appointed to this service declined it, and advised the church to apply to the association of ministers in Boston. Application was accordingly made to the Boston Association, who also refused to examine him, on the ground that they were unacquainted with him, and that it would be a deviation from their practice. But on the 13th of April, 1748, the church voted, 'by a great majority, to invite Mr. McClenachan to be their pastor; and to request the town, as soon as may be, to join with them in giving this invitation.' Accordingly, on the 3d of May, following, the church having received a vote of the town to concur with them, the 2d [28th] of September was appointed for his inauguration. In this interval, however, new doubts arose respecting the character of the pastor elect; a church meeting was called to obtain, if possible, a solution of them; and this satisfaction not having been obtained, the time of ordination was postponed. But on the 12th of October, a council assembled for the purpose of inducting him into his office. A memorial was presented to them by five members of the church, stating their objections to the ordination of Mr. McClenachan. And though he acquitted himself to the satisfaction of the council from most of the charges made against him, it was determined that the day of ordination should be deferred to the third Tuesday of December. The council met again, according to adjournment; adjourned again to the twentieth; and, after a long debate, voted to install Mr. McClenachan on the succeeding day. His ministry here was short; and I think that it could neither have been profitable to others, nor happy to himself. He never acquired the confidence of those who were at first dissatisfied with him. But as a preacher, I am told, that he was quite as eloquent as Whitefield. Many of the parish, however, would not hear him, and united themselves, during his ministry, with the religious society in Malden. But many also, from the towns about us, as regularly travelled far to worship here. In December, 1754, he desired a dissolution of his pastoral relation to this church; but it was unanimously voted by the church not to dismiss him. Without regarding this vote, Mr. McClenachan soon dissolved the relation by leaving the town, after having officiated as its pastor for six years. He immediately united himself with the Episcopal church, soon went to England, and there, or in Ireland, became a minister under the establishment. I know but little more of him. But it is worthy of notice, that, during his ministry, it was voted by the church, ‘that it shall not be a term of communion, that persons to be admitted into the church shall exhibit a written relation, so termed, as has heretofore been the practice in this church’; — ‘that divine service, for the future, upon all fast days, be performed with singing psalms as upon the Lord’s day’; ‘and, after considerable difficulties and objections, that Watts’ Psalms and Hymns should be adopted, instead of the version that had hitherto been used in public worship.’”

Die Lunae, March 8, 1747-8. At a church meeting at the meeting-house appointed to see if the Church would proceed to the choice of a colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Cheever, or what the Church would act with respect to the supply of the pulpit under the advanced age of the rev'd Pastor.

After some debate it was thought proper to take the advice and opinion of some Judicious neighboring ministers respecting the ministerial qualifications of the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan, and that he [be] desired to supply the Pulpit for a further term as the town's Committee should agree with them:

Accordingly the following letter was draughted, and Messrs. Hugh Floyd with Nathan'l Oliver, Junr., appointed a Committee to wait on the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan for his Consent, and then present the same to the gentlemen to whom it was directed. Upon his assent, the Committee proceeded.

Chelsea, March 8, 1747-8.

The Church of Christ in Chelsea, to the Rev'd Messrs. Nathaniel Appleton, William Hobby, and Ellis Gray:

After hearing the Rev'd Mr. William McClenachan for the space of near ten months and that to very general Satisfaction in the town, Our church met this day to see what they should do with regard to the Supply of the pulpit for the future, or whether they should proceed to the choice of said gentleman as colleague to our Rev'd and aged Pastor, Mr. Cheever; and after mature Consideration, the Church voted to postpone such matter till after Mr. McClenachan had been approved of by you, in conjunction with any other one or two other gentlemen he shall appoint, both with regard to his principles and other abilities for the work of a Gospell Minister.

These therefore, in behalf of the Church, request you'll do us the favor to attend such service with all convenient speed, at such your Consideration & to Make such Law for the Ease and reliefe of those of the denoms of Presbyterians inhabitting sd Town as has been heretofore done for the reliefe of other denoms of Christians or to appoint a day at the next Meeting of this Great & Generall Court for your Petr & his hears of the Denom^a aforesd to be heard upon the Merritts of their Case . . . Also a lot of salt marsh, nine acres more or less, bounded easterly on Isaac Lewis's marsh; northerly by the great beach to a small creek; thence by said creek northerly and westerly till it comes to the westerly end of the long beach; thence southerly on said beach till it comes to said marsh of Lewis's.

Also four acres, more or less, of marsh near the above lot, together with the improvement of a way to the town road. May 23, 1748. Suff. Deeds, L. 93, f. 3. As to the sale of the "town house," see Selectmen's Rec., i. 7.

These marsh lands appear to be those afterwards called the "Town's Marsh." Between April 24, 1749, and April 26, 1762, there are various entries on the records respecting the sale of the grass, or of the lands. September 3, 1759, it was voted to accept the offer of James Pitts, if no higher was made. Town Rec., i. 44, 50, 51, 53, 60, 63, 65, 67, 68, 87. Also Selectmen's Rec., i. 3, 6, 8, 16, 17, 30; and appendix at end of this chapter.

June 18, 1753, Samuel Tuttle conveyed to John Tudor, for £226. 13. 4, about twenty-six and a half acres, adjacent to the Hasey grant above. (The description is of no present value, except that it identifies the lot as including that now belonging to the heirs of the late Benjamin H. Dewing, at the northwesterly corner of the junction of Malden Street in Revere with the Salem Turnpike, on both sides thereof. Its southerly bound nearly coincided with the northerly bound of the estate of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Tuckerman. The original parsonage house was torn down some years ago, and Mr. Dewing preserved the porch.) Suff. Deeds, L. 82, f. 249.

March 8, 1756, John Tudor of Boston, a baker, for £253. 6. 8, conveyed the same estate to Samuel Watts, Nathan Cheever, Benjamin Brintnall, then selectmen, and for the use of the town. Suff. Deeds, L. 91, f. 87.

March 11, 1758, Thomas Goldthwait, Nathan Cheever, Benjamin Brintnall, Samuel Pratt, and Samuel Sargent, as selectmen and feoffees in trust for the town of Chelsea, for five shillings, and by virtue of a grant of £150, to Rev. Phillips Payson conveyed to him the same estate. Suff. Deeds, L. 93, f. 168.

But by reason of some informality in this deed, Payson conveyed the estate to the town, December 14, 1770, Suff. Deeds, L. 118, f. 219; and February 7, 1771, Jonathan Green, Thomas Pratt, and Samuel Sprague, as a committee of the town, legally chosen, December 13, 1770, gave a proper deed of the premises to Mr. Payson. Ibid., L. 118, f. 220.

they should assign. Accordingly, on Thursday, the eleventh instant, the above Committee waited upon the Rev'd Mr. Appleton with the above letter, and acquainted Mr. Welstead with the Churches desire, showing him a copy thereof, and from the united concurrence of those Gentlemen, delivered to the said Committee, it appeared to them an unusual procedure, and declined to undertake in such an affair, at the same time gave it as their advice to the Church to apply in the same manner to the association of ministers in the town of Boston. All which, the said Committee communicated to the Rev'd Mr. Cheever, who, on the fourteenth instant, March, stop't the Church, and appointed Wednesday, the seventeenth instant, a Church meeting, at his own house, to take the abovesaid matter more fully into consideration.

March 17. At a meeting of the Church of Christ, in Chelsea, at the house of the Rev'd Mr. Thos. Cheever, Pastour and Moderator of said meeting.

Upon consideration of the refusal of the Gentlemen requested by the Church to examine the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan respecting his ministerial Qualifications, Agreed unanimously, that the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan, if he sees fit to, wait on the afore-said Pastors of the town of Boston, at their next meeting, and offer himself to Examination respecting his ministerial Qualifications. And then Voted this meeting be adjourned till this Church receive an answer from said association.

March 18, 1748. Voted to raise the sum of Ten pound, Bills of the last emission, for the support of the Gospell in said town.¹⁵

March 29. The Church met at the house of the Rev'd Mr. Thos. Cheever, and having received a Vote of the Rev'd Associated Pastors of the town of Boston, expressive of their disinclination to comply with the Churches desire that they would give this Church their thoughts of the ministerial Qualifications of the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan, as such a practice was unusual, and they were unacquainted with said Gentleman.

After some debate, Voted to meet on Monday, the 13th of April, next, to see if the Church would give the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan an invitation to settle among us, as Colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Thos. Cheever – said meeting to be at ye meeting-house, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to which time this meeting stands adjourned.

April 13, 1748. The Church met at the meeting-house by adjournment, and after prayer, the Rev'd Moderator, viz., Mr. Cheever, proposed that the Church should bring in their written Votes for a Pastor Colleague with him; by which Votes, it appeared that the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan was chosen by a great majority.

Voted, the selectmen of the town be desired to issue their Warrant to call a town's meeting as soon as may be, to see if the town would concur with the Church in their Choice of the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan, and if they did, to choose a committee to join with the ruling elders in waiting on said gentleman for his answer.

April 18, 1748. In the Warrant; To see if the town will concur with the Church in their choice of the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan to settle as colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Cheever, in the pastoral office over the Church in said town, and what settlement and what salary they will allow him (if chosen). 'Twas motioned whether ye town would suspend ye Vote for a term, and hear some other gentleman preach in order for a choice, and passed in the negative. They voted by written Votes and passed in the affirmative to concur with the church in their choice of the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan¹⁶ to settle as a colleague with the Rev'd Thomas Cheever over the church in said town. Then the Vote was asked, whether the town will allow him any settlement, and passed in the negative. Then the vote was passed to allow the said Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan, as yearly salary, if he settled in said office in this town, the sum of fifty pounds sterling, or Bills of credit equivalent thereto. Then 'twas motioned to see if the town would make an addition to said sum, and passed in the affirmative. Then Voted to Choose a Committee to wait on the said gentleman for his answer, and voted as said Committee, Messrs. Elder Hessey, Samuel Pratt, and Hugh Floyd. Voted, that the Committee formerly appointed to take a deed of the late purchase (for a parsonage) perfect the same and bring it forward at May Meeting.¹⁷

May 3. At a Church meeting at the meeting-house by appointment, it appearing that the town by a very great majority has concurred with the Church in the choice of the Rev. Mr. Wm. McClenachan, and that he had accepted their call as Pastor-elect, Colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Thomas Cheever.

Voted, Wednesday, the 21st September, next, be appointed a day set apart to inaugurate said gentleman into said office; and that the following churches be sent to join in Council for said purpose, viz.: the Churches under the pastoral care of the follow-

Welstead, and Ellis Gray, Samuel Mather, and Samuel Cooper, of Boston; the Rev'd Mr. Nathaniel Appleton, of Cambridge, the Rev'd Mr. Eben. Turell of Medford, the Rev'd Mr. Joseph Emerson of Malden, Mr. Nathaniel Henchman, of Lynn, the Rev'd Wm. Hobby, of Reading, the Rev'd Mr. John Davidson of Nutfield, and the Rev'd Andrew Le Mercier, of Boston; and that the following letter be directed to the abovesaid several Churches, and that it be signed by the Ruling Elders in the name of the Church.

To the Rev'd &c., Sir:— It having pleased the glorious head of the Church, after, as we hope, our humble supplications to him, on a day of fasting and prayer for his guidance in a matter of such importance to direct us by a very great majority both of Church and town to invite the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan, late of Blandford, to the Pastoral office among us; and to incline him to accept said Invitation: We have agreed on Wednesday, the twenty-eighth day of September next, God Willing, to fix him in said office among us in Conjunction with the Rev'd Mr. Thomas Cheever. We, therefore, desire you with such delegates as your church shall think proper to send, to concur with other elders and messengers of several Churches in Exercising such acts of Communion, as the nature of such Solemnity may require. We subscribe yours, in the faith and order of the gospel.

SAMUEL WATTS, WM. HASEY, Ruling Elders.

May 16, 1748. Voted to continue ye committee formerly chosen (about a parsonage) with the power they were invested with, to take a deed, &c., of their purchase, and added to said committee Mr. Thomas Pratt. Then the vote was called to see if the town will determine at this meeting what addition shall be proposed to make to the salary allowed to the Rev. Mr. Wm. McClenachan, and passed to defer the consideration to another time.¹⁸

Aug. 29, 1748. Voted to raise the sum of one hundred pounds, old tenor, to defray the charge of the Instalment of Rev. Wm. McClenachan, and chose a committee to provide for the Council with said money; and voted as a committee, Messrs. Samuel Watts, Esq., Nathan'l Oliver, Junr., and Samuel Tuttle.¹⁹ order to receive some advices come to hand respecting the Rev'd Mr. McClenachan, we, therefore, humbly desire all the Brethren of said Church to meet them. Also, for the end aforesaid: and there pass such votes as they shall think proper.

We are yours in the faith and fellowship of the Gospel.

SAMUEL WATTS, WM. HASEY, Ruling Elders.

Wednesday morning. 11 o'clock.

These may certify we notified the members of the Church in Chelsea, to meet at the time and place above mentioned, except Mr. Nathan Cheever, who is out of town.

Attest, JACOB HASEY, THOMAS PRATT, members of said Church.

At a church meeting, the day above, at the house of Nathaniel Oliver, Junr. The above notification and return being read, and finding all the members present, excepting Mr. Nathan Cheever and Mr. Hugh Floyd, who was sick. The Hon. Samuel Watts, Esq., as senior elder, was moderator.

Voted all the papers referring any ways to the person, character, or circumstances of Rev'd Wm. McClenachan, should be laid on the table, that authentic copies be taken, and the originals returned to the possessors of them.

The moderator demanded of Deacon Jacob Hasey, or any others, who might be possessed of such papers, to gratify the Church in the above Vote.

Deacon Jacob Hasey said he had in his possession all the papers, above referred to, but would not lay them on the table, nor suffer any copies to be taken of them, which the Church thought unreasonable in him, and after some debate,

Voted to postpone the intended installation of the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan till the second Wednesday of October, next; also that the ruling Elders acquaint the several Churches sent to, in order to attend such solemnity, with the above Vote. Then the Moderator adjourned this meeting, sine die.

Wednesday, Oct. 12, [1748]. The Venerable and Rev'd Council sent to by the Church in Chelsea, consisting of Eleven Churches, met at Chelsea, in the meeting-house, in order to install the Rev'd Mr. Wm. McClenachan into the Pastoral office over said Church, as Colleague with the Rev'd Mr. Thomas Cheever. The Rev'd Mr. Nath'l Appleton was chosen Moderator of said Council.

Deacon Jacob Hasey, Messrs. Elisha Tuttle, Samuel Floyd, Nathan Cheever, and Thomas Pratt opposed the instalment of the said Gentleman, exhibiting by way of memorial sundry allegations against him, both with regard to his ministerial qualifications in point of learning and his moral character, of all which the said

William McClenachan acquitted himself before a very large assembly in public hearing, so far to the gratification of said Council, that, by their result, they discharged him of every charge exhibited, excepting that once they found him guilty of indecent passion and uttering unbecoming words, yet that the Council might not be thought too sudden in fixing a Pastor where there had arisen such a difference in the Church, and that the above Gentlemen, who stiled themselves aggrieved Brethren, might have time to be better reconciled to their said Pastor elect, said Council advised the Rev. Mr. Wm. McClenachan to continue his acceptance of the Church's Call, and adjourned the Council to the third Tuesday of December, next.

Chelsea, Nov. 27, 1748. The Rev'd Mr. Cheever stop't the Church and appointed a Church meeting, tomorrow, at 9 o'clock, forenoon, at the meeting-house, to see if the Church would send their request to the Council met here, on the 12th of Oct. past, in order to install the Rev'd Wm. McClenachan, and to do any other business that might be thought proper.

28. The Church met as above appointed, and Voted the Council met here on the 12th of Oct. past, be desired to convene according to their adjournment, in order, if they see fit, to install the Rev'd Wm. McClenachan, as colleague Pastor with the Rev'd Mr. Thomas Cheever, and that Elders Watts and Hasey, send the Churches request therefore to the Rev'd Moderator of said Council; that the Ruling Elders, the Rev'd Wm. McClenachan, Messrs. Thomas Pratt and Hugh Floyd, take the Church Covenant into Consideration, and make what additions or amendments they think just, and report thereon; and that this meeting be adjourned to Monday next, at 9 o'clock, in the forenoon, to receive the report of the above committee, and to pass thereon, as the Church shall think proper.

Voted, that the selectmen be desired to convene the Town, on said day, to see if they will defray the necessary charges of said Council.

Dec. 5. The Church met accordingly, and considering but few were present, it was agreed to adjourn the meeting till 4 o'clock, afternoon, at the dwelling-house of the Rev'd Mr. McClenachan.

Town Meeting, Dec. 5, 1748. Voted to raise the sum of Eighty pounds, old tenor, to provide for the Council, and voted to leave it to the Church to dispose of said money, if they thought proper, for that use. Voted to allow the Committee their accounts, being sixty-eight pounds, three shillings, surplusage of what the town granted them to make provision for the Council.²⁰

²⁰ Town Rec.. i. 28.

Dec. 5, 1748. Post Meridiem. The Church met agreeably to their adjournment, the Hon'l Elder Watts being moderator.

The Committee appointed on the Church covenant reported that it is their opinion there be no alterations in the Covenant. But that with respect to that article in the covenant, wherein, referring to the platform, 'tis declared, unto which for the substance we declare our adherence. They are of opinion that Ruling Elders are, agreeable to the Platform, an (sic) essential officers, in a Congregational Church, and that no teaching elder be admitted as Pastor of this Church, unless he submit to such officers in ye Church.

They are also of opinion that the negative power does not pertain to the teaching or ruling Elders distinct, but to a majority of the Eldership.

They are farther of opinion that the infant seed of parents, owning the Covenant consented to by this Church, be subjects of Baptism, altho' such parents have not seen their way clear to join in full Communion with the Church, and that such baptized persons be so far accounted members of the Church, as to be watched over by the Church, and to be subject to discipline by the same.

Voted to accept this report, and that the substance thereof be added to the standing Covenant or government of the Church. To which Messrs. Jacob Hasey and Nathan Cheever entered their dissents, and insisted the same be recorded. To which the Church assented.²¹

Dec. 5, 1748. Whereas, the town voted eighty pounds, old tenor, to defray the charge of the council, to be convened on the 12th instant, and submitted the same to the Church to lay out for the entertainment of said council, Voted, Elder Hasey, Capt. Nath'l Oliver, and Mr. Benjamin Tuttle, be a committee to make provisions, &c., accordingly. Dec. 12, The Council met at the house of Capt. Nath'l Oliver, and adjourned to the 20th inst.

Dec. 20. Said council met according to their adjournment, and after a long debate, Voted to install the Rev'd William McClenachan to-morrow, in the forenoon, being the 21st.

When the Rev'd Mr. William Hobby began the solemnity with prayer, the Rev. Mr. McClenachan preached. The Rev. Mr. Prescott gave the charge, and the Rev. Mr. Henchman gave the right hand of fellowship.

²¹ The Chelsea Church did not escape the half-way covenant question which shook so many other churches. Of Cheever's views on this subject I know nothing. If Nathan Cheever was his son, as I suppose, possibly he may have reflected the opinion of his father.

Jan. 10, [1749]. The Church met by agreement at the house of the Rev. Mr. McClenachan. Mr. Nathan Cheever desired a Dismission from this Church, to the 2d Church in Malden, and Voted, that whereas the said Mr. Cheever has for several years belonged to this church, and enjoyed special ordinances here; but for some time past has absented himself from our communion, and once and again has declared he can't be easy without a dissolution of his membership with us; we, in point of prudence, consent to grant his request, and that he be accordingly dismissed.

14. Voted, That the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper shall be celebrated on the last Sabbath of every month in the year, excepting December and January, and to be omitted these two months, by reason of the shortness of the days and severity of the season; That the Sabbath before the Sacrament the teaching or ruling Elders shall propose to the Church and congregation, whether there shall be a lecture any day in the week before the Sacrament, and take their voice therein; That it shall not be a term of Communion that persons to be admitted into the Church shall exhibit a written relation, so termed, as has heretofore been the practice of this Church; That Divine Service for the future upon all fast days be performed with singing Psalms, as upon Lord's Days, and that Elder Hasey and Nath'l Oliver, Jun., settle the Church accounts with Deacon Jacob Hasey, who refuses any longer to act in his office, and receive the utensils belonging to the Church till further order.

Then the Rev'd Mr. McClenachan dismissed this meeting.

January 20. The Rev'd Mr. McClenachan stopped the Church, and read a letter from Rev'd Mr. Cleaveland, Pastor of the South Church in Malden, signifying the desire of Mr. Benjamin Brintnal to be dismissed from said Church, and recommending him to this church. Then he proposed him to the acceptance of the Church, and, Voted to receive said Mr. Brintnal to this Church's particular Communion.

Mr. McClenachan also informed the Church that Mr. Jacob Hasey refused to officiate as Deacon, and would not deliver the utensils of the Church to the committee before appointed to receive them, but said he would wait till the Church had another Deacon to receive them.

Voted, Elder Hasey be specially empowered to demand and receive said utensils, and possess them till the further order of this Church; and That Monday, 21th instant, at 3 o'clock P.M., there be a church meeting at the meeting-house.

27. [Jany., 1749.] The Church met, as agreed. After prayer, Elder Hasey reported he had, with much persuasion, received the utensils of the Communion Table. He also brought a letter from Deacon Hasey, signed Jacob Hasey, Abigail Hasey, his wife, and Abigail Hasey, Junr., his daughter, signifying their earnest Desire this Church would dismiss them from the special Communion of this Church, and recommend them to the second Church in Malden. Upon which, Voted, Elder Hasey and Nath'l Oliver, Junr., wait on said persons, and urge they withdraw their desire, and report next Lord's Day, after Divine Service.

Elder Hasey reported the committee had settled the Church's accounts with Deacon Jacob Hasey, and found him indebted to the church on the account of providing for the Communion Table, six pounds, eight shillings, and eleven pence, old tenor, and on account of collection for the poor, eight pounds, ten shillings, and four pence, old tenor, which sums, together with an English shilling, and a New England sixpence, amounting to thirteen shillings and nine pence, old tenor, he had received, as also the Church's account Book. Whereupon, Voted, the above report be accepted, and that Elder Hasey keep said sums in his hands, with the said Book, till the farther order of the Church.

The Rev. Mr. McClenachan proposed to the Church's Consideration, whether they would relinquish the use of the present version of the Psalms, in Divine Service, and for the future sing Dr. Watts' version of the Psalms; after considerable debate, it was agreed this matter should subside for the space of a month, and, in the meantime, the members would examine said Versions, and the Elders converse with any of the congregation that should be dissatisfied, and endeavor their satisfaction.

Feb. 2. The Rev. Mr. McClenachan stopped the Church. Elder Hasey reported that he, with Nath'l Oliver, Junr., had waited upon Mr. Jacob Hasey, and urged he withdraw his desire of a Dismission from this Church, but that he insisted thereon, insisting he could not edifie under the public worship – as did his wife and daughter. Upon which, Voted, Mr. Jacob Hasey, Mrs. Abigail Hasey, and Abigail Hasey, Junr., be dismissed from this, and recommended to the Second Church in Malden.

Deacon John Chamberlain acquainted the Church with his desire of resigning his place as Deacon, being obliged thro' the infirmities of old age to be often absent from duty, &c. Upon which,

Voted, Deacon Chamberlain have the thanks of this church for his past services, and that he be released from his office.

9. [Feb.] The Church were desired to tarry after divine service, when the Rev. Mr. McClenachan read a letter from the Rev. Samuel Cooper, signifying the desires of Capt. Nath'l Oliver and Mr. Daniel Watts, that their particular relation to the Church of Christ in Brattle Street, be transferred to this Church, in which said persons were heartily recommended to the holy fellowship of this Church. Whereupon, Voted, That Capt. Nath'l Oliver and Mr. Daniel Watts be admitted to the pastoral care of this church.

The Rev. Mr. McClenachan informed the Church that there was a necessity of a Church-meeting soon, and requested it might be held at his dwelling-house. Accordingly, Voted, the Church meet at the house of Mr. McClenachan on Monday, the 17th inst., at 2 o'clock, afternoon.

17. The Church met as appointed, at the house of Rev. Mr. McClenachan, who [stated a case of discipline, which was adjusted by satisfactory acknowledgments,] and restoration of the offender.

Voted, That the Church stock for the poor, together with what shall be collected on the next fast day, be appropriated to the use of Mrs. Marble and Mrs. Mary Breeden. That Capt. Oliver receive the same, and distribute two thirds of said moneys to Mrs. Marble, and the remainder to the said Mrs. Mary Breeden.

Mr. McClenachan acquainted the Church, that he was obliged to be absent a week or ten days on some business to the eastward, and desired the Church would indulge his absence, if necessarily detained one or two Sabbaths; and, in the meantime, requested the Church would think on two suitable persons to supply the place of Deacons. He then dismissed this meeting with a blessing.

March 6, 1749. Voted (in town meeting) that the Rev. Mr. Thomas Cheever be allowed twelve pounds, ten shillings, old tenor, quarterly, during his life, as a consideration of his quitting any claim he may have to the contribution hereafter to be made on the Sabbath. That Deacon Hasey and Capt. Oliver wait on the Revd. Mr. Cheever, with the above vote, for his answer.²²

Then it was put to vote, whether the town would allow Capt. Nath'l Oliver the surplusage of what he expended more than the town raised to provide for the last sitting of the Council; and it passed in the negative; but, 17 May, Voted Capt. Oliver be allowed twenty pounds, old tenor, as a balance in full, for making provision for the last council.²³

1749, March 20. Ordered that Mr. Samuel Pratt take care that the fence about the meeting-house be repaired as soon as may be.²⁴

²⁴ Selectmen's Rec., i. 1.

Anno, 1749, March 27. The Rev. Mr. McClenachan stopped the Church, and requested they would appoint a church-meeting for some purposes under consideration, and to do any other business that, at such meeting, might be necessary. Accordingly, Voted, The church meet at the meeting-house, on Wednesday, the 30th inst., at 2 o'clock, afternoon, for the purpose aforesaid.

March 30, 1749. The Church met by appointment. After prayer, the Rev'd Mr. McClenachan proposed to the Church whether they would alter the version of Psalms in common use, and for the future sing Dr. Watts' version at Divine Service.

Elder Hasey desired the consideration thereof might be continued a further time. Whereupon, Voted to postpone the matter for the space of two months, and if no material objection to the use of said version should be offered in that term, agreed to the use thereof.

Voted to continue the consideration of the choice of Deacons till a further time; also that 'tis reasonable that those members who attend meetings on secular matters, and yet absent themselves from special ordinances, should make satisfactory acknowledgment, or their votes should not be accounted of in this Church. After a blessing the Church was dismissed.

April 16. The Rev'd Mr. McClenachan stopped the Church and read a letter from the Second Church in Malden, dismissing and also recommending Samuel Tuttle, and Anna, his wife, from said church to this church.

Signed, AARON CLEAVELAND, Pastor.

May 8, 1749. To see if the town will accept the meeting-house and land adjacent, the proprietors reserving to themselves and heirs their pews.²⁶ And to consider Capt. Oliver's extraordinary ²⁵ Selectmen's Rec., i. 3.

²⁶ It has been seen on p. 185, that the heirs of Lieutenant Joseph Hasey, October 6, 1710, conveyed unto Elisha Cooke and others, a committee of the town of Boston, the ground under and about the present church edifice in Revere; and undoubtedly the same was conveyed to the town of Chelsea by deed, though I have found no trace of it. The difficulty in tracing such deeds is in the fact that they were not made directly to the town, but either to the selectmen or some unknown committee for the use of the town.

charge, above what the town granted, for the installment of Rev. Mr. McClenachan.²⁷

In Town Meeting, May 17, 1749. Voted to raise £100, new tenor, besides the £50 sterling, formerly voted to the Rev. Mr. Wm. McClenachan, as his salary, to defray the contingent charges of the year. Then it was proposed to make an addition to Mr. McClenachan's salary, and voted not to make such addition at this meeting.

26. Being a Lecture, the Revd. Mr. McClenachan, in his Sermon, gave a charge to the Deacons lately chosen, and in the name of the church desired they would for the future officiate as such officers, being duly elected.

Nov. 7, 1749. Voted that Mr. Samuel Pratt . . . secure the steeple of the meeting-house from the injury of the weather at the charge of the town.³⁰

Nov. 19. The Revd. Mr. McClenachan stopped the Church, and read a letter from . . . , signifying his conviction of the evil, and his sorrow for cohabiting with his wife before marriage. 1749, Dec. 18. The petition of Thos. Cheever and others to the Gen'l Court, praying they may be erected into a distinct parish, with some of the inhabitants of Chelsea, was read; and it was put to vote whether the prayer of said petition, so far as it respects the town of Chelsea, should be granted, which passed in the negative. A copy of Mr. Putnam's Answer

To the Church and Congregation in Chelsea:

Honored and Beloved:

I, which am the most unworthy, received your solemn call the 12th inst., at the hands of Lt. Cheever and Dn. Watts, 17th inst. My time and opportunity to consider on, and to Determine so solemn and weighty affair, is very short. I hope I've endeavored, with some measure of hearty sincerity, to commend it to God, whose cause it is, desiring to give it its weight; and in the fear of God to resolve and determine the same; and the result of my present considerations and consultations is, that I can't with a clear conscience, or with easy mind, leave the Church and flock at Pomfret, where God seems at present to point out my lot and settlement, desiring to be very humble and at the same time also thankful, that God, by the voice of his people, is pleased to manifest to me, his very unworthy servant, so great encouragement to engage in a public capacity in his services, returning you hearty thanks for the manifestation of your affections and dispositions towards me, who (if it were possible, consistent with my apprehensions of duty,) should, as I trust, be very cheerfully ready to serve you in your best interest, in compliance with and obedience to the call given me by you. But as it is otherwise, praying you to release me, humbly begging your earnest prayer for me that I may obtain mercy to be faithful, without which divine aid I know I am insufficient for the least good thing, earnestly praying that Grace, Mercy and Peace may be multiplied to you, and that God would lead you into paths of peace, truth and righteousness, for his own name's sake, and the God of love and peace would delight to dwell in the midst of you, and bless and build you up.

I remain your sincere well wisher,

AARON PUTNAM.

Pomfret, Jan. 19, 1756.⁵⁸

1756, March 8. Voted, Messrs, Nathan Cheever, Benjamin Brintnall and Samuel Pratt, be a committee to supply the pulpit.⁵⁹

March 15. The Church met to consider what was proper to be done upon the refusal of Mr. Putnam to accept the Church's and town's choice of him as their pastor-elect, when it was agreed to leave it to the town to choose a Committee to wait on Mr. Putnam and urge his acceptance, notwithstanding his refusal; and proposed a subscription be had thro' the town to prefer to him, on supposition his refusal might be owing to his not being chosen more unanimously.

Mem. The Town sent their Committee to Pomfret to wait on Mr. Putnam, with a general subscription, testifying a desire he would settle in this town: who, notwithstanding, finally refused.

May 18. Voted £100, lawful money, to be raised for the support of the ministry by the whole Town, and such part of it as shall be laid on point Shirley go towards the support of the ministry there.⁶⁰

4. The church stop't according to their adjournment; and having chosen Capt. Nath^l Oliver, Moderator, in the absence of Elder Watts.

Voted, Mr. Samuel Floyd be added to the Town's Committee for supply of the Pulpit, and that said Committee wait on Mr. Norton, and acquaint him, 'tis the Church's desire he would preach with us a month or six weeks longer, upon probation. Then adjourned to next Sabbath.

11. The Church stopped agreeable to their adjournment. The covenant was read and signed by several members, — some others desired a perusal of it, as they said they did not thoroughly understand it, as it now stood, which was unanimously agreed to.

It was moved the Church do something respecting the choice of a minister.

Mr. Floyd and others reported that Mr. Norton said he thought he had been preaching some time, under the idea of probation; and that his business would not permit his tarry in town any longer. Which passed without any vote. Thereupon, voted to leave a further supply of the Pulpit to the town's Committee, and dismiss the meeting.

⁶¹ I have met with no copy of this covenant "with explications." Mr. David Floyd, 2d, of Winthrop, kindly allowed me to use an early copy of the original covenant, from which I have supplied some words worn away in the records. To this is appended in the hand of Nath^l Oliver, the church clerk, the following memorandum without date: "The Church in Chelsea having some debate respecting that article in their Covenant, wherein they oblige themselves to adhere to ye Platforms of Church discipline, as to ye Substance of it, and Whereas some of ye Articles therein may admit of dispute, being by many Churches at this Day practically Denied, We, therefore, members of ye Church in Chelsea, see fitt to exhibit our opinion of some of sd Disputable Points and give our assent and adherence such explanation in the following manner. TURN OVER." But, unfortunately, the second leaf of the document is wanting.

Dec. 2, 1756. Voted, unanimously, to concur with the Church in the choice they had unanimously made of the Rev. Mr. Joseph Jackson to be the town's minister.

Then made choice of the Hon. Sam'l Watts, Esq., Dea. Benj. Brintnal, and Mr. Sam'l Sprague, as a committee to wait on Mr. Jackson, their Pastor-elect, to acquaint him with the Church and Town's proceedings. Voted, unanimously, to allow Mr. Joseph Jackson, if he accepts, the parsonage lands purchased of Mr. John Tudor, fifty-three pounds, six shillings, and eight pence, lawful money, annually, sixteen cords of wood annually, the weekly contribution and the improvement of four acres of the Town's salt marsh, during his continuance in the ministry among us.⁶⁵

Dec. 27. The Church met at the meeting-house, in order to choose a minister. The honl. Elder Watts being Moderator. It appeared Mr. Joseph Jackson was unanimously chosen. Then Voted, this choice be transmitted to the town, for their concurrence.

Dec. 29. Mr. Joseph Jackson desired the Church would tarry after the Blessing, which being pronounced, he retired, after which Dea. Brintnall read a letter from Mr. Jackson to the Church and the Town, signifying he could not accept the Choice this Church and Town had made of him as their Pastor-elect.

The Petition of William McClenachan of Falmouth in y^e County of York Clark in the behalf of The Presbyterians in the Second Parish of Said Town — —

Humbly Sheweth

That Severall persons of the Denomination of Presbyterians inhabitants of the Second parish of said Falmouth have preferred a Petition to this Hono^l Court Setting forth the distressed Circumstances That They are Under, being oblidge contrary to their Consciences to pay rates toward the Support of the Revrd Benj: Allen who doth not only disregard & deny both Congregational & Presbyterian Church order or discipline but is likewise very erroneous in principle declaring that there is noe Essential difference betwixt Presbyterians, Congregationals & Papists & likewise affirming that the preaching of the Gospell & the administration of The Sacraments of the New Testament are not absolutely necessary to Salvation even as means and when they may be enjoyed, which declarations coming from a minister tend to the very Subversion of the Christian Religion & farther on the Lords day out of his Pulpitt Speaking not only disregardfull of, but with prejudice against the Presbyterians desiring his hearer to mark & avoide them & to have noe conversation with them or they would be infected as with the Plague for these and other reasons which they stand ready to support they have applied to this Honb^l Court Because the said M^r Allen denied & refused to have any application to an ecclesiasticall Judicature Saying the law was his Support & thereby he wou^d oblidge them to maintain him and he cared not if ever he saw any of them in his meeting house, and Now your honours have thought proper to deny the prayer of their Petition, & thereby they are left in a most griveous condition, for where shall they Apply that this matter may be properly inquired into?

Wherefore your Petitioner humbly prayeth That this Hon^{bl} Court wou'd consider this affair, and as these Presbyterians Stand ready to Support & prove what in their Petition they have asserted So they may be allowed a Publick hearing either before your Excellency & Hon^{rs} or any Selected number of them, or before any impartial Judges y^t: you may think proper to appoint either civil or Ecclesiasticall — So that this affair may be Sett in a clear light, that Debates & Surmises may be removed, & that Justice may be done to each party

And your Petitioner as in duty bound Shall ever pray

In Council

[On reverse of foregoing document:]

In Council Sept^r 3, 1740 Read, and forasmuch as the several matters herein set forth & by the Petitioner urged as Reasons to induce this Court to grant the Prayer of his Petition, are of the like nature & import with those contained in that other Petition (herein before referred to) which was Dismiss'd as containing matters proper for the Cognizance of an Ecclesiastical Council; and forasmuch as the Petitioner hath not so much as suggested in his Petition, that any Proceeding has been had against the Rev^d Mr Allen — in an Ecclesiastical way, or that the several steps proper for bringing the affair under the Consideration of an Ecclesiastical Council — have been taken —

Therefore Order'd that this Petition be Dismiss'd as irregular.

And as the most high God rules in the Kingdom of men, and has lesser societies under his inspection: and the hearts of men are by no means exempted [from] his Sovereign Dominion: I, thence, conclude the unanimity of your choice to be an Indication of its Correspondence with the Divine pleasure; and, therefore, by this Token, manifest my Compliance with your invitation.

Depending on the supreme head of the Church, for all needed assistance, for the suitable discharge of so important an office as that of a Gospel Minister.

And, as you have proposed an alternative, relating to my settlement, so I would inform you that I prefer and of Consequence choose the latter.

And, as to my annual Support, if I should find my necessities urging for more, I shall depend upon your kindness for their supply, and hoping, that in return therefor, I shall exert myself to the utmost of my ability to promote your Spiritual welfare, and advance Christ's kingdom among you.

Thus desiring your remembrance of me at the Throne of Grace, that I may have all needed assistance, and praying with you that the numbers and graces of your Church may increase, and the presence and Blessing of God be vouchsafed you in all your Concerns; and that we may live happily together in this world, and be finally admitted as citizens of the heavenly Zion.

I subscribe my Self,

Your Servant,

For Jesus Sake,

PHILLIPS PAYSON.

Sept. 5, 1757. Read again the answer of Mr. Phillips Payson, and Voted, —

That, Messrs. Nath'l Hasey, Nathan Cheever, and Elisha Tuttle, wait on him and congratulate him on his acceptance of this Church's and Town's choice of him, as their Pastor elect. That, the town is desirous of being directed by him, as to time and some reverend Elders and messengers, in order to instate him in his office as Pastor among us.⁵

Sept. 18. Elder Watts stopped the Church, and desired [that] they would consider what they thought might be proper to be done, consequent upon Mr. Payson's answer of acceptance of the Church and Town's choice of him, as the Town's minister, which lay before them.

Upon which, voted, that the committee appointed by the Town to wait upon Mr. Payson, to know what time will be agreeable to him, to instate him in his office as Pastor among us, be desired to discharge said trust to-morrow, and bring his answer before the Town's meeting.

Voted, also, to-morrow, at 5 o'clock, afternoon, there be a Church meeting at the meeting-house, to consider and determine such matters as shall then properly be laid before them.

Sept. 19. The committee appointed to wait upon Mr. Payson, reported, that he desired the town could gratify him in sending for Rev. Mr. Appleton, Mr. Payson, Mr. Rogers, and Mr. Swift, to assist him in his ordination. And, voted, he be gratified.⁶

Voted, the sum of thirteen pounds, six shillings and eight pence, be raised to defray the charge of the ordination, to be committed to the Church to lay out in an entertainment for the Council, to be conven'd on that Solemnity and other gentlemen.

That, those persons of the town who subscribe towards said sum have credit with the Town's Treasurer for the same, in their general Town tax, for what they advanced towards the same, by a certificate from the committee.⁷

Sept. 19. The Church met, agreeable to their appointment, Elder Watts being moderator, and unanimously Voted, Wednesday, the 26th of Oct. next, be appointed to Solemnize the ordination of Mr. Phillips Payson to the pastoral office over this Church and town. Voted, also, that the Rev. Doctor Sewall's, and the Rev. Mr. Eliot's Churches, of Boston, the Rev. Mr. Appleton's, of Cambridge, Mr. Payson's, of Walpole, Mr. Rogers's, of Littleton, Messrs. Emerson's and Willis's of Malden, Mr. Swift's, of Acton, and Mr. Robie's, of Lynn, be sent to, to instate Mr. Phillips Payson in the pastoral office over this Church and Town, to which he has been unanimously chosen, and which he has accepted.

Voted, Messrs. Samuel Floyd, Benjamin Brentnall, and Nath^l Oliver, Jun., be a committee to provide Entertainment, &c., for the Venerable Council and other Gentn, on the ensuing Ordination Day.

25. Elder Watts stopped the Church, and proposed to them that Mr. Payson tho't there was a Clause in the Church Covenant, relative to Ruling Elders, which he could not fully assent to.

Whereupon, Voted, the Church meet tomorrow, at 3 o'clock, afternoon, at the house of Mr. Hough, to consider thereon, and that Mr. Payson be desired to attend the church at said meeting.

26. The Church met, at time and place, with Mr. Payson, who related his difficulty on the paragraph in the Church Covenant wherein it is suggested that Ruling Elders are of Scripture warrant, which he was not fully satisfied of; yet declared he would be passive in whatever the Church tho't proper to act thereupon.

⁷ Ibid., 59.

After some debate, Mr. Payson was desired to minit a Clause on that part of the Covenant relative to Ruling Elders, that he could freely subscribe to; which he did in these words, viz.:

"At least, so far to submit to such officers, as that they should exercise what Power the Church has seen fit to invest them with."

Which clause, the Church readily came into, and thereon, Voted, the Covenant be transcribed, adding said Clause, and that the Church meet next Sabbath after divine service, to receive the same.

Oct. 2. The Church stopped, but considering several members were absent, it was tho't best to continue the consideration of signing the Covenant, to a further time.

15. The Church met after divine service, and having read the Covenant, all that were present subscribed the same.

Mr. Payson came into the Church meeting, and requested that all matters of grievance or offence respecting any member should be made up, before he took upon himself the pastoral care of the Church, and then withdrew.

Which matter the Church took into consideration, and Voted, That this Church look upon all such of their number who have or shall subscribe the Church Covenant, having had the same distinctly read unto them, [as brethren?]; any matter or cause of grievance heretofore subsisting among them, notwithstanding.

It was moved, and seconded, that the members wait upon Mr. Elisha Tuttle with this Vote, and endeavor his reconciliation, which was readily complied with; the Church Covenant was distinctly read to him, all the members present, being a majority of the Church, united in their desires he would sign the Church Covenant, and for the future attend his Duty and Privilege — Whereupon, said Mr. Tuttle subscribed the Covenant, the article relative to Ruling Elders excepted.

26. The Church met the venerable Council sent in order to ordain Mr. Phillips Payson, at the house of Nathl Oliver, Jun.

Mr. Payson signed the Church Covenant. He then, with the Church, waited upon the Venerable Council.

The Rev. Mr. Daniel Rogers mentioned a dismissal of the particular membership of Mr. Payson, with a hearty recommendation of him to this Church, from the Church at Littleton.

The Rev. Mr. Appleton, Moderator of the Council, declared the Council was satisfied as to the principles and other ministerial abilities of Mr. Phillips Payson, and were ready to proceed to his ordination.

The Church then waited on said Council to the meeting-house, to Solemnize the same, where the Rev. Mr. Rogers began the Solemnity with Prayer. The Rev. Mr. Payson, of Walpole, preached a Sermon suitable to the occasion. The Rev. Mr. Appleton gave the charge. The Rev. Mr. Emerson gave the right hand of fellowship. The Rev. Mr. Swift closed the service with prayer. After which, a Psalm being sung, the new ordained pastor, viz.: The Rev. Mr. Phillips Payson, Junr., dismissed the assembly with the usual blessing.

Deo opt: max: Laus et Gloria

Here end the records kept, principally, by Thomas Cheever, pastor, and Nathaniel Oliver, jun., as clerk. Then follows the portion, with the following title: "The Records of ye Church at Chelsea, Beginning July ye 28, 1757."

"This Book is the property of Phillips Payson."

In the hand of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Tuckerman, Payson's successor as pastor, is the following:

Peace to the memory of a man of worth,
A man of letters and of virtue too.

J. TUCKERMAN.

Dr. Payson seems to have considered the volume of records as his own, and desiring to cover the period from his choice as pastor, has repeated the proceedings, as given above, from July 28 to the 26th of October, 1757, inclusive. I, therefore, omit them, only noting the fact, recorded by Payson, but overlooked by the clerk, that "Dr. Sewall, being absent [the Council], chose Rev. Mr. Appleton of Cambridge, moderator."

The Covenant of ye Church of Chelsea

We, whose Names are hereunto subscribed, members in full Communion, of ye Chh. of Ct., at Chelsea, under a Deep sense of our unworthiness to be so highly favour'd of ye Lord, to transact personally with so glorious a Majesty, and acknowledging our utter inability to keep Cvt. with God, unless ye Lord Jesus, by his Spirit and Grace, enable us thereunto; admiring yt free and rich grace which triumpheth over so great unworthiness, with humble dependence upon him for his gracious assistance, do make and renew our Cvt. with God, and one another, as follows:

We declare, and profess, our hearty Belief of ye Christian Religion, as contained in ye holy scriptures, which God hath given to man, to be ye only perfect, & sufficient, and perpetual Rule of his Faith, and Life, heartily resolving, by ye help of Divine Grace, to conform our lives to ye Rules of this Holy Religion.

We give up ourselves to that God, whose Name alone is Jehovah, Father, Son and Spirit, ye only true and living God, and avouch him this Day to be our God, choosing and cleaving to him as our God and Father; our Portion and Chief Good. We give up ourselves, also, to our glorious Lord Jesus Ct. who is ye Lord, our Righteousness; adhering to him, as ye only Head of his Church and Covenant People, and take him for our only Redeemer and Saviour, our Prophet, Priest, and King, and Leader, to bring us unto eternal Blessedness: Likewise, we profess our everlasting and indispensable obligation to glorify God, in all ye Duties of Gospel Obedience, as becomes his covt. People; Forever engaging, by the help of Ct., to endeavor to keep ourselves pure from ye Sins of ye Times, and to observe, and attend, ye Duties of a Church State, and of a Society confederated for obedience to, and enjoyment, of him, in all Gospell ordinances. Att ye same Time, we give our offspring, with ourselves, up unto ye Lord, humbly adoring his Grace, that we, and our Children, may be look'd upon as ye Lord's, promising, by his Help, to do our utmost in ye Methods of a religious Education, that they may be ye Lord's.

Moreover, we give up ourselves to one another, in ye Lord, engaging to walk together as a Church of Ct. in ye Faith, and order of ye Gospell, so far as ye Lord hath, or shall, reveal unto us (and, particularly, as is held out in ye Platform, set forth by these Churches, unto which, for ye substance, we declare our adherence) promising, in brotherly Love, to watch over one another, and to avoid all stumbling Blocks, and Contentions, as much as possible, and to submit ourselves to ye ministerial teaching, Guidance, and oversight of ye Elder, or Elders, thereof, in all things agreeable to ye Rules of Ct., in his word; and, conscientiously, to attend ye Seals and Censures, and all the holy Institutions of Ct., in Communion with one another, desiring, also, to walk with all regular Communion with other regular Churches.

Furthermore, we unite, and agree, in ye Office Ruling Elders, as Officers in ye Church, warrantable from ye Scriptures, and necessary for ye well-being of ye Church, and that we will admit no teaching Elder, to be set over us, that does not, at least, so far submit to such officers, as that they should exercise what Power ye Church hath seen fit to invest them with.

And, we agree, that ye negative Power on any Church acts appertains to a majority of ye Eldership, including ye teaching and ruling elders, one part of ye Government in ye Church.

We, also, consent, that Persons be admitted Members of our Particular Chh., being of blameless Conversation, may be received to our Communion, consenting to this Covt., without ye Form of Public Relations, as formerly practised in this Chh., and yt. ye Children of Parents owning ye Covt., consented to by this Chh., are subjects of ye ordinance of Baptism, tho' not members in full Communion; and that such baptized persons are to be so far accounted Members of ye Chh., as to be watched over, and subject to ye Sensures of ye Chh. Finally, all this we unite in, flying to ye Blood of the everlasting Covt., for Pardon of our manifold Failings, desiring to Depend humbly upon ye Grace of God, in Ct., to enable us to a Faithful Discharge of our Covt. Duties, both to God and one another, and, wherein we shall fall short, humbly to wait upon his grace in Christ, for Pardon, acceptance, and healing, for his own Name's Sake. Amen.

1759, Feb. 8th. At a town's meeting, at the old meeting-house, Legally warned, and oupened, to see if the town would concore with ye Church in Some Votes, Said Church Passed the 5th day, Feb., 1759, Relative to the Rev. Mr. Phillips Payson, Voted, Deekon Brintnall, mordrator, and then Voted, unanimously, that this town accept what they have received from the Rev. Mr. Phillips Payson, this Day, relative to any Past misconduct, Since the town's minister, So far as to restore him to the town's Charity, and to Continue the said Mr. Phillips Payson in his office, as the town's minister, agreeable to the Votes past, on the fifth Instant, By the Church in this town.⁹

⁹ Ibid., 63. The church records have no entries between April 6, 1758, and May 20, 1759; and for reasons which may be conjectured the votes of the town, February 5, 1759, were suppressed by the church. The nature of Mr. Payson's "misconduct" does not appear. There is a cloud on the early pastoral life of Thomas Cheever at Malden; and McClenachan, always in difficulties, especially with his creditors, joined the Church of England. But whatever the mistakes of Cheever and Payson may have been, both nobly atoned for them by their later useful, devoted, Christian lives.

Sept. ye 9, 1759, Lord's Day.¹²

Nov. 25, 1759, Lord's Day. Stopped the church, and, as it was proper there should be a church-meeting to settle with Deacon Brintnall, and do something concerning the donation of Mr. Hugh Floyd, deceased, and also see if the church would reconsider their vote, passed the 20th of May, concerning confessions, &c., accordingly appointed Monday, the tenth of December next, for the church to meet, at 1 o'clock P.M., at the meeting-house.

P. PAYSON, Pastor.

At a church meeting, this tenth Day of Dec., 1759, being the Day appointed: That as the contributions at the Sacrament had fallen short; so voted that the members be acquainted with and enlarge it.

As to Mr. Floyd's gift, voted, that in case Mr. Samuel and Mr. Hugh Floyd, executors of their father's will, procure a piece of plate equal to what ten pounds (which their father gave to the church at Chelsea) would have procured when it became due, including the following; and present said plate to the church before the last Sabbath in February next; then the church will give a full Discharge to said Executors from all Demands they now have upon them, by virtue of said will.

As to reconsidering the vote passed, 20th May, 1759, Voted, to dismiss the consideration of it, for the present, as the Brethren were not so generally there as could be wished, being only seven in No. The above vote unanimous.

Attest, P. PAYSON, Pastor.

1760, March 10. Voted, Nathan Cheever, Jona. Hawks, and Nath'l Hasey, as a Committee, to see what Repairs the old meeting-house wants, and make Report at May meeting.¹³

May 19. Voted to raise one hundred and thirty pounds to defray the ministerial charges and other contingent charges of the town this present year.¹⁴

¹¹ This is the first of twenty-two similar entries during Payson's pastorate. His records, except for baptisms and admissions to the church, are blank between February 11, 1776, and April 25, 1782; but, for the thirty-two years, of which they speak, the account is not a bad one, unless compared with Cheever's pastorate of thirty-three years, in which is found only a single entry, and in McClenachan's, of six years, only three. I have suppressed the names of offending parties, and having stated the facts, as part of the history of the period, I see no use in giving the remaining entries the space they would occupy.

Voted, to exempt Francis Smith and Wm. Boardman from ministerial charges.¹⁵

Voted, that such persons that have a mind to build stables by the meeting-house have liberty, by applying to the Selectmen, where to set them.¹⁶

1761, May 18. Voted not to have a stone fence between the town and Mr. Nathan Cheever, about the meeting-house, as Mr. Cheever proposed.¹⁷

May 18, 1761. £5. 15. 0, due from the town, to Thomas Goldthwait, Esq., for what he paid, P orders, for preaching (at Point Shirley, where he lived).¹⁸

September 1. Voted to accept of Lt. Nathan Cheever's offer of a piece of land, at the northeast corner of the meeting-house, to erect a pound upon.¹⁹

September 22. Agreed, that Mr. Daniel Pratt shall supply ten cord of wood to the Rev'd Mr. Payson, and Mr. Sprague the remainder; and, in case Mr. Sprague can't supply the whole of the remainder, Mr. Pratt is to make it up. The whole, 16 cord.²⁰

May 23, 1762. L.D., P.M. Stopped the church, acquainted them with the desires of the widow Mehitable Tuttle to be admitted to the privileges of a church-member. N.B. this person was formerly a member of the Rev'd Mr. Appleton's Church, at Cambridge, and upon her removal to the town of Chelsea neglected to come to the Lord's Table for several years, and to have her children baptized, for which neglect the church thought they had not any right to call her to an account, but as she had lived so long in town, and now desired the privileges abovesaid, the church did not think they had a right to demand it, yet, if in case said widow would voluntarily offer what would be satisfactory to the church, it was after some debate upon the point unanimously voted to admit her to the privileges she desired.

May 30, L.D., A.M. Read to the church the confession of the widow Mehitable Tuttle, of which they accepted, and voted to receive her to the privileges she requested, as mentioned in the vote passed the last Lord's Day.

July 18, L.D., P.M. After exercise, acquainted the church with the desire of Mr. Samuel Payson [a brother of the pastor] to be dismissed from his particular relation with this church, and with the most sincere affection and thankfulness, Gentlemen, your devoted servant, for Jesus Sake,

PHILLIPS PAYSON.⁴⁶

1779, Jan. 29. Voted, to give the Rev. Phillips Payson the use, benefit, and improvement of the farm known by the name of Eustis Farm, for the term of one year from and next after the first day of April, 1779, to the first day of April, 1780. And then, the said Farm to be resigned up to the town, or a committee chosen by the town, to receive the same. And the said Farm, or those that occupy said Farm, to be subject to taxes, equal with other farms in Chelsea, according to the value thereof. And that the Reverend Mr. Phillips Payson be at no cost or charge in getting possession of said Farm, and also that he pay no rent for the farm for said term of time. And also that he deliver the said Farm, with the buildings and fences thereon, in as good order and repair as he received it in, (extraordinary casualties excepted), with as much dung on the farm as he receives.

Voted, to choose a committee to take possession of said farm, from the present tenants, in behalf of Chelsea, and likewise that said committee put the Reverend Mr. Phillips Payson into possession of said Farm on the beginning of next April: and, likewise, that said committee receive possession of said farm from him at the year's end, which will be on the first day of April, 1780.

The committee chosen, were Capt. Samuel Sprague, Capt. Samuel Sargeant, and Capt. Jonathan Green.

Voted, to indemnify said committee from all cost and damages by said trust in said affair.⁴⁷

March 13, 1780. The town passed votes essentially the same, as those above.⁴⁸

It will be recollected that the Eustis farm, latterly known as the Shurtleff estate, was one of the four farms devised by Governor Bellingham to certain trustees for pious uses of Winnisimmet. It was the subject of litigation for more than fifty years; and, when, during the progress of this suit, the Eustis family, presumably loyalists, abandoned it, on the breaking out of hostilities at Lexington, and retired to Charlton, the town seized it under a judgment of Court (which, being appealed from, was inoperative), and gave the use of it for some years to Mr. Payson. As the town's title was at this time uncertain, it was voted to indemnify Payson against the claims of the real owner for rent. The title finally proved to be bad.

February 21, 1780, the town paid Rev. Phillips Payson six hundred pounds, as a present, "on account of the extraordinary prices of the necessities of life."⁴⁹

At first the ministers were supported by the town, and all tax-payers, irrespective of their religious denominations, were assessed therefor; but, after a time, exceptions were made.⁵⁰

1780, 13 March. Voted to indemnify and save harmless the Rev'd Phillips Payson from all damages on account of his improving the farm called Eustis Farm the last year.⁵¹ Town paid Rev. Phillips Payson £600 that the town gave him as a present, on account of the Extraordinary prices of the necessities of Life.

November 13. Town paid Rev. Mr. Phillips Payson £80 for his Sallary, from Oct. 26, 1779, to Oct. 26, 1780, "with what he has heretofore had by the profits of a farm call'd Eustises farm."

June 12. Voted to remove the two hind seats, on the women's side, below, in Chelsea Meeting-house. Voted, to sell the two hind seats, and the places or ground where said seats now are, to the highest Bidders at Public Vandue, in two divisions or pew lots — the said places, for said pew lots, to extend from William Wattses and Nathaniel Hasey's pews to the Back of the fore seat, and the purchaser or purchasers of said pew lots, their heirs and assigns, shall have forever. Voted, and chose, Capt. Sam'l Sargeant, Capt. Jonathan Green, and Mr. Richard Shute, a committee to sell said seats and said pew lots, for and in behalf of the town of Chelsea, to the highest Bidder, at a public Vandue, and further the town of Chelsea do empower said committee to give a good and lawful title of said pew lots to the purchasers thereof, forever.⁵²

⁴⁹ Chamberlain MSS. VI., 105.

⁵² Town Rec., ii. 57. I am indebted to John P. Pierce, Esq., of Revere, for an explanation of this vote.

"The 'ground' floor of the building was not originally taken up by pews, which were owned by individuals, but the 'hind seats,' mentioned, were two running along the side of the house, on the right hand side of the front entrance, and were probably free seats for women and called 'hind seats,' from being behind the audience in the pews, and farthest from the pulpit. It is probable that a demand for more pews caused the sale of the seat room, as the space occupied by them would furnish room for two square pews. I suppose these seats were similar to the long plank seats, about 2½ inches thick, that were in the galleries of the house. I place them south of the door, because the south gallery was the one occupied by females, and the female singers always went up the south stairs.

"When the building was remodeled, the entrance was made through what had been only the steeple tower and stairway, and the old entrance on the side closed, and the pulpit changed, from the opposite side, to the end of the building; it was, also, turned half way round, so the entrance is on the west side."

July ye 3d, 1780.

Dr. Payson's parishioners, almost exclusively farmers, were neither numerous nor opulent; and Chelsea, like other towns near Boston, and largely dependent upon its prosperity, suffered greatly from the depression of business during and for some years after the war. His salary, as other town taxes, was payable from a levy upon the farms and estates of the inhabitants, many of whom were delinquent. As a consequence, May 10, 1790, there was due him a balance, yearly increasing from 1784, of £224. 1. 10. At that date,

Voted an addition of thirty pounds to Mr. Payson's salary, this present year, on account of his not having received his money for 1784, 1785.⁶⁵

June 18, 1801. The sum of $500, to be assessed for supplying the desk with preaching the present year. The Deacons to be a committee to supply the desk, and to borrow $200, for six months, giving security in behalf of the town; if they cannot hire the said sum, to apply to individuals in the town, money so borrowed to be deducted from their taxes the ensuing year.⁷⁷

In taking leave of the distinguished pastorate of Dr. Payson, I am constrained to add, though of great length, the following reminiscences and testimonials to his ability and worth. The first is from the Recollections of Samuel Breck, edited, with notes, by H. E. Scudder.

"I may add that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having undertaken to educate the son of General Warren⁷⁸ who was slain at the battle of Bunker Hill, sent him to a school at Chelsea, near Boston, kept by a Clergyman named Payson;⁷⁹ and as I was placed there about the same time, we were made bed fellows, and so continued for some months.

"The winter of 1780 was colder than any that has occurred since. I was then a scholar at Chelsea, and perfectly well remember being driven by my father's coachman, in a sleigh with two horses, on the ice directly across the bay of Boston, starting from the north part of the Town, and keeping for many miles on the ice, which we left to traverse farms, without being stopped by the

⁷⁸ . . . "The eldest son was educated at the expense of the United States, not of Massachusetts, the resolve being brought in by Samuel Adams, January 31, 1777." . . . [Note, by H. E. Scudder.]

⁷⁹ "Rev. Samuel Phillips Payson was distinguished at the time as a classical scholar and for his studies in natural philosophy and astronomy, but no acute observations on the Dark Day seem to have come down from him. He is preserved in the amber of Thornton's Pulpit of the American Revolution, and Sam Adams, writing to Elbridge Gerry and James Lovell about the Warren children, speaks of him as 'a gentleman whose qualifications for the instructing of youth I need not mention to you'; which reads almost as if one of those two gentlemen had personal knowledge of Parson Payson's qualifications." [Note by H. E. Scudder.]

The name was thus given in the order of Council, copied by Thornton, Pulpit of the American Revolution, p. 324. [In the library of the Massachusetts Historical Society are several copies of the original edition of Mr. Payson's Election Sermon here referred to, one of them among the printed matter given by Judge Chamberlain. On the title-page the author's name appears as Phillips Payson, and in the errata on p. 39 we read "In the order of Council, dele Samuel."] stone fences, which were all covered with snow. It was the summer that succeeded this cold weather, I think, that the famous Dark Day happened in New England. I was at the same school. It began about eleven o'clock in the morning, when I was standing by the master reading my lesson. The light grew dim, and in a very short time faded into utter darkness. The school was dismissed, and we went below stairs. The cause was wholly inexplicable at the time, nor do I find that it ever has been satisfactorily explained. Some ascribed it to an extensive conflagration in the backwoods, but I do not remember any heavy smoke or other indication of fire. I know that candles were lit, and the affrighted neighbors groped their way to our house for spiritual consolation and joined in prayer with our reverend principal, and that after we had dined by candlelight, — probably about three o'clock — it cleared up and became bright enough to go abroad. The day having been one of terror, and now more than two-thirds spent, we were not called to school in the afternoon, but were permitted to go into the fields to gather fruit and birds' eggs. Yet the succeeding night was 'palpably obscure.' Many accidents happened to those who were on the road. Nothing could exceed the darkness." (Recollections of Samuel Breck, pp. 20, 21.)

Among his other pupils were John Rowe, adopted son of his uncle John, a famous Boston merchant, who, though inclined to side with the loyalists in the Revolution, was respected by the patriotic party. From his Diary, edited by Edward L. Pierce, and printed in 2 Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., vol. x., are the following extracts, on pp. 11, 104: "'Jack' Rowe . . . who, at the age of seven years, was adopted by his uncle, arriving in Boston (from Quebec.) Oct. 19, 1772, shortly after his arrival, being sent to Rev. Mr. Nicholl's school, at Salem, and later (that school being broken up soon after the battle of Lexington) removed to the school of Rev. Phillips Payson, at Chelsea."

"August 14, (1778). Mr. Payson brought Jack home this morning. A sad accident happened unto him: some boys were out a shooting; one of them, named Bartlet's, gun went off accidentally, and shot Jack through his coat, and lodged, at least, thirty shot in his right arm: 't is a great mercy he escaped with his life."

Other pupils were William, son of Gov. James Sullivan, and a son of Gen. William Heath.

His tracts on astronomy and natural philosophy are in the Transactions of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He published an Election Sermon in 1778; one on the Battle of Lexington, in 1782; delivered a Duddleian Lecture in 1784, and printed a sermon on the Death of Washington, in 1800.

Phillips Payson was a descendant of Edward, born in Nazing, County of Essex, England, baptized October 3, 1613, and came to Dorchester, Massachusetts, in 1635. By his first wife, Ann Parke, he had one child, Mary. January 1, 1642, he married Mary Eliot, sister of the Apostle Eliot. They had twelve children, the eleventh of whom, Samuel, baptized September 21, 1662, and died October 20, 1708, married Mary Phillips, daughter of Rev. Samuel Phillips, of Rowley, June 14, 1688, and had eleven children, the ninth of whom, Phillips, was born February 29, 1704, and died January 22, 1778. He was a clergyman, ordained at Walpole, Massachusetts, September 16, 1730. His first wife was Ann, daughter of Rev. John Swift, of Framingham; his second, Keziah Bullen Morse, widow of Deacon Seth Morse, of Medfield; and his third, Sarah Payson Mather, daughter of Deacon Edward Payson. They had eight children; the second of whom, Phillips, born January 18, 1736, graduated at Harvard College, 1754, ordained at Chelsea, October 26, 1757, died there January 11, 1801. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. James Stone, of Holliston. They had five children: Anne, February 3, 1759, died, unmarried, in 1803; Phillips, July 8, 1760, Harvard College, 1778, married Ruth Larkin; Elizabeth, June 1, 1762, died, unmarried; Samuel, March 27, 1764, Harvard College, 1782, married Grace Welch; Sarah, November 24, 1769, died young. More facts regarding some members of Dr. Payson's family are given in Wyman's Genealogies of Charlestown, 732.

Dr. Payson belonged to a remarkable family. His father and three brothers were clergymen; the youngest, Dr. Seth Payson, being the father of his more distinguished son, Dr. Edward Payson, of Portland. His pastorate of nearly forty-three years, at Chelsea, was useful, and not without distinction; but his field was narrow and secluded. In the Revolution he rendered essential service to the cause, not only by his papers on political and constitutional questions, of which the town records afford evidence, but also by enlisting troops; and on one occasion placing himself at their head, as will be duly related, hereafter.

He was, in addition, a teacher, to whom, in his rural parsonage, lately standing at Revere, the sons of many eminent men resorted for instruction, as shown in the extract from "Recollections of Samuel Breck," already quoted.

He was a representative to the General Court in 1783.

Joseph Tuckerman, D.D., his successor in the pastoral office at Chelsea, wrote on the last page of Dr. Payson's Church Records, and printed the following notice of him in a Sermon preached on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his settlement at Chelsea.

"Peace to the memory of a man of worth,—

“ Mr. Payson was ordained on the 26th of October, 1757; and about the same time the covenant was signed by fourteen who united as members of the church. It was no inconsiderable distinction which this small, and, at that same time, obscure society obtained in his ministry. He was a man of science and learning, as well as of piety. His printed sermons are honourable to his memory, in the evidences they have left to us of his strong good sense, of his just discrimination, and of his enlarged and rational views of religion. I find, indeed, in his records, no indication of a remarkable attention to religion during his ministry; and I have been told that he often suffered keenly, in a recurrence to his unsuccessful efforts to excite in those to whom he ministered, a strong interest in the concerns of their souls and of eternity. Some of you, my brethren, knew him well; and some survive, who were companions of his youth. It is honourable to you, as well as to him, that his memory is so dear to you. Many of you know the peculiar afflictions with which it pleased God to visit him; and you know too the humility and resignation with which he sustained them. You have known him when his courage was tried in danger. There is an account, in one of the publick papers of the day, of a brave action, to which he led some of his parishioners, during the revolutionary war. And you have seen his fortitude brought to the severest test, by a long series of the most distressing trials. But I mean not to pronounce a eulogy upon him. I bring him to your remembrance, that you may inquire what were the fruits of his ministry in yourselves? Most of those, to whom he dispensed the word of salvation, have long gone to their account; and soon, must your account also be rendered. Prepare then, I beseech you, to meet your Judge in peace. — Dr. Payson died on the 11th of January, 1801, aged sixty-five years, and in the forty-third of his ministry. I had the pleasure of seeing him but once, and then but for a short time. But his tall, spare and venerable figure are still before me. He had been prematurely broken down in his long contest with sorrow, but his heart was unshaken; and with humble confidence he was waiting the disposal of God. He sat leaning upon his staff, and realized to my mind one of the most perfect conceptions I have ever formed, of all that may be associated with a patriarch. You have all read his character in his epitaph. But I trust that there is a far more permanent memorial of him on high. The granite and marble that rests upon his grave will crumble into dust; but the soul that is sanctified by the word and spirit of God, will survive the desolations of time, and advance forever in the service and enjoyment of its great Creator.

"During Dr. Payson's ministry, ninety were added to the church, four hundred and fourteen were baptized, and two hundred and forty-one died.

"From November 4th, 1801, to November 4th, 1821, there have died in the parish one hundred and seven:

What follows is from a Sermon to the Church and Congregation at Chelsea, &c. (By Rev. Dr. Barnard, of Salem, p. 15.)

"In all our revolutionary war was he not the wise and vigorous friend of his country; and since, has he not uniformly labored to establish her good order, and promote her prosperity? Early he became an instructor of youth to prepare them by classical knowledge for an admission to higher grades of education. In this department, was he not respectable to his superiors, and ever esteemed and loved by his pupils? He was in the original number of learned men, who formed the American academy of arts and sciences; and was a member of our societies of trust and humanity. Our university honorably to distinguish him, by which she did honor to herself, conferred upon him the degree of Doctor in Divinity. He was an admired preacher. I have known no one, who, in his better days, would more command an audience by his good sense and evangelical exhortations, by the energy of his diction, and the pathos of his delivery."

I will only add that, August 13, 1801, the town concurred with the church, in calling Joseph Tuckerman, as the town minister, at a salary of $500 per annum; also, $600, "as a settlement." to be paid, as follows: $200, the first year after settlement; $200, the second year: $200, the third year. The town agreed with the church, on November 4, 1801, for his ordination.⁸⁰

March, 1796. Voted, to get a "Cushing," by subscription. May 1, 1803, to see what repairs are needed; May 3, 1801, not to allow the building of sheds [for horses, on the Sabbath] on the town common, near the Meeting-house; May 8, 1809, to let the "Town pew," to John S. Tewkesbury, for $6.75, for the year; to let the care of the Meeting-house to Joshua Cheever as the lowest bidder, for $4, a year; November 5, 1810, Voted, not to take action respecting "doing something for the encouragement of the 'Singing Society'"; November 4, 1816, to raise $75 for the support of a singing-school; March 3, 1817, giving the "Points" [Point Shirley] their proportion of the singing money; October 19, 1817, "At a meeting of the Church, after Divine Service, this Day, having taken into consideration the expediency of having a stove in the meeting-house, it was motioned by the pastor, seconded by Deacon Harris, and voted unanimously, that the church Committee be and Hereby are empowered, requesting, in the name of the Church of Christ in this place, to offer to the town, from the church funds, to purchase, and to have erected in the meeting-house, a stove, suitable for warming it in the winter, on the condition that the town will keep said stove in good repair, and supply it with fuel, at the town's expense." The town accepted these conditions, and to "find some person to tend the stove"; November, 1817, Voted, that individuals might build sheds on the Common, under the directions of a Town committee; March, 1818, voted, not to alter the body seats in the meeting-house.

After the separation of "Church and State" in 1833, towns no longer acted as religious societies, but these were incorporated and kept their own records; and, therefore, the town historian will after that time, search the town records in vain, for interesting particulars, like the foregoing. Nor will it be practicable to pursue church history, in detail. Such histories must be monographs.

⁸⁰ Joseph Tuckerman, D.D., was born in Boston, January 18, 1778, graduated at Harvard University in 1798, was minister of the Unitarian church in Chelsea, Massachusetts, from 1801 to 1826, and resigned his charge on account of the necessity forced upon him by ill health of relinquishing in some degree the active duties of the pulpit, as well as to carry out plans in which he had become interested for the improvement of the condition of the neglected poor in our cities. He was soon appointed by the American Unitarian Association minister-at-large in Boston, and so worked continuously until his death, in 1840; two chapels were erected for him.

Payson Genealogy

Friend Dewing:—

I have received from W. Winters, "Churchyard," Waltham Abbey, co. Essex, England, copies of the registers of Nazing,¹⁵ Waltham Abbey, Cheshunt, Hundson, Roxwell, Gloucestershire, Cornwall, &c., embracing births, marriages, and burials. It is a report made by W. Mr. Dewing.

Dear Sir: —

I send you, as I promised, the Payson records of the line of Phillips,⁴ and family.

Anything farther if you need, will be pleased to copy for you.

Sincerely yours,

J. P. Payson.

Mr. Winters, who is perfectly conversant with the Nazing records, says, Edward Payson married Mary Eliot, youngest sister of the "Apostle," whom he knew in England.

To me, it is not consistent to suppose that Mary was Philip's eldest daughter, for the record gives his marriage as 1621, and her birth as 1620-1. Then with Mary as the youngest daughter everything is in regular order, — the four children of Philip are born 1627-'29-'31-'33. Again, in the records of baptisms, Mary is given as baptized March 11, 1620-1, — and immediately after it reads, "Elizabeth, the dau. of Philip." which plainly intimates that Mary was not the daughter of Philip. Again, Mary is given in the record of Bennett Eliot, but is not given in that of Philip, and the above is to me proof positive. I shall write soon to Mr. Winters of England, and if I get any farther light, will give you the benefit of it.

Ever your friend,

John P. Payson

P.S. Mr. Winters says in another place, "The wife of Bennett Eliot is not named in his will. Probably she predeceased him, and she may be the 'Lettes Elliot' buried at Nazing, March 16, 1620-1. If so, she died after giving birth to her youngest child Mary."

[Endorsed:] Mr. John P. Payson's papers on the Genealogy of the Payson Family, to me B. H. Dewing.¹⁶

Rev. Phillips Payson, D.D., was the eldest son of Rev. Phillips Payson, of Walpole, Mass., and was born Jan. 18, 1736. Of the six sons of Phillips of Walpole, four were clergymen, and were settled respectively at Chelsea, Lunenburg, Fitchburg, in Massachusetts, and Rindge, in New Hampshire. Phillips, of Chelsea, was of the fourth generation from Edward, of Dorchester, and Mary Eliot, a sister of Rev. John Eliot, familiarly known as "The Apostle to the Indians."

After graduating from Harvard College, where he distinguished himself particularly for his knowledge of the dead languages and astronomy, he was ordained pastor of the Church

On the 3d day of April, 1635, the Brig Hopewell, William Burdeck, Master, sailed from London (England) having on board, besides other passengers, Giles Payson, aged 26, Edward Payson aged 22, Philip Eliot, brother of Rev. John Eliot, his sister, Mary, aged 13, his wife, Elizabeth, aged 30, and two children, Philip, aged 8, and Elizabeth, aged 2. January 1, 1642, this Edward Payson married this Mary Eliot, sister of Rev. John, and had by her eleven children. The 10th child was Samuel, who in June (14), 1688, married Mary Phillips, daughter of Rev. Samuel Phillips of Rowley. By her he had eleven children. The ninth was Phillips, who was settled over the Church in Walpole, Mass. He married (1) Ann Swift, daughter of Rev. J. Swift; (2) Keziah Bullen Morse, widow of Dea. Seth Morse, of Medfield, Mass. He had seven children by his first wife, and one by Keziah, viz., Seth Payson, who was settled in Rindge, N. H., and who was the father of Rev. Edward Payson, of Portland. The second child of Phillips Payson and Ann Swift, was Phillips, who was born January 18, 1736, ordained at Chelsea, October 26, 1757, where he preached forty-four years. He married Elizabeth Stone, daughter of Rev. James Stone, of Holliston, and by her he had two sons and three daughters.

at Chelsea, where he preached for forty-four years. Nor was he less distinguished as a patriot, than as a scholar and theologian, as the following well authenticated incident will show.

In speaking of the retreat of the British from Lexington, Gordon, the historian, says, "They," (the British) "killed several innocent, unarmed persons; and murdered two old men at Menotomy. Before they reached this place, however, a few Americans, headed by Rev. Mr. Payson, of Chelsea, who till now had been extremely moderate, attacked a party of twelve soldiers, who were carrying stores to the retreating troops, killed one, wounded several, made the whole prisoners, and gained possession of their arms and stores, without any loss whatever to themselves."

This shows the fact that the Rev. Doctor had learned that,

"In this, the dawn of 'Freedom's Day,'
There is a time to fight and pray."

CHAPTER XXX

EDUCATION

CHILDREN in the precincts of Boston, Rumney Marsh, and Muddy River, were doubtless entitled to free education, equally with those of the peninsula,¹ especially after the order of the General Court, November 11, 1647, making it obligatory upon every township of fifty householders to set up a school; but distance and situation made this practically a barren right, and not being satisfactory, we find the following action in Town Meeting, March 11, 1700/1:

Some of the Inhabitants of the North end of the Town stood up & requested that they might have the libertie of a free-school, for the Teaching to Write & Cypher.

It was Voted in the affirmative, That the Selectmen should agree with a Schoolmaster for them & order him his pay out of the Town Treasury.

The Inhabitants of Rumney Marsh standing by and seeing the town in so good a frame also put in their Request yt a free school might be granted them to teach to Read, Write & Cypher. It being put to the Town to know their minds, It was voted in the affirmative with this proviso, That it did not appear to the selectmen yt there were a suitable number of children to come to the school. Then the selectmen should agree with a schoolmaster to teach their Children to read and write & cypher, for which service he should be paid out of the Town Treasury.²

This vote, however, led to no practical results for eight years after, when the citizens at Rumney Marsh, being impatient, reminded the selectmen of the town's action in 1701. Whereupon, February 7, 1708/9.

Upon the motion and request of Sundry of the Inhabitants of Rumney Marsh desiring that a School for the Education of their children may be provided according to a vote of the Inhabitants of Boston, at their meeting the 11th of March, 1700. The present Selectmen do, therefore, agree, that in case Mr. Thomas Cheever do undertake, and attend the keeping such school at his house, four dayes in a week, weekly, for ye space of one year Ensueing, & render an accot. unto the Selectmen, once every Quarter, of the number of children or scholars belonging unto ye sd. district, which shall duly attend the sd. school, he shall be allowed & paid out of the Town Treasury after the rate of Twenty pounds p annum, for his service.³

Thomas Cheever performed this service, certainly until August 10, 1719, and perhaps later, although from October

19, 1715, he had been settled as pastor of the church then gathered at Rumney Marsh.⁴

What schools, if any, were kept at Rumney Marsh between 1719 and 1728, does not appear; but March 10, 1728-9, "upon Petition of Rumny Marsh, for Allowance for A School-master there — Voted to ad Twenty Pounds to what they formerly Allowed to mr Thomas Cheever, for the year Ensuing, Provided, that the inhabitants there procure A sutable Person to the Satisfaction of the Selectmen "; and March 9, 1729, 30, the sum of forty pounds was allowed; 1732, sixty pounds; and in 1733-4, ten pounds were added.⁵

Presumably, there was no diminution of educational facilities at Rumney Marsh, between the last recorded vote of 1734, and its incorporation as a town in 1739, though the evidence is meagre. But, after the organization of the town by choice of its officers, March 20, 1739, the first vote was as follows:

Voted, to continue the grammar-school, provided any person appeared to make up the difference of charge between a grammar & writing School. Then, it was urged that the selectmen have instructions given them respecting the regulation of the school, and voted, that the selectmen visit and examine the school, as often as they think needful, and make report at their annual meeting of the town, respecting the care and conduct of the master, and the proficiency of the youth attending the school: and, also, to fix or move the school as may best commodore the town: and appoint stated hours to keep the school.⁷

The foregoing appeal to the Selectmen of Boston was equitably regarded:

April 11, 1739. Upon a motion made by the Selectmen of Chelsea, late Rumney Marsh, in the Township of Boston, respecting the last Quarter Salary, due to Mr. Belcher Hancock, their school-master, ending the 21 of March last past, Praying the same may be paid to him to that time, for services mentioned.

In consideration that the Tax assessed upon the District of Rumney Marsh was for the charge of 1738, which ended in March, last, and whereas, Mr. Hancock was entered into the last Quarter before the said District was set off by the General Court, as a District & separate Township, Therefore, Advis'd that the sum of twenty pounds be drawn upon the Town Treasurer in the next Draft, payable to Mr. Belcher Hancock in full for his services as school-master at Rumney Marsh from 21 Dec., to the 21 of March, last past.⁸

⁸ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., xv. 172, 173.

March 20, 1739. Voted the Selectmen, as a committee, to wait on the Boston Selectmen, respecting our charges this year; expostulate with them to refund our full proportion of the tax this year, and defray our public charges to the end of the year. (Chelsea Rec., i. 3.)

This vote discloses the name of the schoolmaster at Rumney Marsh, just before the organization of the town. In the appendix will be found a tabulated statement, so far as the records have preserved them, of the names of teachers and the places where they taught.

The last vote requires explanation. The legal obligations of a town of fifty householders were discharged by the appointment of one within it to teach all such children as should resort to him to write and read; but on the increase of the families or householders to one hundred, they were to set up a grammar-school with a master competent to fit youth for the university. With the assistance of Boston and private contributions of those interested, Rumney Marsh, for part of the time at least between 1709 and its incorporation in 1739, had enjoyed the privileges of a grammar-school. At first this school seems to have been kept near the centre of the town, in a building owned by private parties, and not far from the present (Unitarian) meeting-house. Early in April, 1749, we hear of "the school-house near Winnisimmet"; and in July the school was moved to the schoolhouse near the meeting-house, which indicates that there were two schoolhouses at that date. With the growth of Pulling Point and Winnisimmet the school was apparently kept interchangeably at those places and the centre, for we hear of only one schoolmaster at the same time. Late in November, 1749, there was an engagement for "a woman's school" at Pulling Point; and families living remote from any centre were sometimes allowed their proportional part of the school money to be used by them for the instruction of their children. As a rule the selectmen were the school committee, with large discretion as to the times, places, and teachers of the schools.

1740, March 3. Voted not to continue the grammar-school But, inasmuch as some persons may make up the surplus charge between a grammar & writing school, the consideration of a school deferred till next meeting, & the selectmen desired to take any subscriptions & report at next meeting.⁹

May 21, 1740. Voted to raise a hundred pounds for schooling in the town at the discretion of a Committee, to whom the sole management of the school or schools be referred: Committee, Nathl Oliver, Junr., John Chamberlain, John Boardman, Hugh Floyd, Edward Tuttle, William Hasey, & Samuel Pratt.¹⁰

1743, May 18. Voted £80, old tenor, for the keeping of a school the present year.¹¹

I do not know that it would be wise to do so. That question I leave for my editor. But it has occurred to me that it might be well to give in the Appendix, or at the end of the chapter on Education, a list of the Rumney-Marsh school-teachers, and in that case the references to the Selectmen's Records would be useful. 1749, March 20. Voted to continue a school for six months, and agree with Mr. John Rand, the former school-master, if he may be had. Samuel Watts and Samuel Pratt, to contract with him, therefor. 1751, March 23. Mr. Livermore to continue school another quarter commencing the 13th. School to be moved the first of April from Mr. Watts's to the school-house near Mr. Kent's.²³

August 26. Mr. Samuel Livermore appeared, and requested the Selectmen would release him from keeping the town's School, as he had resolved on a necessary voyage to New Jersey. That he should have no desire of leaving the town, for which he had a great value, but it would be to his great damage to be detained. Voted to dismiss said Livermore, and [he] to have £4, due him, this day.²⁴

⁴³ This gentleman may have been the Rev. Oliver Everett, father of Alexander H. and Edward Everett.

As far as is known, the first school building in Winthrop was the school house erected in 1805, which stood on the present town hall site. The following copy of an old paper in possession of Mr. Hermon B. Tewksbury gives the names of the scholars who were taught the three R's in the old Bill house, still standing on Beal street. The name of the teacher is not known:

CHAPTER XXXI

MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS

1631-1739

THUS far I have not broken the continuity of subjects by interposing in chronological order the organization of the town in 1739, which I shall take up in the next chapter. There are, however, memoranda of events and persons from 1630 to 1739, which, though of no great importance, nevertheless are worth preserving.

1631, July. Winnisimmet was assessed 15s., "for making the creek at the new town" (Cambridge); and Saugus, 20s., showing the relative wealth of the two places. 1632, "for a palisado about the new town," Saugus was assessed £VI, and Winnisimmet, 30s.¹

In 1633, to defray the public charges Saugus was assessed £36, Salem £28, Medford £12, and Winnisimmet £8.²

1633, Sept. 3. Administration of the goods and chattels of Richard Arnoll, of Wenetsetmet, deceased, was granted to William Stitson.³

1634. Governor Bellingham lived in Boston; but after he purchased Winnisimmet, where he had a farm-house, doubtless visited it often. His will says: — "He (Angola, a negro), was the only instrument that, under God, saved my life, coming to me with his boat, when I was sunk in the river between Boston and Winisimmet several years since, and laid hold of me and got me into the boat he came in and saved my life, which kindness of him I remember."⁴

1635. Winnisimmet was annexed to Boston in 1634; Charlestown then included Everett, Malden, and some other towns, northerly and westerly. Boston and Charlestown fell out as to their bounds, and the General Court referred "the difference to the final determination of John Haynes, Esq., John Winthrop, Esq.,

⁴ Savage's Winthrop, i. 174 n.

Capt. Turner and Mr. [Thomas] Beecher; and no others are allowed to accompany them.”⁵

1637, Sept. 28. “William Schooler brake prison, and fled as far as Powder Horn Hill, and there hid himself out of the way for fear of pursuit.”⁶

1656, 29, 8. It is advised that there shall bee a pound sett upp by the Constable at Rumney marsh, for which he is to be paid out of the rate to be levied this yeare.

1657, April 27. Richard Way admitted into the town, provided that Aron Way doe become bound in the sum of twenty pound sterling, to free the town from any charge that may accrew to the town by the said Richard or his family, to which he agreed.⁷

Richard Way was of Dorchester, and brother of Aaron Way, who, with William Ireland, owned part of the Vane allotment — now Prattville, in part.

1657. Rumney Marsh tax for the town, was £12-13-6; for the county a rate and a quarter, £15-19s.

1660, May 4. Edward Holyoke died at Rumney Marsh.⁸

1661, 24, 12. Tho. Stocker, Constable of Rumny Marsh, shall be allowed, 40s. for present supply of one good [man] Favour,

⁵ Col. Rec., i. 139.

⁶ Savage's Winthrop, i. 290. Powderhorn hill, then, and long after, was covered with trees.

⁷ Boston Rec. Com. Rep., ii. 136.

⁸ With his son Elizur, about twenty, came over near 1637, and had a farm at, or near Rumney Marsh, where he died May 4, 1660 (Hull's Diary, Amer. Antiq. Soc. Coll., iii. 193), probably at the house of John Tuttle, who married a daughter. (Ante, vol. i. p. 204.)

He was several years a deputy in the General Court, and once for Springfield, residence in the town represented not then being essential.

The son soon went to Springfield, where he married Mary Pynchon, “9 mo, 20 day, 1640.” They had sons and daughters. The youngest son came to Boston, and was the father of Edward Holyoke, president of Harvard College. (Conn. Valley Hist. Soc. Papers, 1876-'81, 62.)

Richard Tuttle had 161 acres at Pulling Point Neck. (Boston Rec. Com. Rep., ii. 29.)

Where Edward Holyoke's house was, I cannot say; for the name Rumney Marsh sometimes included lands northerly of Revere. IN KING PHILIP'S WAR

After the repulse of the Indians in their assault on Samuel Maverick's Palisade House, perhaps in 1628, the people at Winnisimmet, in common with those in the vicinity of Boston, were unmolested. Doubtless, however, for the common defence, they were enrolled and trained in the military companies of Boston, to which they belonged. But geographically their military relations were with Essex and Middlesex counties, rather than with Suffolk.

Accordingly, May 26, 1658, "In answer to the petition of some of the inhabitants of Lynn & Reading, & Rumney Marsh, the Court judgeth it meet to grant them liberty to raise a troop of horse, and choose their officers, provided they be not ferry-free, nor have five shillings yearly allowed them from the country, as other troopers have."⁵⁰

Among military officers at Rumney Marsh was Elias Maverick, "chosen by the North Company in Boston to be their ⁴⁹ Ibid., 98. It was a serious matter to be collector of taxes. He gave bonds, and was charged with the taxes, good, bad, or indifferent, assessed on persons and estates. He could seize property, and even the person, of the party taxed; but, if the property could not be found, or if the person did not, or could not, pay, when thrown into jail, still the collector, and his bondsmen, were liable for the taxes. The only remedy was by abatement, not in the interest of the debtor but to relieve the collector.

Jacob Chamberlain was collector in 1733, and died in 1734, when some taxes were not collected. His liability passed to his widow; not to her person, but to her and her children's interest in her deceased husband's estate. Hence the order of March 10.

In the Three County Troop (so named October 8, 1662, but recognized May 28, 1659, and finally dismissed, March 21, 1690), on the petition of Jonathan Poole and William Greene John Tuttle as lieutenant and William Hasey as cornet, were approved, "if circumstanced as the law provides"; and, again, May 3, 1665, when their commissions were ordered.⁵² May 7, 1673, Lieutenant Tuttle was dismissed from the service at his own request, and Eliakim Hutchinson appointed in his place; entry repeated October 15, 1673.⁵³ May 27, 1674, William Hasey was appointed lieutenant, and Jonathan Poole, cornet, of the Troop.⁵⁴ Edward Hutchinson was commander to October, 1674, when he resigned, and Lieutenant Hasey was in command June, 1675.⁵⁵

Bodge gives the names credited under Lieutenant Hasey, October 5, 1675, of whom several were of Rumney Marsh.⁵⁶

In February, 1676, during the progress of the war ten troopers were impressed from the Three County Troop, besides ten Suffolk soldiers, which, with those already raised, amounted to six hundred. By order of May 5 they were to repair to Concord, by the boats, completely armed. Baggage horses were to be impressed, sustenance provided, and seventy Indians.⁵⁷

August 22, 1676, was this order:

To the Constable of Winnesimmet:

These require you in his Majestys name forthwith to impress an able man and horse to post away this letter sent to you as directed to Major Daniel Dennisson, Esq., for the service of the Country, making your return, and not to fail.

June 1, 1677, Jonathan Wade was appointed captain, Corporal William Green, cornet, and Isaac Brooks, quartermaster, of the Three County Troop.

In the expedition to Mt. Hope, June 24, 1675, Captain Prentice took with him as guides three Chelsea Indians, two of whom were James Quanapohit, and Thomas, alias Runney Marsh, his brother. The Naticks were divided into four companies. The first lived at Medfield, with James Runney Marsh and his kindred, and numbered twenty-five, including five men. Among the dangerously wounded in this war was the daughter of that friend of the English, "Sagamore John," who died at Winnisimmet.⁵⁸

A CORN MILL

In the flat country in and about Runney Marsh, remote from waterfalls, the generating power for driving a corn mill was of first-class importance. From the earliest days Boston and Noddle's Island were supplied with windmills, and later with tide mill-ponds, the most famous of which, on the Back Bay, has been filled only in recent years, and now constitutes the most elegant part of the city. As late as 1733 the inhabitants of Medford, Malden, Runney Marsh, Woburn, Charlestown, and part of Lynn, depended upon "Timothy Sprague's Grist Mill, in Malden." Such is the inference from the following petition, signed by two hundred and thirty-eight of the inhabitants of those places:

"We the Subscribers, Inhabitants of Malden, and other Towns, adjacent, have for two summers last past been greatly damnified by reason of a certain breach, lying open in Spot pond Dam, in Stoneham and also by Stoppages in the Streams that used to supply Timothy Sprague's Gristmill, in Malden, with water in Malden, by reason of which breach and Interruptions, as aforesd: we, the Subscribers, have been great Sufferers, and do still suffer, for want of the Improvement of the benefits of the said mill, as formerly used to grind meal.

Eleven years before the Rumney-Marsh people, then belonging to Boston, appear to have sought permission to have a tide-mill of their own; for, March 12, 1721, the town ordered: "The Selectmen be Desired to goe to Rumney Marsh, and View the place proposed to Set a Corn mill upon, and report thereof, at the next meeting."⁵⁹

ingly.”⁶⁰ These proceedings, apparently fruitless until about 1735, led to the establishment of what became known as “The Mills,” and later, as “Slade’s Mills”; and as the mills were destroyed by fire only a few years ago,⁶¹ after having been serviceable for about one hundred and fifty years, I shall anticipate their later history in this connection.

It is probable from the following agreement that the mills near the Town Landing were erected by Lieutenant Thomas Pratt before 1735: “Memdm: Agreed with Saml: Watts, this 2d Day of May, 1735, to Let him have my Quarter Part of the two Griss mills, at Rumney Marsh, I abeteing twenty-two Pounds of what I have Expended on them, as P. my Aect., Given to said Watts, he paying me fourty-two Pounds, & In Six months hence, fifty-Eight Pounds more, & then to Give Bond for the Remainder, Payable in twelve months from ye then Date. As Witness my hand, the Date above written. Thomas Pratt.”⁶²

An account of the Estate of Hon. Samuel Watts with the “Mills of Chelsea,” beginning April 26, 1739, and ending with July 15, 1762, contains items of labor on the dam and repairs of the “Mill Boat.” On his death, in 1770, his half of the "Grist Mill" was set off to William Watts, who, for £40, conveyed the same to Thomas Pratt, June 9, 1772, who thus became sole owner.⁶³

The following entry in Samuel Watts's Memorandum Book indicates that the mills were in court at one time. "1766, Oct. 9. Cash to S. Floyd & S. Watts, Evidences about the mills, at Chelsea, Tending the Court, 2: 10." ⁶⁴

March 9, 1780, Thomas Pratt sold one half of the Grist Mill to Samuel Clark, for £600, L.M., and 50 Spanish Milled Dollars.⁶⁵ May 27, 1780, Clark sold the same to James Stowers for the same consideration.⁶⁶ August 21, 1781, for £26. 13. 4, in specie, Jonathan Williams, of Chelsea, sold to Samuel Sprague, "all my right, that is, one fourth in the Grist Mill."⁶⁷ October 23, 1782, James Stowers, et al., sold part of the same, to John Buckman.⁶⁸ 1790, April 5, The town voted not to exempt the Grist mills in this Town from Taxes.⁶⁹ 1792, Dec. 20, The town voted not to purchase the mills in Chelsea for the use of the town.⁷⁰ 1793, June 27, James Stowers sold to Samuel Cary, one half part of the same,⁷¹ and on the same day James Stowers sold to Joshua Cheever one quarter part of the same.⁷²

The refusal of the town to purchase the mills, or exempt them from taxation, may indicate some dissatisfaction with their management, perhaps expressed by the following vote: "1794, May 14, Voted that if Capt. James Stowers shall Erect a wind mill in this Town, it Shall forever be Exempted from Taxation."⁷³

At some time, unknown to me, the "old mills," either by accident or by decay, ceased to exist, and January 16, 1816, the town voted to petition the General Court, for "liberty to build a dam across the river, where the old mills formerly stood, for the purpose of erecting a Grist Mill, thereon";⁷⁴ and February 15, 1816, the inhabitants were authorized to erect such a dam "across Mill River at or near the Poor

March 4, 1816, the Town chose Joseph Stowers, Samuel Lowe, and David Floyd, a Committee, as respects the Mill, and to report at the April meeting what would be the best advantage to the town.⁷⁶ April 1, 1816, this committee reported, That they have waited on Mr. Cary's heirs, the only Claimants to the dam, and privileges where the old mill formerly stood, and Consider their Claimes just, so far as it relates to the old dam, that being Considered the most suitable place for the erection of Mills, and, as it would be Attended with less expense, think it advisable for the town to vote a certain sum of money to be paid said Claimants, by their deeding said old dam, with all other Claims, to the town: in Case of a refusal they would suggest another mode of procedure, viz., For the town to authorize some individuals in his own right, or in the right of the town, to erect a dam and mill, agreeable to said grant, and the town Warrant and defend the same against all demands and damages Whatever. By the Committee.

Voted, that the Town thro' a Committee offer Mrs. Cary, and heirs the sum of two hundred Dollars for their right to the old mill dam and privileges, agreeable to the report of their Committee, and, in case the above sum should be refused, that the said Committee is authorized to dispose of the above mill seat, and the town will Warrant and defend the same. June 27, 1816, this committee reported a mode of procedure which was adopted, but reconsidered, July 15th, and the following adopted:

1816, July 15. The subscribers, chosen by the town as a Committee, to Dispose of their Mill privileges, agreeable to grant of the General Court, beg leave to report, That, in consideration of the proprietors of the old mill will relinquish all right and title, they had, or may have, to all the mill priviledges, thereto belonging to the town for the sum of $550 Dollars, and that of this sum, Mr. John Cutter will pay 450 Dollars: they report, that it is expedient that the town raise the remaining sum of 100 Dollars, and pay over [to] the same proprietors, they giving good and sufficient

March 8. Report of the Committee on the Rumney Marsh Petition, Read.

Report of Committee

Boston. Pursuant to the aforewritten vote of the town, we, the subscribers, have taken under consideration the petition of the inhabitants of the district of Rumney Marsh. And have given the said petitioners a meeting. But at the time of our meeting they were not pleased to assign any other reason than what they have offered in their petition for their being sett off, nor in any kind supported the subject matter of their petition. And we find they are a very industrious people, growing in their substance and estates, and too valuable a member to be severed from the body.

We are therefore humbly of opinion, that the town desist proceeding any further on the said petition, and that at present it will be best, both for the petitioners and the town to remain in the relation they stand to each other.

At a meeting of the freeholders and other inhabitants of the town of Boston, duly qualified, and lawfully warned, in publick town-meeting assembled, the 14th March, 1737 [1738].

A petition of sundry of the inhabitants of the district of Rumney Marsh, in the township of Boston: Praying to be sett off from this town, in order to their being incorporated into a separate township.

Read as follows, viz.;

To the gentlemen, the inhabitants of the town of Boston, at their general town-meeting, on the 13th day of March, 1737-38.

The humble petition of the inhabitants of the district of Rumney Marsh, belong to said town, humbly sheweth

That, whereas by their situation and their present circumstances and difficulties they are under by reason thereof too many and needless to be now recited: Do from a mature thought and consideration apprehend they are in no ways in a capacity to reduce the same. Particularly, that every one may pay his just proportion of charge, and that everything of a publick nature may be legally carried on and affected by us, humbly pray

That you would sett off number thirteen (in which we dwell) as a separate township, and allow us out of the publick revenues, what you in your wisdom shall think meet.

Report of the New Committee

At a meeting of the freeholders and other inhabitants of Boston, duly qualified, and lawfully warned in public town meeting, assembled at the Town House, upon Wednesday, May 10th, Anno Domini, 1738.

Mr. Cushing, from the committee appointed the 13th of March, last to consider the petition of sundry inhabitants of the district of Rumney Marsh, — Praying to be sett off from this town in order to their being incorporated into a separate and distinct township, presented their report, which was read, and is as follows, viz.:

The committee appointed to consider of the foregoing petition have attended that service, and having had a conference with sundry of the principal petitioners, have heard all they had to offer in support of said petition, and after mature deliberation had thereon, the committee are of opinion that as to any inconvenience which either does now, or may hereafter attend the petitioners, with respect to the support of their present minister, or in settling and supporting any others in time to come, it may fully be redressed by their being made a precinct, when they shall petition for that purpose, and it be judged reasonable.

As to any difficulties the petitioners apprehend they are now under, with respect to the school, the due apportioning the taxes, and their highways, the Committee are of opinion, that the town may give relief (as they think needful) in a more reasonable manner than by voting them off a distinct township.

And, we are, therefore, on the whole, of opinion, that this petition be dismissed.

All which is humbly submitted. P

Thos. Cushing, Jr.,	Sam'l Adams,
Andrew Tyler,	Robert Rand,
Jacob Parker.

After some debate, voted, that this report be accepted, and that the petition be accordingly dismissed.

Inhabitants of Rumney Marsh apply to the General Court

To his Excellency Jonathan Belcher, Esq., captain-general and governor in chief, in and over his Majesties Province of the Massachusetts bay. The honorable, His Majesty's council and the Honorable House of Representatives, in general court assembled at Boston, May 31, A. D. 1738.

The petition of the subscribers, inhabitants of the district of Rumney Marsh, in the township of Boston, known and called by the Number Thirteen,

Most humbly sheweth, That we account it no small honour to be part and parcel of this great and honorable town of Boston, the metropolis of the extensive province of the Massachusetts bay, and the mart of trade (considering its situation and commodiousness in a safe and fine harbor), compared with any town in His Majesties dominions; but, though we enjoy this honour, yet our circumstances are such, by reason of our habitations being on the northeasterly or easterly side of the harbor, that renders our attendance on any public town meeting very difficult, and as we apprehend too obvious for any one to think it not greatly inconvenient. It is not through any unnecessary discontent, or want of having all due care of justice taken of us, as to the provincial taxes or ministerial supports, that occasions us to address your Excellency and Honors at this time, but merely from the difficulties and dangers we are exposed to, in passing the water, to attend the town-meetings, where we have a right to vote, and freely acknowledge we are always fairly and kindly treated. It is well-known the weather in the month of March (which is the anniversary for the choice of town officers), is as boisterous to high winds and storm, as almost any month in the year, and though we are always desirous of affording our mite in the scale, in consulting and voting for the best good of the publick at such meetings, where the affairs of the advancing years are then in a more especial manner brought under consideration, we are very often prevented from being at these meetings by reason of the difficulties and dangers, aforesaid.

We would humbly observe that we are but a mere skirt, or handful of inhabitants, compared with the body of the town, and our part of the town rate, if taken from the rest, would be so inconsiderable, that we would not incline to think our mother town could look upon it reasonable to hold us on that account, if the advantages we should reap by assembling ourselves, as in town meetings, was considered at the same time.

We have, therefore, in order for relief, with all respect and affection, petitioned the town, but have failed of the desired success, as by a copy of the proceedings, herein herewith exhibited, may appear.

Wherefore, your suppliants would in all humility address your Excellency and Honors with assurances at the same time, that it arises not from any disrespect to our honorable town, or the least unkindness ever offered us in any town-meeting, but from a sense of the great danger and difficulties we are exposed to, in travelling to the publick meetings, and pray that of your wonted goodness and clemency, as in many cases of the like nature (and as we humbly conceive with at least as little reason) you would please to set us off from our honorable mother, Boston, for whom we pray heartily, that peace may be within her walls, &c., and give us leave to prepare and bring in a bill for erecting the said district of Rumney Marsh, with the inhabitants therein, commonly called Number Thirteen, into a separate and distinct township, to have and enjoy equal powers and privileges and immunities with any other town in the province.

And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

Boston takes Action in Regard to the Foregoing Petition

At a meeting of the freeholders and other inhabitants of the town of Boston, duly qualified and warned according to law assembled in public town-meeting at the town-house on Tuesday, the 21st of November, Anno Domini, 1738.

some of the inhabitants of Rumney Marsh, which they have preferred to the general court, praying that they may be set off as a separate township, have attended that service, and accordingly have drafted and signed an answer, which they now present to the town, viz,:

PROVINCE OF THE

MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

To His Excellency Jonathan Belcher, Esq., Captain General, and Governor in Chief, the Honourable the Council, and Honourable House of Representatives of said Province, in General Court assembled at Boston, the thirtieth of November, one thousand, seven hundred, and thirty-eight:

The answer of the inhabitants of the town of Boston to the petition of a small number of the inhabitants of the district number thirteen, commonly called Rumney Marsh part of said Town, to this Honourable court, praying that they may be set off as a distinct township for a suggested reason, contained in said petition.

The town of Boston humbly sheweth, That some of the inhabitants of the district of Rumney Marsh, did on the thirty-first of January, one thousand, seven hundred, thirty-four, prefer a petition, and on the thirteenth of March, one thousand, seven hundred, thirty-seven, did prefer one other petition to the town of Boston, in order to obtain from said town several advantages, and also to be set off as a distinct township.

In regard to said petitions the town appointed two several committees to hear the petitioners, consider of, and report what they thought adviseable for the town to do thereon.

Which service they accordingly performed. The copy of which petitions, with the reports thereon, we humbly beg leave to lay before this Honorable Court. And we may justly observe, and say, that in answer to all their petitions and complaints, heretofore made, where there has been the least colour, the town has readily pointed out proper remedies, and stand ready to afford them.

And the petitioners having been conscious that the town are ready to do so, have betaken themselves to this slender plea of passing Winnisimmet Ferry, which we apprehend they would never have done, were there not some secret springs of their actions, which we cannot account for, notwithstanding all their dutiful and affectionate regard to their mother town, so fully expressed in their present petition.

But inasmuch as they think it most for their service to lay so great stress upon that single, tho' small inconvenience, we think it incumbent upon us to observe, that there has ever been given them so little interruptions in that matter, as that, neither they, nor their predecessors have ever heretofore tho't it sufficient cause of complaint to the town, nor can they say that one year in ten (communibus annis) for the time past, they have been prevented in giving their attendance at town-meetings, nor can it be reasonably supposed, that for the future they will otherwise be interrupted by that means, which they make no difficulty of, in daily exposing themselves to in the common affairs of life. But should they, yet their coming by Penny Ferry will be attended with very little charge and trouble.

We would now humbly beg leave to lay before your Excellency and Honors the unreasonableness of the prayer of said petition.

1. In respect to the inhabitants of the district it ought reasonably to be supposed that when any petition is prefer'd to this honorable court for such a separation as is desired by the petitioners, that it is the mind of the principal number of the inhabitants, or to remove some grand inconvenience, or to preserve peace and good order, or lessen the charge with which said district labors under their present circumstances. Neither of which we apprehend can by any means be pleaded in the present case.

For it's very observable that not one third part of the inhabitants of that district have signed their names to any of their petitions, and consequently that they cannot by any means be thought as consenting thereto. More especially John Yeamans, Esquire, Joseph Thompson, Esquire, nor their agents, nor the Reverend Doctor Sewall, are anyways privy to the deliberations had, nor drafting of, nor presenting, said petition to this honourable court, notwithstanding, they are the proprietors of Noddle's Island, Hog Island, and very valuable farms at Rumney Marsh. And further we find by the rates and taxes that one hundred and twenty-one persons are rated and taxed within the said district, and, but twenty-eight persons' names subscribed to the depending petition.

And as to any grand inconvenience, all that is pretended is the small trouble of passing a ferry, which we humbly conceive would not have carried so great weight with it (tho' all the inhabitants of that district had subscribed to the petition), as to have influenced this honourable court to separate such a valuable member from the body of the town of Boston, especially considering how small a tract of land, and how unable they are to support the necessary charge of a separate township.

And as to the promoting of peace and good order it can never be suppos'd, that the granting the prayer of such a small number of petitioners, whereby a much larger and more valuable number must be necessarily concluded, can ever be attended with such desirable effects.

And as to the lessening the small and favorable charges, with which the said district has been assess'd, it is very reasonable to suppose that their charge will (upon such a separation) be near double.

2. In regard to the town of Boston we humbly apprehend that by such a separation the town will be strip'd of a very valuable reversion, which will revert to the gospel ministry in the town of Boston, under certain regulations, being no less than three or more valuable farms at Winnisimet, being part of the estate of Governor Bellingham, bequeathed to his wife, after his wife's decease then to his son and his daughter, and, after their decease, the whole estate to pass, and, the annual income to be apply'd, to the encouragement of the gospel ministry, &c. As by an extract from the record in the Probate office, for the county of Suffolk, may more fully appear.

Moreover it's well known that the town of Boston labours under very distressing circumstances upon many accounts.

The visible declension of our trade, and the growing advantages of the husbandman, especially those, who by the nearness of their lands to the town of Boston, have the greatest opportunity of making such singular advantages, as the members of the town of Boston, under these present circumstances are very great strangers to, especially this valuable part of our body (called Rumney Marsh), who by the indulgence of the town are grown rich, and well able to help us under our present difficulties, for Boston being the receptacle of almost all the poor that come into this Province, by reason that most foreigners fix here, and cannot be prevented, provided they bring with them the value of fifty pounds, or are able-bodied tradesmen, or indented servants, or sailors under most circumstances, create so great a charge to this town, that instead of having the least of our members separated from us, we cannot but hope and desire that this honourable court will so far take our distressed circumstances under their most wise and just consideration, that they will afford us such aids and advantages, as may, in some measure extricate us therefrom.

And inasmuch as the general court of this province at their session, the third day of September, one thousand, six hundred, and thirty-four, annex'd Winnisimet and Rumney Marsh to the town of Boston, so we can but hope and desire that this honourable court will not, without the strongest reasons and most pressing necessity separate that valuable member from us.

All of which is humbly submitted.

Joseph Marion,

Edw. Bromfield,

1738, Dec. 1. MEMORANDUM. — The selectmen having signed the answer of the town of Boston to the Rumney Marsh petition, it was delivered, with the several copies referred therein, to the representatives of the town, in order to their presenting it to the General Court, according to the vote of the town, the 27th of Nov., current.⁴

By the persistence of the inhabitants of Number Thirteen, and against the remonstrance and opposition of the other portions of Boston, a new town was erected.

This measure, though brought about with the concurrence, if not the hearty wishes, of the principal citizens, was not a wise one. Three times their successors have endeavored to repair the mischief, but without success.

Unable to show any substantial reason for separation, the petitioners resorted to the flimsiest pretext, that in March, the season of the town meeting, prevalent storms interfered with their only access to the town's meetings. Never was reason more ridiculous assigned for the important step they were about to take. Their numbers were few, and as they soon found, their property and estates were insufficient for the respectable maintenance of a separate town government.

Nothing remained, however, but to go forward and organize a town government.

SAMUEL WATTS.

First Town Meeting

At a town's meeting for the choice of a town clerk and other town officers, the fifth of March, [1739], voted as moderator of this meeting, SAMUEL WATTS, Esq.

It was moved by several that the town officers be chosen by a majority of the electors present, and voted in the affirmative.

The town proceeded to the choice of town officers, and voted as town clerk, Nathaniel Oliver, Jr.;² as town treasurer, Mr. Samuel Tuttle; as selectmen, Messrs. John Brintnal, Thomas Pratt, John Floyd, Samuel Floyd, Nathan Cheever.

Voted, the selectmen to be overseers of the poor and assessors.

Then voted, this meeting be adjourned; accordingly adjourned to three o'clock, post meridiem.

Post Meridiem, four o'clock. Met and proceeded to the choice of the other town officers, and voted as constable, Mr. Daniel Tuttle.

It was moved whether the selectmen should be the surveyors of highways; and it was voted in the negative.

Then voted as surveyors of highways, Messrs. Nath'l Oliver and Samuel Pratt.

Voted as sealor of leather, Mr. John Parker; as fence-viewers, Messrs. Nathan Sergeant and Samuel Berry; as hog-reaves, Messrs. James Stowers and Jonathan Belcher; as sealor of weights and measures, Mr. Jacob Hasey; as an haward, Mr. John Hasey. Then it was voted this meeting be adjourned, sine die.

Second Town Meeting

March 20. At a town-meeting for the choice of officers instead of those that may not serve the town as chosen, March ye 5th. To see if the town will continue the school. To choose a committee to wait on the selectmen of the town of Boston to see if they will give anything towards repairing our highways. To see in what method the town will mend their highways the year ensuing; and to see what the town will do respecting a pound.

Voted, as moderator of this meeting, Samuel Watts, Esq.

Mr. Joseph Belcher moved his son, Jonathan Belcher, be excused

² Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., one of the most respectable men in town, was often elected to office, once, in 1748, as constable. Service was compulsory, unless excused, or on payment of a fine into the town treasury. Men were sometimes elected for the fine they would pay to escape service. In 1748 Oliver, having been elected, desired to be excused, which was granted. Whereupon the town elected a man more notable, even, Hon. Samuel Watts, who agreed with William Boardman, Jr., to serve in his place. The town approved this. Mr. Oliver then promised the town, in consideration of their releasing him from the office, that if he should move from town, before he had served in it, he would give the town fifty pounds, in old tenor bills, as a free gift. Town Rec., i. 26.

The next year they elected him representative to the General Court.

as hog-reave, to which office he was chosen, on March ye 5th, past; and voted, he be excused. Capt. Nath'l Oliver moved he be excused, as surveyor of highways; and voted to excuse him. Mr. Samuel Pratt desired he may be excused as surveyor of highways; and voted in the affirmative.

Then, it was urged by several that the highways be mended the year ensuing by a tax and draught on the treasury; which being put to vote passed in the negative.

The question was then put, whether the town will repair the highways by a rate of days work; and voted in the affirmative. Then, voted as Surveyors of Highways, Messrs. Samuel Breeden and Elisha Tuttle.

Voted, as an hog-reave, James Eustice. Voted to continue the grammar-school, provided any persons appeared to make up the difference of charge between a grammar and writing-school. Then it was urg'd that the Selectmen have instructions given them respecting the regulation of the school. And voted, that the selectmen visit and examine the school, as often as they think needful, and make report at their annual meeting of the town respecting the care and conduct of the master; and the proficiency of the youth attending the school; and also to fix or move the school, as may best commodore the town; and appoint stated hours to keep school. Voted, to leave the affair of the pound wholly to the selectmen. Voted, the selectmen be a committee to wait on the selectmen of the town of Boston, and treat with them respecting our charges this year; and expostulate with them to refund us our full proportion of the tax this year; and defray our public charges to the end of the year.³

Upon Mr. Elisha Tuttle's refusal to accept of the office of Surveyor [of Highways], to which he was this day chosen, and resolving to pay his fine, inasmuch as the town would not excuse him, voted in his stead Mr. Jacob Hasey.

Then voted, that this meeting be adjourned, sine die.

May Meeting

May 16. [1739]. At a town's meeting, to choose a meet person to represent them in the general court, to be held for his Majesties Service, at Boston, on the thirtieth of this Instant, at 9 o'Clock, in the morning. To raise money for defraying the accruing charges of the present year, and also to do any other business that shall be thought necessary, the selectmen being moderators.

³ See ante, p. 326.

Upon some debate, respecting the town's obligations to send a representative, it appeared by enumerating the Poles, that the town was obliged to send, and the question was put, whether the town would send a representative, and voted in the affirmative. Then voted as the town's Representative, Samuel Watts, Esq.

Voted, as moderator for the rest of the town's business Samuel Watts, Esq. Then the town voted to raise forty pounds to be expended by day's work on the highways, and that the price of a day's work for a single man be eight shillings for an able team, viz.: a cart and two pair of oxen, or a cart and one pair of oxen, and an horse, be eight shillings; and that whosoever, being taxed, as in this vote is expressed, shall refuse to work, being duly warned, shall be obliged to pay his tax into the town's treasury. Voted, also, that the highways be repaired within the months of May and August inclusively. Then voted, to raise ten pounds, to be laid out at the discretion of the selectmen in educating the children living at those branches of the town called the rocks and Pulling Point. Voted also to raise seventy pounds for other accruing charges. Then Samuel Watts, Esq., offered the town a spot of land, to set the pound on, near Mr. Nathan Cheever's land, which the town voted to accept, and also voted their thanks to Samuel Watts, Esq., therefor.

Then, it was debated whether the town would give their representative instructions in his conduct; but voted in the negative.

Voted, this meeting be adjourned, sine die.⁴

⁴ Also Selectmen's Rec., i. 2, 47, for action on the subject of the pound.

THE foregoing transcript of the records of the first three meetings of the new town indicates the staple and methods of their municipal legislation, schools, roads, ecclesiastical affairs, together with the few and simple regulations for the government of a people mainly agriculturists. And as I have treated the principal of these for the period covered by their history, I shall confine myself to matters not already noticed, or of exceptional interest. These are chiefly miscellaneous, occurring irregularly, and having no necessary connection with the development of their autonomy. Nevertheless some of them are of historical value.

A town Pound was needed for stray cattle, and May 16, 1739, Samuel Watts offered a spot of land, "near Mr. Nathan Cheever's," on which to erect one. This offer was accepted, with thanks therefor, but apparently nothing came of it; for twenty years later, August 21, 1759, Samuel Pratt, Samuel Floyd, and Samuel Sprague were a committee to look for ground on which to set a Pound. The next year a similar vote was passed. In 1762, for five shillings Nathan Cheever deeded to the selectmen for the use of the town land near the Meeting-House for a Pound, so long as so improved; then to revert to him and his heirs, he to have all the dung.¹ This Pound seems to have been built in 1763, since orders for £4. 8. 11 were given to Daniel and Samuel Pratt "for sundrys done on the pound." In 1797 and 1798 William Harris and James Stowers received $15.96 for work on it.

The General Court passed an act for the better preservation of deer, and Boston as early as 1739, and Chelsea in 1741, and both for some years after, chose "Inspectors into killing deer"; but, as the law applied to all towns, the election of such officers does not necessarily imply that deer were running wild at that time, either in Boston or Chelsea.

The counterfeiting of Province Paper Money began at an early period; and in the Appendix at end of this chapter will be found an interesting account by two men, one of whom, Nathaniel Hasey, was a Chelsea constable, for their expenses in pursuing and arresting several counterfeiters in 1741.

Hog and Noddle's Islands

After three years of separate town government the people of Chelsea, not finding their condition as they desired, sought to improve it by annexing Hog and Noddle's Islands. Accordingly, March 1, 1742, they chose Samuel Watts, John Sale, and Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., a committee to confer with the proprietors or agents of those islands with a view to procure, if possible, their favor to the project.²

Sept. 19, 1743, they voted to petition the General Court, and chose Jacob Hasey, John Sale, and Thomas Pratt a committee.³

The project seems to have slept eight years, when, March 4, 1751, Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., Richard Watts, and Stephen Kent were chosen as a new committee,⁴ who prepared the following petition, which is so interesting historically, that I accord it a place in the text.

To the hon^l Spencer Phips Esq^r. Lieut.
Governor & Comander in Chief in & over his Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England. The hon^l his Majesties Council & house of Representatives in gen^l. Court assembled this 27.
day of March, Anno Domini, 1751,

Most humbly shews

The Subscribers, in behalf of the Town of Chelsea, chosen by said Town the fourth Instant, legally assembled —

That, when the Inhabitants of the District of Rumney Marish, then so call'd, petitioned this hon^l. Court, To be erected into a distinct Township, They petitioned for all the Lands to the northw^d. of Winisimett ferry, or Charles River, comonly known by the name of Number thirteen, within the Limits of the Town of Boston; Together with their proportion of the revenues of the then said Town of Boston; especially, as they had paid into the said Town, upwards of £2500, old ten^r. to the Uses of the said Town more than they had ever received by any benefitts whatever as a part of said Town.

That, when they were sett of as a township, it pleas'd that hon^l Court to sett of said Township, exclusive of two Islands, known by the names of hog Island & noddles Island, being about a sixth part in value of the petition'd for township: and had no Consideration for any part of the revenues of the Town of Boston; or for what they had paid into the Town Treasury more than they had received benefitt by, in any charges for said District whatsoever, Without which aforesaid Limits or Benefices, The Inhabitants of said District had never thôt of desiring to be a Township. —

Since which, your hon^r. & hon^{rs}. in your known wisdom have seen meet to annex a Considerable part of said Township to the west Parish in Lynn, a Very great further weakning to the Town of Chelsea.

That, We labour under the Difficulties of a long and tedious ferry, that said Township cannot be considered nearer the marktett then twelve or fifteen miles.

That, from the Northeast to the South bounds of said Township they lie expos'd to the open Ocean; whereby the Rage of the Sea destroys acres of the lands, and some of the best of the Lands of said Township every year — That, many of the lands in said Township are owned by those that stile themselves Churchmen & Quakers, and Most owned by Gentn., Either living out of town, or under such Circumstances that they are uncapable of Division, and so an encrease of their Inhabitants cannot be had: all which leaves this poor Township under a low and decaying Condition. —

Now, may it please your hon^r. and hon^{rs}., as the aforesaid Islands lie most adjacent to said Township, and by nature seem intended to belong to said Town, especially hog Island, which lies encircled by said Township, lies, as it were, in the heart of said Town, and is so far annex'd to said Town, that a dry passage is most generally free to & from said Town to said Island every low water. Is much nearer to the meeting-house and School of said Town by miles than any other; and the Inhabitants have to this day constantly attended publick worship there, nor can they with any convenience attend elsewhere; as our fathers, when we were of the town of Boston, tho't these were the true Circumstances of said Islands, that they always annexe'd them to us by the name Number Thirteen; as our Military Rulers continued them to us in that order; as the Predecessor of the Proprietor of said Hog

Island, Viz., The Venerable Judg Samuel Sewall, deceas'd, of happy memory, gave largely to the building of the first meeting-house in said place, took a Pew in said house, which he kept for the uses of his said farm, and always allow'd the then minister a Sum annually more than the Tax of said Island wou'd then have been, and which his rev^d. son the present D^r Sewall continued for some time; and were that good publick spirited Gentⁿ. now living, We doubt not, his noble Spirit wou'd exert all its efforts in promoting this very design we are now attempting; So that we can't but think it our Duty to request said Islands may now be annex'd to us as a township. And with regard to Noddles Island we may assure your hon^r & hon^{rs}. Mr. Yeomans, Deceas'd, just before he left the Country last urg'd us to this same petition, and would have continued his desire no doubt had not his death prevented. If it be objected, That these Islands have been exempted from said township of Chelsea by reason the present owners or Proprietors of said Islands are unwilling said Islands shou'd be annex'd to us; We wou'd answer, First, 't is impossible any Inhabitants can be accommodated by any town or Parish priviledges elsewhere so well as at the Town of Chelsea, and the Inhabitants of hog Island especially time out of mind have thrô this necessity chearfully attended the publick worship of Chelsea. — Secondly, No reason possible can induce the Inhabitants or Proprietors of said Islands to object against this most reasonable request. But from Encouragement from the Town of Boston that their taxes shall be Low, lower, we say, than the reason or nature of things wou'd allow: and why so valuable a tract of Land shou'd be exempted from the comon Duty of us all, We can see no reason; Nor can we suppose The Town of Boston on any generous principles whatever wou'd endeavour to withhold these Islands from us, when the taxes are of so little significancy to them, in proportion to the very large taxes the[y] bear, That hog Island for the year 1750 paid no more than £18: 18: 6, old ten^r., to the Town & County Charges, and not £50, “ — “ — old ten^r., when they have been rated to a fifth part of the greatest Province Tax we ever had; Unless it be in future time on a presumption that the general Court will not sett these Islands of, that they may have opp^o: to exact greater profits from them —

If it be further objected, that the district of Rumney Marish, at first consented to accept of the privileges of a township, exclusive of these Islands, We wou'd say that as a Community we did it not; and whatever those that principally desired it and transacted that matter might do, We should never have petitioned at first with these Views. Besides, had we done it as a Community, it was not under any presumption or supposition, that any part of the Remainder of our Lands shou'd be taken from us and annex't to another Parish, Which being very lately by the last Court for wise reasons done, Therefore, as an Equivalent, we hope this Court in their goodness will add these lands to us — Wherefore on the whole your Petitioners humbly request that a Committee from this Honble. Court may be appointed to View our Circumstances at our Charge to consider this Petition, and if they shou'd report in favour, That these Islands may be annexd to the township of Chelsea. — And, as in Duty bound, shall ever pray, &ca.

It is hardly necessary to say that the result did not meet the wishes of the people of Chelsea.

Care of the Poor

October 20, 1742, the question was, whether “the town will build either in whole or in part a dwelling-house for Mr. Dispaw and family to dwell in, or for any other poor of the town”: and whether the town would accept offers of land for that purpose. But it was “voted, to raise twenty pounds for Mr. Dispaw to go on with the house he is now projecting by the assistance of his friends.”⁶

The town was very considerate of its own poor, who were chiefly those of good families fallen into decay; but very careful to escape supporting those having a legal settlement elsewhere, or foreigners having none.⁷ And in 1790 the select-

March 13, 1786, Capt. Samuel Sargeant, Mr. Joseph Green, and Mr. Daniel Pratt, are a committee to procure a house for the Poor of the town to live in, and make a report as soon as they can.⁹ Meantime, May 29, "Voted to have the poor of the town set up and struck off to the lowest bidder to keep for six months or a year from this time, or till the Committee provides a house for them."¹⁰

Lacking a Poor-House, voted to hire the barracks of Daniel Pratt, for the poor of the town, at three dollars per quarter.¹¹ Feb. 25, 1789, paid him, £5. 0. 5. 1, for use of the barracks, from Dec. 4, 1786, to 26 April, 1788.¹²

The Council decided, that "the Pauper is not the proper charge of the Province," and refused the request. Mass. Archives, cxviii. 74, 76. CHAPTER XXXV

A NEW PARISH, JURYMEN, AND TAXATION

WHILE Chelsea was seeking the enlargement of her territory by the annexation of the adjacent islands, the people in the northwesterly part of the town, whose geographical relations were with that part of Lynn now part of Saugus, petitioned the town, December 30, 1745, to be set off as a parish with others of Lynn. The petition was referred to the March meeting, 1746, when Samuel Watts, John Brentnall, and Thomas Pratt were chosen to consider and report in May. Their report, presumably adverse (though not on record), was accepted. But the petitioners, not content, appealed to the General Court, and June 15, 1747, the town chose Nathaniel Oliver, Stephen Kent, Hugh Floyd, Samuel Pratt, and Samuel Tuttle a committee to oppose their prayer. March 7, 1748, the town again refused their petition, probably a new one; and Thomas Cheever and others again went to the General Court; and again, December 18, 1749, a committee, consisting of Samuel Watts, Nathaniel Oliver, Jr., and Thomas Douglass was chosen "to give reasons why said petition should not be granted."¹ Apparently the petitioners prevailed; and June 7, 1763, Richard More, with others, and December 21, 1763, Francis Smith and William Bordman had made similar petitions. But these persons still remained inhabitants of Chelsea, and their estates a part of its territory, taxable for all parish purposes save ecclesiastical. It was not until 1841 that this part of Chelsea known as the "Pan Handle" became part of Saugus.²

The people of Chelsea, and doubtless of other towns, found the frequent drafts upon them for jurymen and the payment of taxes troublesome, and also deemed themselves overtaxed. Consequently, March 5, 1744, the town "Voted, that Capt. Nathaniel Oliver make his interests with the Superior Judges to abate the number of Jurymen for that Court";³ and thirty-four years later, 1778, when the burdens of the Revolution were severely felt, appears the fragment of a document given in the note.⁴

Taxes were specially burdensome in 1741 from lack of coin; and hence, March 2, "Voted, the town have liberty to pay their town taxes in the Bills of the Manufactory Scheme:⁵ and the Constable of the town is hereby obliged to receive the town tax for the year past in said Bills if they be tendered him."⁶

In 1749 (perhaps in 1745)⁷ a question arose as to the right of the town to tax lands of Harvard College within its limits, and the story is best told in the following:

To the honl. Spencer Phips, Esqr., Lieut. Govr.,
The honl. his majesties Council & house of Representatives, in Genl. Court, Assembled, Novr.
22, 1749.

The Petition of Nathl. Oliver, Jur., in behalf of his town, humbly sheweth, that your Petitioner some time ago preferd a memorial to this honl. Court, setting forth some Difficulties former Collectors, & the present assessors of his town labour under respecting the Tax levied by his town on Some lands belonging to the Colledge, seituate in the town of Chelsea, which memorial,

In obedience to the within writ, I have caused the Inhabitants of sd town to be assembled, and they Voted, that they are not able to send any Jurior to the Court, within mentioned, as they sent two Juriors to the Last Superior Court, in the month of August, Last, Agreeable to a permission Granted to the town of Chelsea, by this Honble Superior Court about seven years ago, persuant to a petition preferred to said Court, whereby the town, by their agents, demonstrated that Chelsea was sent to for more than Double the number of Juriors, that the other towns, in the County were Generaly Sent to for; according to the number of tickets that were in the Superior Court Box for the town, Commonly have but Eight Quallified Jurior tickets in sd Box, and there is twelve Juriors Called for, in three years, for sd. Court, and we was obliged to Break the Law to obey sd Court's precept, and shall be so now, unless we are excused from Sending: now, as the Law clears Juriors three years, we must Send once in two years, we have been excused from Sending to half the Courts ever since sd. permission was Granted, and humbly pray your honrs.' Continuance of sd. permission.

though committed, is lost, or mislaid, wherein your petition. sett forth, that, altho' the Lands under the immediate improvmt of the Colledg, Settled Ministers & Gramer School-masters by a standing Law of this Province are exempted from taxes, yet in your Petitioner's opinion those Lands belonging to the Colledg, not under their immediate improvemt. but leased to others, may notwithstanding sd. Law and ought to be taxed to the town where such Land lies. Wherefore, your Petitioner prays, that a resolve of this Court directing in said affair that the tax already made & to be made on such lands within the township of Chelsea may be confirm'd, to prevent all difficulties for the future, and your Petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

N. OLIVER, JUR.

This was referred, January 17, 1749/50, to the Committee of the House, then considering the petition of President Holyoke, that the College Treasurer be released from a Boston tax on College money let out on interest. (See entries of April 14 and 16.) April 18, 1750, this committee reported favorably upon the College petition, and referred that of Chelsea to the May session. The case was continued from time to time until April 16, 1751, when "The Committee to whom was Referred ye Petition of Nathl Oliver, Esq., in behalf of ye Town of Chelsea, having fully heard the Petitioners, as also the Honle Treas. & Revered President of Harvard College, are of opinion that all the Lands lying in said Town (of Chelsea) belonging to the sd. College ought to be freed from all Civill Impositions, Taxes, & Rates, But that they be subjected to pay towards ye support of Ministeriall Charges as other Real Estate in said Town are; all which is submitted." ⁸

May 27, 1751, The Selectmen were directed to obtain a lease of the College Marsh for the benefit of the town as soon as the present lease to Captain Newhall, &c., is expired. ⁹

The College Marsh, sometimes called the Cogan Marsh, of sixty acres, through which the Salem Turnpike passes, south-erly of Pine's River, was devised to Harvard College, in 1652, by John Cogan, and sold to Edward H. Robbins, February 7, 1832. ¹⁰

CHAPTER XXXVI

POINT SHIRLEY

"PPOINT SHIRLEY has for many years past been a noted place. It was formerly called Pulling Point, a name now retained by another more commodious headland at the northwest, fronting westerly upon the harbor, and which has sometimes been called Chelsea Point. About the middle of the last century a number of Boston capitalists attempted to carry on the fishery business here, and purchased land for the erection of dwelling-houses and workshops for the fishermen they intended to employ; but instead of doing this they put up houses for their own pleasure accommodation, and a meeting-house for a preacher on Sundays, wholly neglectful of the operatives, who were to have carried on the business for them. When ready for their enterprise, the speculators, believing that all great undertakings should be auspiciously commenced, concluded to have a nice time, and consequently invited Governor Shirley, who was exceedingly popular with Bostonians, to go down the harbor with them on the eighth of September, 1753. At the time appointed the proprietors of the new establishment went down to the fishery with the Governor and a number of gentlemen of distinction, — for they had such personages then, in great abundance, as now, — who were selected, perhaps, because they could make speeches, tell stories, or sing songs, and, at any rate, could eat dinners and drink good liquors. As they passed Castle William (now called Fort Independence) they, that is to say, the Governor and the company, were saluted with a discharge of fifteen guns; and so they were when they returned. It is said that the Governor was received at the Point with all the demonstration of joy that so new a settlement was capable of; and that His Excellency expressed great satisfaction on finding so considerable an addition to that valuable branch of trade, the cod fishery, and hoped the gentlemen concerned would meet with such success as to make them ample amends for so noble an undertaking. The proprietors, after having leave from His Excellency, gave to the place the name of Point Shirley. The Governor was well paid for his condescension, for his name is immortalized and kept green, while the names of the undertakers are as seldom mentioned as their unsuccessful attempt. About the commencement of the nineteenth century the manufacture of salt was tried at the same place, but did not prove remunerative; and, in later times, the Revere Copper Company established works which, though they may have been profitable to the proprietors, certainly did not add to the salubrity of the air at the Point, nor make the residence in the neighborhood particularly agreeable at all times.”¹

Indorsed: "This list of the Inhabitants of Point Shirley was given me by Mr. Thos. Goldthwait." The indorsement is in the hand of Jacob Wendell, a town officer of Boston, and the list refers to about 1750. The list probably includes many transient people engaged in fisheries, for which Point Shirley was then made a fishing station, in which Goldthwait was interested.

The original in the Boston Public Library, No. xx G. 342.12.

The condition of this part of Chelsea is shown in two petitions of the selectmen to the General Court, in 1780 and 1782, praying for a reduced valuation of the town for taxation. In the latter is this passage: "When the valuation was taken about 1772, there was a part of our town called

That precinct known as Point Shirley was once owned by Lieutenant Thomas Pratt, of Rumney Marsh, who with Mary, his wife, September 1, 1752, for £466. 13. 4, sold a hundred and forty acres to Henry Atkins, Ezekiel Goldthwait, Nathaniel Holmes, John Rowe, Thomas Goldthwait, John Baker, and Thomas Mitchell.²

Thomas Goldthwait then or not long after a resident at Point Shirley, and undoubtedly the leading spirit in the scheme to carry on the fishery business from that place, probably induced the town to vote, March 5, 1753, and again in 1754, "that the new settlers at pulling Point [in the fisheries]," who purchased their land of Thomas Pratt, should be exempt from their taxes, "for the year 1753."³ The same year Henry Atkins and others, the grantees of Thomas Pratt, petitioned the Boston selectmen for a lease of Deer Island, enabling them to carry on the Fishery at Pullen Point. And they were permitted to take off ballast for the fishing schooners.⁴

From December 1, 1758 [and perhaps earlier], to December 1, 1765, Thomas Goldthwait was lessee of the Island at £28 per annum. He was succeeded by Samuel and Ebenezer Pratt at £40 per annum. August 12, 1761, the selectmen reported that Thomas Goldthwait had with some exceptions fulfilled the conditions of his lease in rebuilding the house on the island.⁵

April 16, 1766, the Selectmen of Boston leased to Ebenezer Pratt of Boston, and Samuel Pratt of Chelsea, Deer Island, Pleasant Point, that then had about twenty Good Dwelling houses, Some stores, warehouses, and Barns, and Some Vessels at that place for Carrying on the fishery Business, and there was at that part of the town about twenty families, and as many rateable polls, able to pay public taxes: all said Stores, Warehouses, Barns, and Vessels are Lost and Gone, or of Little or no worth, and Great part of said Dwelling-houses are torn or fallen Down, and those few, that Remain, are so torn to pieces and out of Repair that there is not any fit for the poorest of people to Live in, So that there are but two families, and two Rateable polls, that are able to pay any public taxes there."

then in possession of said Ebenezer for seven years at the annual rent of £40, l.m.; the lessees to keep the house, barn, and fences in good order and not to keep more than six horses: — All hay cut to be used on the island, from which no dung, gravel, or soil were to be carried, nor trees cut thereon without permission of the selectmen.

There was a Weir Creek at Pulling Point; and April 28, 1755, John Ramsdell and others were voted the “liberty to draw the same as usual provided they have leave of the proprietors of the marsh, where the same is drawn, and pay the Town Treasurer ten shillings lawful money for the season.”⁶

March 13, 1786, a committee was chosen “to let out the privilege of Ware Creek this season.”⁷

CHAPTER XXXVII

THE SMALL-POX

THE small-pox was brought to Pulling Point December 26, 1751, under circumstances which with the exertions of the Runney Marsh people to check the spread of the disease are worth reading; and with the omission of some formal parts and the summarizing of others I present them in their own language.

January 6, 1752. Upon information that small-pox was broke out at Pulling Point, and that it was brought into town by Capt. Cussins, whose ship was cast away on Pulling point beach, Voted, that the Selectmen and Nathaniel Oliver, Esq., should examine the men belonging to said ship respecting bringing in the distemper.¹

January 11. In this examination it was learned that the small-pox was brought into town in the ship Bumper, late cast away on Pulling Point beach. That John Scalley was ill of the distemper, when said ship struck. That Capt. Cussens and his men in a cruel manner left said Scalley alive on board said ship alone; made no discovery thereof, when they went on shore, and next morning, when the Mate, Boatswain, and others, would have gone on board said ship and relieved Scalley, if alive, the said Capt. Cussens would not suffer them, but left him to perish, and ordered the above men to go on board in the evening and send up said body, if dead, in a hammock, and bury the same among the rocks a little below the said ship, lest it should be discovered.

Capt. Sale to supply those sick of small-pox at Mr. Bill's with such necessaries as they may want.²

January 13, 1752. Discovery was made of the corpse of John Scalley, and the same brought up to high water mark.

Whereas, the small-pox is broke out at Winismet, and the widow Brintnal is willing that those taken ill that way should be moved into her house,³

Voted, Messrs. Richard Watts and Ebenr. Hough, take due Care of all persons seized with that distemper at or near to Wini-simett; that they supply them with Nurses, attendance, and other necessities; and in such manner as to the best of their power to prevent the spreading the infection of said distemper.

The Selectmen were requested by Capt. Saml. Watts to bury or air the sails of the ship and other things that might be infected. But agreed, as said things were hous'd, it was dangerous to move 'em at present.⁴

January 27. Upon remonstrance by Mr. Tewksbury, that he was in fear that small-pox might be more apt to spread by the sails and rigging, belonging to Capt. Cussen's ship, being in his barn, as his family necessarily frequented said barn; Agreed, said sails be moved on the beach near Mr. Bill's landing-place, and put on a Staddle, and covered with salt hay.

Mr. Tewksbury also requested a nurse for his family, and Mr. Stowers was desired to go to Marblehead to procure one.⁵

February 4, 1752. Agreed, a warrant be issued, obliging those who have recovered of the small-pox, to keep themselves confined to their own houses or the appendages thereof, till thoroughly cleansed, and have a permission to go abroad by the selectmen.⁶

Feb. 24, 1752. By desire of the Selectmen of Boston, in writing, that the sails, and other rigging, of Capt. Cussins' ship be moved from Chelsea to Ransford's Island, Voted to permit same.⁷

April 6, 1752. Voted, that Mr. William Pratt be notified to keep himself out of the Towns where small-pox is prevalent, or he and his family may expect to be sent to Boston, their usual place of abode.⁸

May 20, 1752. Voted, Jonathan Bill, Richard Watts, and Ebenezer Hough, a committee, to prosecute Nicholas Cussins, for bringing the small-pox into town.⁹

The following is the indictment of Captain Cussins, drawn by Edmund Trowbridge, then Attorney-General, and afterwards Judge of the Superior Court.

Att.: SAM. WINTHROP, Cler.

1753, March 5. Voted, that the Selectmen prefer a petition to the General Court to entreat their favour respecting the extraordinary losses lately sustained by the small-pox.¹⁰

It may be inferred that the General Court acted favorably, for May 19, 1755, the town chose Captain Nathaniel Oliver, Lieutenant Nathan Cheever, and Mr. Samuel Floyd, a committee to inquire as to "the distribution of the monies given by the General Court for the charge many were at by reason of the small-pox brought among us by Captain Cuzzen." The records contain no report, nor do I hear more of the matter.¹¹

Inoculating Hospital at Point Shirley

Nine years later, in 1764, the small-pox raged with virulence in Boston, and occasioned great alarm. Private inoculation, from 1721, had prevailed to some extent, though there were those among the faculty even who disapproved of the practice; and when the governor and council had designated Point Shirley as a suitable place for an inoculating hospital, the people of Chelsea remonstrated. But Point Shirley had failed as a fishing station, and the proprietors were not unwilling to have the Hospital on their grounds; and there and at Castle William inoculating hospitals, the first in the State, were opened in 1764; at the former place by William Barnet from New Jersey; and at the latter by Samuel Geltson from Nantucket.¹²

At a meeting of the proprietors of Point Shirley, February 14, 1764:

Voted, and agreed to by the Subscribers, vizt.: Thomas Hancock, James Pitts, John Rowe, Ezekiel Goldthwait, Ralph Inman, Thomas Goldthwait, Thomas Mitchell, Nathaniel Holmes, & Mr. Green's Executors:—

That, in order to promote so Salutary a work as the Stopping of the Small-pox in the Town of Boston, the said Proprietors do agree to let the Physicians of the said Town have their houses and other Interest at Point Shirley to make use of an Hospital for Inoculation. And, whereas there are some Inhabitants at the said Point poor, and may become a charge to the Town of Chelsea; The said Proprietors do further agree, and do oblige themselves, to maintain such poor in case they shall stand in need of it, and that they shall not become a charge to the said Town of Chelsea, provided they, the said Town of Chelsea, consents to the said Point Shirley being Improved, as aforesaid. And the said Proprietors do further agree to be at the charge of nursing such poor of the said place as shall incline to be immediately Inoculated. It is understood that one Abigail Hool is included as one of the poor of Point Shirley.

After some Debate, —The Town Voted, not to have the Small-pox brought into any Branch of it by Way of Inoculation.

Also, that the Selectmen be as a Committee, to Remonstrate to his Excellency, the Governor, and his Majesty's Council, the Danger and many inconveniences, and to pray that it may not be allowed.¹⁴

1764. February 20th. At a Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, legally qualified, and warned in Publick Town-Meeting, assembled at Faneuil Hall, on Monday the 20th of February, Anno Domini 1764.

Voted, that the Gentlemen, the Selectmen, together with James Otis, John Ruddock, Samuel Wells, Harrison Gray, Foster Hutchinson, Esqrs.; Mr. Thomas Gray, Benjamin Kent, and John Tudor, Esqrs., be and hereby are appointed a Committee to take into their serious consideration, what are the most expedient Measures for the Town to take in their present distressed Circumstances by reason of the Small-Pox, more especially the Proposals made relative to inoculating Hospitals, and to Report at the Adjournment of this Meeting.¹⁵

Feby. 24. The Committee appointed [as above] after mature deliberation are of Opinion, That it be recommended to the Selectmen still to Continue their Endeavors to prevent the spreading of that Distemper, and that for the Accomodation of such of the Inhabitants as are inclined to take the distemper by Inoculation it will be expedient for the Town to Countenance the Establishment of Inoculating Hospitals, and they find upon Inquiry that the Houses at Point Shirley are very convenient for that Purpose; Your Committee further report, that a number of Physicians have hir'd the Houses at said Place with a view of Improving them as inoculating Hospitals, & are ready to admit any of the Physicians of the Town to inoculate their Patients there, they paying a reasonable consideration for the Houses & Furniture, and that a number of other Physicians are about Engaging Houses at some of the Islands near the Town for the same Purpose. — Your Committee have also consider'd the Petition for establishing an inoculating Hospital in this Town, and are of opinion it will not be convenient at present to have such an Hospital within the Peninsula.

All which is Humbly Submitted.

1764, May 24th. To the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, at their Town-meeting, the 24th day of May, A.D. 1764, Humbly Shewes that the Governor & Council, upon the spreading of the Small-Pox in the Town of Boston this present year was pleased to order & appoint a place Called Point Shirley, in the Town of Chelsea, to be made an Ospitale for Inoculating persons with the Small Pox that came from the Town of Boston and Else where, which has put the Town of Chelsea in Great feer & Expense, all wich they bore with Patience (?) Expecting in a few months that the Town of Boston would be Clear'd of that Distemper, when they should have Recourse to Boston again, but Should an Ospitall be continued at Noddle's Island we shall be prevented from going over Winnisimet Ferry, for when the Wind is at N. E. & S. W., we must go very near the fore part of it, and in a calm Time with the Flood Tide very near the back part of it, and this will not only affect the town of Chelsea, but the Town of Lynn, Marble head, & Salem, &c., & Deprive us of the Liberty of a Ferry which has been so convenient for us. CHAPTER XXXVIII

IN THE FRENCH WARS

CHELSEA probably had her share in the troubles occasioned by the French Wars; but the particulars I have noticed are neither numerous nor important. Each town was requested to keep on hand a stock of arms and ammunition for any emergency. Hence the following:

May 26, 1755. Lieut. Cheever was desired to examine, respecting the powder left with Mr. Saml. Pratt, deceased, to inquire of his son Samuel what was left, and how much he made use of. Mr. Benj. Brintnall was desired to provide 100 weight of Bulletts and 150 good flints.¹

In 1757, two expeditions were contemplated, one against Louisburg, and the other against the French forts in New York. The Chelsea quota was six men to be impressed unless otherwise raised. Hence the following vote, March 17, 1757:

Voted. 'T is the minds of the Town that the selectmen call a Town's meeting to see if the Town will raise any sum to encourage those that shall enlist without impressment in his Majesties' service in the present expedition and that the same be appropriated for the use of the officers, who propose to hire two men, and the sixteen men, who are pitcht upon by the officers, to hire the other four men, provided they obtain them without impressment.

Voted to raise thirty-six pounds, lawful money, to encourage six men the town's present demand, who shall enlist in the present expedition. And that the same be appropriated for the use of the officers, who propose to hire two men, and the sixteen men, who are pitcht upon by the officers, to hire the other four men, provided, they obtain them without impressment.²

The Acadians

When the Acadians were removed from Nova Scotia, in 1755, and dispersed among the colonies, about a thousand of them, says Hutchinson,⁵ arrived in Boston about the beginning of winter crowded almost to death. No provision had been made in case the government should refuse to take them under its care. At length the assembly passed an act that they should be permitted to land, and that they should be sent to such towns as a committee appointed for that purpose should think fit. Chelsea appears to have had her quota of them; and though I find nothing said about them in the town records, the following bills sent to the Province are in the State Archives:

CHAPTER XXXIX

BEACHES AND MARSHES

FROM early times the care of their beaches and marshes were matters of importance to the Chelsea people. The preparation of their stiff soil for English grasses was a slow and costly process; and their marshes, perennially yielding salt hay for their own kine as well as for exportation to the southern colonies, were worth more than they are now. Hence they sought to drain them, and to protect them from storms, which sometimes covered acres with sand and pebbles. The removal of sand and stones for ballast made these storms more destructive. The ownership of these beaches and rules for their preservation were questions often before the town.

Certainly as early as 1730, and perhaps much earlier, the marsh lying northerly of Beach Street, in Revere, was known as the "Dammed Marsh"; and fifty years later, a company was formed to construct a Dike near the mouth of Island End River.

The following petition relates, as I conjecture, to the Dammed Marsh:

To the Hon^{ble}: Thomas Hutchinson, Esq^r., Liv^t Govrn^r. and Com^{mander} in Chiefe of his Majes^{ys} province of the Massachusetts Bay for the Time being and to the Hon^{ble}: his Majestys Council of s^d province.

The petⁿ. of Sundry Inhabitants and the Major part of the proprietors of a Tract of Meadow Land Lying in the Town of Chelsea, Humbly Shews, that the above said meadow by reason of certain natural obstructions to the course of the Waters is often over flowed, and there by is become of little benefit to the s^d proprietors, which other wise might be made very Beneficial to them.

Wherefore, your petitioners Humbly pray that your Honour & Honours would be pleased to Grant Com^{missioners} of Sewers to such persons as to you shall seem meet, for the Removing the Obstructions upon s^d [land], and as in duty Bound shall ever pray.

P. s. as I Looked upon it unnecessary, I have omitted the town Direction to sd. Inspectors of sd. Beach Relative to prosecuting any offenders which you may have when needed.

From time to time this subject has been before the town.

April 3, 1786. Hugh Floyd, Jr., Jonathan Fuller, John Tuksbery, Jr., William Harris, and William Low, were a committee to inspect the Beach, and to receive 1s. 4d. per Tonn for all the Sand that out Town People carries off, and so in proportion and prevent all out Town People from carrying any trash off.³

1792, April 2. Voted, the inhabitants of other towns have no right to carry anything off Chelsea Beach. Voted, that the further consideration of the matter be referred to the May meeting.⁴

1792, May 2. Chose John Adams, Abijah Hastings, and William Eustis a committee to inquire into the property of Chelsea Beach, and report as soon as may be.⁵

February 12, 1798. The selectmen petition the Court that an act may be passed, preventing all persons, excepting the Inhabitants of the town, from taking any Stones, Gravel, Sand, or Manure from Chelsea Beach.⁷

March 4, 1799. Voted, that the Beach is the property of the town, and any person, not an inhabitant of Chelsea, who removes any manure of any kind from said Beach, shall be prosecuted by the committee, Abijah Hastings, John Tewksbury, Jr., Josiah Batchelor, Joseph Stowers, Capt. Jas. Floyd, and the town will indemnifie them for any expense they may be at in such prosecution.⁸

March 5, 1804. Town Treasurer authorized to settle with Mr. Lowell his account against the town as attorney in the Beach law suit, $100.90.⁹

April 6, 1812. A committee reported, that though the original bounds were by the beach, yet by the town charter of 1739, "the sea & pulling point Gut are the Eastern boundaries," and in their opinion, "from the West side of the Beach to low Water mark is the property of the town."¹⁰

May 11. Voted to petition the General Court for power to regulate the beach in the town.¹¹

The proprietors of the marsh northerly of Powderhorn Hill, desiring to prevent its overflow by the sea, petitioned the General Court for leave to erect a Dike across Chelsea Creek, "where the Grist Mill formerly stood"; and to this the Town objected, and chose Samuel Floyd a committee to "shew why." Mr. Floyd refused to serve, and so did the selectmen, ¹³ Spec. Laws, ii. 30. In this case as in so many other cases I regret that there is no one now living to answer questions which arise. We know that there was a dam and a mill at the Town Landing, October 16, 1782, because Capt. Samuel Sprague and James Stowers were then allowed to work out their highway tax on the "mill dam," and John Pratt was refused liberty to build a house, "by the mill." But in 1795 the mill is spoken of, as "formerly standing"; and Samuel Cary and others asked leave to erect a Dike, apparently at a point where a dam stood thirteen years before. But in 1795 it was no longer in existence. When was it destroyed, and when rebuilt? Did the proprietors above-named construct the present dam, and when was the second grist-mill erected?

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION COMING

NEITHER from the Town Records nor elsewhere do I learn what occasioned the following document; but, long before the war people were quick to resent any real or imagined infringement of their political rights:

¹ Town Rec., i. 64. The original Massachusetts-Bay Company was a close corporation, to which no one was admitted unless a member of the church established within its limits; but when communities had gathered remote from the seat of government, there were local duties and rights, not specified by general laws, in which it was desirable that some, not freemen, should share; and in 1647 the General Court authorized the freemen in towns to choose inhabitants, not freemen, to vote in specified affairs under certain conditions. By the Charter of 1692, Massachusetts became more clearly a local body politic with enlarged powers, instead of a great land company located in England, and in 1693 the General Court determined who should be freeholders and inhabitants, with their qualifications as voters in town meetings; but these matters were practically determined by the selectmen, who, sharing the popular feeling,

When the General Court was directed by the British ministry to indemnify those who, like Hutchinson, had suffered from the Stamp-Act mob in August, 1765, the matter was referred to the towns, and Chelsea, November 28, 1766, voted to leave it to their representative, Thomas Pratt, to act as he thought proper.²

In 1757, Parliament laid duties on paper, glass, painter's colors, and a reduced duty on tea, payable upon their importation into the colonies; and October 28, 1767, a Boston town-meeting voted to disuse some imported articles and to encourage the consumption of those manufactured at home. The selectmen were directed to send a copy of this vote to the selectmen of every town in the province.³ March 14, 1768, Chelsea concurred with Boston.⁴

In 1768, the revenue mobs in Boston, which roughly handled the Custom-House officers, begat an apprehension of the coming of Royal troops to chastise the refractory people. The General Court was not in session, and on the refusal of Governor Bernard to convene it Boston voted (September 13, 1768) to send, and requested other towns to send, delegates to a Convention to be held in Faneuil Hall the 22d.⁵ This usurpation of authority, solely vested in the governor, to assemble the General Court (which in effect such a convention would be) was regarded by many in the Province, and by nearly all in England, as an unwarranted proceeding; but Chelsea, September 21, chose Lieutenant Thomas Pratt, a delegate, "to consult measures whereby we may be relieved from our present grievances." This vote was passed "after some debate," and because the Boston Selectmen had requested it.⁶ seldom used their power of exclusion or of challenge in town-meeting of any person, voting by a show of hands, especially in political affairs.

In 1759 the Revolution had not begun, though there was a prevalent apprehension of a design of the British minister to raise a revenue from the colonies.

Whatever may have been the reason for calling in a "Sivel officer," it is noticeable that no eminent citizen is found among the remonstrants.

July 5, 1774. Letters and papers were sent to Chelsea by the Committee of Correspondence from Boston Relative to the Blocking the Harbour of Boston, and were read in this meeting.¹⁰

August 26. After debate, concerning the blocking of Boston harbour, the town chose "Messrs. Samuel Sprague, Samuel Sargeant, and Samuel Watts, as a committee, to meet the Suffolk County Committee of Convention, in Dedham, to deliberate, and determine, upon such matters as the distressed circumstances of this Province may require."¹¹

The votes of July 2, 1770, and May 24, 1773, are not in accord with those earlier or later. The reasons are conjectural; but it is now known that there was a feeling in some towns, that Boston assumed to dictate their policy and action, a feeling intensified, when it appeared that self-constituted committees without authority sent forth mandates, thinly disguised recommendations, as acts of the town. Some of the firmest patriots were restive, regarding such proceedings as unjust and tyrannical. [Dr. Belknap's "Reasons against Subscribing the Covenant." 2 Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., vol. ii. 484.] Dr. Payson who, doubtless, was consulted in political matters, may have shared this feeling, since, until the 19th of April, 1775, he "had been extremely moderate."¹²

When the Boston Port Bill and supplementary acts were received, the people, in their counties, met in Convention and passed resolutions. Those of the Suffolk Convention assembled first, at Dedham, and later at Milton, are in the Journal of the Provincial Congress, 601. Chelsea's action on the report of their committee was this:

September 12, 1774. Met to receive the verbal report of the Committee sent to the Convention of the County's committees, at Dedham. Voted, and Resolved that if the Justices of the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of assize, &c.: Justices of the Court of Common Pleas or of the General Sessions of the Peace shall sit and act during their disqualified state, this County will support and bear harmless all Sheriffs and their Deputies, Constables, Jurors, and other Officers, who shall refuse to carry into execution the orders of said Courts.¹³

Writs were issued early in September, 1774, convening the General Court at Salem, October 5th; but before that day a proclamation from Governor Gage countermanded its assembling. Nevertheless, October 3, Samuel Watts was chosen a ¹² Gordon's Hist., i. 493. That a majority of the people opposed the British policy, and were ready to resist it, there is no doubt; nor on the other hand that a minority of intelligent and wealthy citizens, not falling in with the more general sentiment, were unwilling to resort to extreme measures of resistance.

For reasons given by Gordon, History of American Independence, i. 312, it cannot be safely assumed that the patriotic resolutions adopted by Chelsea or other towns were the unprompted expression of their sentiments, or drafted by any of their citizens. There was a "Committee of Correspondence," whose headquarters were in Boston, and its agent, Samuel Adams, ready not only to supply appropriate resolutions but to suggest their adoption.

November 21, 1774. Voted, that Samuel Sprague,¹⁵ Samuel Sargeant, and Samuel Watts be a committee to see that the resolves of both the Continental and Provincial Congresses be strictly observed. Dear Sir: — I wish I could help you, but I fear what little I know about Samuel Sprague is not just what you want. In looking up the family I found he was born in Malden, Sept. 27, 1712, and was the son of Phineas and Elizabeth (Green) Sprague. He married Martha Hills, Jan. 11, 1736-7; she died Sept. 13, 1750, and he married Rachel Floyd, 1752.

His children were Martha, born Oct. 23, 1737; married Joseph Green, 1757. Elizabeth, b. Jan. 31, 1739; married Joseph Pratt, Aug. 4, 1757. Mary; married Caleb Pratt, May 26, 1762. Sarah, b. 1743; married James Stowers, Jan. 3, 1765. Samuel; died Sept. 4, 1768, aged 23. Lydia, b. May 23, 1748; married Jonathan Williams, Sept. 12, 1771. Lois, b. Samuel Sprague died April 15, 1783, and lies buried in the old burying-ground at Revere. I am sorry I know no more about his life, but, I am told, that Mrs. Pratt, who lives in the old Pratt house, knows about the family. CHAPTER XLI

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION BEGUN

THE Boston Port Bill and other acts of Parliament in 1774, changing the Charter government of Massachusetts, made war inevitable, unless her people would submit. Against this they were resolved; and from October 11th of that year, when the Provincial Congress reassembled at Concord, to April 15th of the next, when it adjourned, that body endeavored to put the province on a war basis.

It ordered the organization, arming, equipment, and drilling of the militia, and establishment of military stores. General Gage's policy was to neutralize these proceedings by seizing these stores; and with this purpose, on the night of April 18th, 1775, he sent troops under Lieutenant-Colonel Smith to Concord. War had begun.

By afternoon the country was aroused, and men from Suffolk, Middlesex, and Essex, hastening to the conflict, intercepted the British on their retreat from Concord, and handled them in a way they did not forget.

Chelsea was remote from the conflict, and the route to it was circuitous; but some of her citizens rendered important service. When Lord Percy went to the relief of Colonel Smith's hard-pressed troops with provisions, the convoy of the latter, which was under inadequate protection, fell behind the main party and was intercepted at West Cambridge, then known as a district named Menotomy.¹

Of this convoy, Gordon² says, it was captured by "a few Americans headed by Rev. Mr. Payson of Chelsea, who . . . attacked a party of twelve soldiers, carrying stores to the retreating troops, killed one, wounded several, made the whole prisoners and gained possession of their arms and stores, without any loss whatever to themselves." ³

The spirit of the clergy on the 19th was recognized by the Provincial Congress, May 3, when it voted: That two companies be raised in the towns of Chelsea and Malden for the defence of the sea coast of said towns, the said companies to be ["victualled at the Province expense"] ⁴ and joined to such companies in future as they may be ordered to, should ³ Hist., i. 483; Moore's Diary of the Amer. Rev., i. 66. Corey, Drake's Middlesex Co., ii. 126, says, "Dr. Gordon states that this exploit was performed under the leadership of Rev. Phillips Payson of Chelsea"; and Moore's Diary of the Amer. Rev., i. 66, quoting the Pennsylvania Journal, of August 2, says, "The Rev. Mr. Payson, of Chelsea, Mass. Bay, a mild, thoughtful, sensible man, at the head of a party of his own parish, attacked a party of the regulars, killed some, and took the rest prisoners. This gentleman has been hitherto on the side of the government, but oppression having got to that pitch, beyond which even a wise man cannot bear, he has taken up arms in defence of those rights, civil and religious, which cost their forefathers so dearly." This account, though much exaggerated, at least gives a nearly contemporaneous report; but the testimony of Bernard Green, who was present, gave the honor to the Malden company. Drake, in his revised edition (1899), says: "The young men were all in the main action then going on in Lexington, and this affair was managed by some of the elders, led, say the town traditions, by David Lamson, a half-breed, though Gordon claims this honor for Rev. Dr. Payson, of Chelsea," 403. It is not improbable that a gathering of the country people followed them in the pursuit, and that Mr. Payson was among them and took part in the affair. The Chelsea company that day was commanded by Captain Samuel Sprague. Of course Bernard Green gave the chief honor to the company of which he was a member; but that Rev. Phillips Payson was conspicuous in the business is hardly open to question.

Phillips Payson wrote from Chelsea, June 30, 1798, to President John Adams, asking to have his son of the same name appointed successor of Nathaniel Appleton, of Boston (office not named), and said: "The pretensions this application is founded upon are the sacrifice of interest I made in the support of the cause of my country in the year 1775, for which I never received a farthing by way of compensation for sufferings and losses occasioned by my local situation, exposed to the enemy and taken by our troops—a just estimate of my loss, made at that time, was nearly 2000 dollars. Nor would my son have needed the favor, but from the most unparalleled, cruel and fraudulent conduct of his partners in trade. Should your Excellency confer the charity I beg, I trust you cannot possibly miss of your reward from him who tells us, 'as you did it to the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me.'" Adams Papers.

It may be fairly said that Payson's letter does not bear directly on the question of his participation in the affair of April 19th; but the duty mentioned in the text, which follows, not usually imposed on clergymen, indicates that one of them at least had shown some aptitude for military affairs.

there be occasion, or discharged from Service, as soon as the public good will admit of it, and that the Revd. Mr. Payson and the Revd. Mr. Thatcher be furnished with a set of beating Orders each for said purpose.⁵

⁵ Original draft, Mass. Archives, exl. 16; exlvi. 39; Jour. Prov. Cong., 533. The Journals of the Provincial Congress and Committee of Safety, as edited by the engrossing clerk, omit some matters of interest found in the original drafts in the Archives (which I have often quoted), and do not appear in the printed volume. And in the House Jour., Dec. 26, 1775, it appears only by recital, that the order of May 3 was in answer to the application of several coast towns, including Chelsea and Malden, setting forth their exposed situation to the enemy's boats, and asking for detachments from the camps as guards; but as no troops could be spared from Roxbury or Cambridge, the former towns were directed to raise two companies for local defence. Later, the names of captains Benjamin Blaney and Samuel Sprague were substituted for those of Payson and Thatcher.

D. P. Corey, Esq., informs me that Captain Blaney lived in the old mansion in Everett near the corner of Chelsea and Ferry streets. He also owned part of the Daniel Watts farm, on County Avenue, in Chelsea, known as the "Heard Estate." [Ante, vol. i. p. 387.]

The people of Chelsea prepared for their defence. At the State House are two Muster Rolls, one of about eighty names, probably comprising every able-bodied man in the town. These formed "the Company of Militia in Chelsea under the command of Capt. Samuel Sprague, that entered the service of the province of Massachusetts Bay, April 19, and continued in the same until discharged by their officers." Samuel Watts was lieutenant, and Samuel Clark, ensign. See appendix. A company so made up could only be temporary; and, as the rolls show, they were all discharged on or before May 16th. Captain Sprague's petition, April 16, 1776, shows that seventeen of the company were "appointed to keep guard at Pullen Point from April 19th, to May 16th, 1775." House Jour., 1776, 125. This company was succeeded by one more permanent. Samuel Sprague was captain, Joseph Cheever and William Oliver, lieutenants. Some of the privates were from adjacent towns. The Chelsea men were Abijah Hastings, Hezekiah King, William Oliver, John Pratt, Thomas Cheever, Joseph Green, Henry Blake, Jacob Baker, Nathan Cheever, Joshua Cumins, Jonas Dixon, John Gooding, Saml. Haseltine, Nathaniel Henderson, Thomas Pratt, Saml. Hutton Pratt, John Robbins, Solomon Shute, Alexander Shirley, and Edward Waite. Fourteen were from Reading, seven from Boston, three each from Stoneham, Lynn, and Chester, two from Salem, and one each from Charlestown, Malden, Marblehead, and Gloucester. The earliest enlistments were May 4th, 1775, and the times of service and amounts of pay as late as August 1st, may be seen in the rolls at the State House. Vol. xvi. 42, and in the appendix.

After April 19th, the people of Chelsea were apprehensive of attack by the British, and held guard, as the second part of the following account shows:

This Chelsea company, whose officers were commissioned by the Provincial Congress, June 26, 1775, was assigned to Gerrish's regiment. "A list of the officers and soldiers of Capt. Samuel Sprague's company was presented to the Congress: which Ordered that commissions be delivered to the said officers, viz: Samuel Sprague, captain; Joseph Cheever, lieutenant; William Oliver, ensign; and that the company be joined to Col. Gerrish's regiment." June 26, 1775. Jour. Prov. Cong., 401.

Col. Gerrish's commission was May 19, 1775. Ibid., 244. Captain Sprague's company performed duty from April 19 to the evacuation of Boston, March 17, 1776, and perhaps later. It is said that it was at Bunker Hill, June 17th, with Gerrish's regiment, to which it belonged, and its colonel was severely criticised by a Court Martial, August 19, of which General Greene was president; but in the opinion of the judge-advocate too severely. It does not appear from what company or companies was selected the guard, entertained by John Pratt, one of Captain Sprague's men, at his house from April 20 to May 19, 1775.

The selectmen allowed £2. 10, on this account.

He probably lived at Revere not far from the Meeting-House, where he entertained the Council, which ordained the Rev. Phillips Payson. [Ante, p. 286.] The town, in 1783, sold him a house plot "by the Mills on the Town Landing." The selectmen allowed him £2 10, March 8, 1776. His petition for payment for provisions furnished the forces sent to Chelsea, May 27th, to remove the stock from Hog Island is referred to in the House Jour., 1776, 222.

⁶ Jour. Prov. Cong., 522. This was merely politic. War had begun. Strategic points were considered, April 22, only three days after the fights at Lexington and Concord; and so swiftly had the yeomanry gathered about Boston, that on the 22d, Colonel Stark was ordered to march to Chelsea with three hundred men to defend the inhabitants. Frothingham, 92. May 28th, the day after the affair at Noddle's Island, "Col. Doolittle was ordered to Chelsea with 400 men to relieve Col. Nixon and his party with other troops that went from this camp; and he is to conduct in such manner as he may judge will contribute to the general safety. If the cannon, which are in the schooner which was taken yesterday, can be secured without too much exposing the troops, he may bring them off: or otherwise conduct as his best judgment shall direct." Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., xv. 103.

Two days later, "Resolved, That the resolve of the 24th instant respecting the inhabitants of Chelsea and Malden be reconsidered, and Ordered, that it be immediately remanded; also, that the inhabitants of Chelsea and Malden be hereby desired to put themselves in the best state of defence, and exert the same in such manner as under their circumstances their judgments may direct." ⁷

It was also the policy of the patriots to distress the King's army in Boston by depriving it of fresh provisions; and as Chelsea Ferry was one of the avenues by which they reached that army, the selectmen were desired to take effectual methods for preventing them being carried thither, May 7, 1775.⁸

People suspected of toryism were narrowly watched. Dr. Samuel Danforth, who married a daughter of Hon. Samuel Watts, and owned in her right one half of the Carter farm, and by purchase much other land in Chelsea, which produced an abundance of hay greatly needed by the British troops shut up in Boston, was suspected. Hence the following:

"Malden, May 8th, 1775. The joint Committee of Malden and Chelsea, Voted, Capt. John Dexter, Thomas Hills, and Jonathan Williams be a Committee to wait on Gen. Ward, and inform him that Doct. Sam: Danforth, of Boston, passes backwards and forwards to that place, and from his well-known Conduct and Behaviour, we have reason to suspect his Attachment to our most Righteous Cause, likewise his securing Hay and moving it down to Winnisimmet ferry in order to be removed to Boston: and that the Committee has taken care that said Hay shall be removed to some more secure place. John Dexter, Chairman." ⁹

Rumors like the following kept the people in apprehension of incursion into the country by the British:

"Elijah Shaw declares that Gen. Gage's officers have said in his hearing that they shall soon come out, and that a soldier

To relieve themselves [the ministers] of the grave charge of neglect, they resolved to send immense quantities of stores to Boston, and purchased, among other articles, five thousand oxen, fourteen thousand sheep, a vast number of hogs, ten thousand butts of beer, five thousand chaldrons of coal and even fagots for fuel. requested him to convey him into the country, for the troops would soon make a push towards Dorchester neck or Chelsea; but he refused. He further declares, that Earl Percy swears he will be revenged on some of our men: and further says that the troops have robbed him of 11 cows, 3 calves, a yearling heifer, 48 sheep, 61 lambs, 4 hogs, and poultry, hay 5 tons, and almost all his furniture.”¹⁰

The farmers around Boston, at Chelsea, Noddle's and Hog Islands, and other places accessible to British foraging parties, were in a difficult position. May 12, 1775, H. Prentiss writes to Oliver Wendell, owner with Jonathan Jackson of the stock on Hog Island: “Mr. Harris is very uneasy, the people from the Men of War frequently go to the Island to buy fresh provision, his own safety obliges him to sell to them; on the other hand the Committee of safety have threatened, if he sells anything to the army or Navy, that they will take all the cattle from the Island, and our folks tell him they shall handle him very roughly.”¹¹

For their relief the Committee of Safety, May 14, 1775, “Resolved, as their opinion, that all the live stock be taken from Noddle's Island, Hog Island, Snake Island, and from that part of Chelsea near the sea coast, and be driven back; and that the execution of this business be committed to the committees of correspondence and selectmen of the towns of Medford, Malden, Chelsea, and Lynn, and that they be supplied with such a number of men, as they shall need, from the regiment now at Medford.”¹²

Another conflict was approaching. May 24, 1775, the Committee of Safety “Resolved, That it be recommended to Congress immediately to take such order respecting the removal of the sheep and hay from Noddle's Island as they may judge proper, together with the stock on the adjacent islands. That the commissary-general be directed to supply twenty-five men of Captain Sprague's company stationed at Chelsea.”¹³

CHAPTER XLII

REMOVAL OF LIVE STOCK FROM THE ISLANDS

THE British fleet in Boston harbor and the troops within the town, remote from a base of supply, depended mainly on the farms along the coast for hay and fresh provisions. The chief sources of these were Noddle's and Hog islands, now East Boston and Breed's island. Of the former Henry Howell Williams, later owner of Winnisimmet Ferry and farm, was lessee; and the live stock on the latter was Oliver Wendell's,¹ though Jonathan Jackson appears to have had some interest in the island.

¹ His agent was William Harris, ancestor of the Revere family. His farm, successively that of Jonathan Tuttle, Jacob Chamberlain, and Samuel Watts, was on Beach street about a hundred rods easterly of the Unitarian Church. The old mansion on the northerly side of the street, was torn down within a few years. This letter, nine days after Bunker Hill fight, shows the people's anxiety about their cattle, and that the removal, May 27, was not complete.

Chelsea, June 26, 1775.

Mr. Wendell:

Sir, the people in Chelsea have been and now are moving their effects back into the country, and it is the opinion of all, that we are in danger of another visit from the Regulars. I do wish, if it is agreeable to your judgment, that you would give orders to carry your cattle further back, for I am afraid that, unless they are removed, you will lose them. I delivered two cows according to your order. I have got some people to go on the Island, and hoe the corn and potatoes, and garden to halves, and I do design, God willing, to mow what I can. The cow that was sent last summer to Mr. Williams is calved, and the calf is dead; the cow being hurt, as I suppose. I should be exceeding glad to be directed by you, at this difficult time, that I may know how to proceed, for I should be sorry to see any further loss to you.

I am, Sir, your humble Servt,

WM. HARRIS.

P.S. I have brought one cow and calf up to Mr. Upham's. [He lived in the northerly part of Revere, near Saugus.] I have sold one calf to Mr. Stowers, also, sold 126 of wool, at 8 s. 3.

Though Williams had suffered obloquy as a "Hutchinson Addresser," he was respected by all parties, and once was quartermaster-sergeant in the patriot army at Cambridge. His situation at Noddle's Island was perplexing. His most profitable business had been supplying the King's troops rendezvoused at Boston, in time of war, and merchant vessels, in time of peace, with fresh provisions from his fields and stock yards. This all could do before April 19, 1775. But after that, compliance would compromise them with the patriots, and refusal subject them to forced contributions by the King's foraging parties. As we have seen, April 22, Colonel Stark was ordered to Chelsea with three hundred men to defend the inhabitants. [Ante, p. 429, n 6.]²

General Gage's army, cooped up in Boston, was in sore need of fresh provisions, and if he could not purchase, he resolved to seize them. With equal resolution the patriots, supported by the recommendation of the Committee of Safety already quoted, determined to remove them beyond the reach of foraging parties, or to destroy them.³ They soon got to their work, and with the aid of Colonel Stark's party, between the 27th of May and June 2d, not only removed or killed much of the stock on the islands, but destroyed military supplies and several houses, including Williams's, which might be useful to the British.⁴

² Chelsea at that time comprised Rumney Marsh, now Revere; Winisimet, now the city of Chelsea; and Pullen Point, or Point Shirley, now Winthrop. When Chelsea was spoken of, Revere was referred to, which was the principal settlement. Failure to understand this has sometimes led to misapprehension of facts. For a view of the region, see Atlantic Neptune, Map 116, 1; ii. Plate 9, in B. P. L.

³ It appears that General Ward and Dr. Warren had examined the situation.

⁴ Williams's house was burned, May 30th. Frothingham, 110. He claimed damages for "53 Tons hay, burnt in the Barns, 20 Tons hay, in stacks; also, 43 Elegant Horses, 220 sheep, used as provisions for the army," etc. Sumner's East Boston, 382. Some of his stock was saved; and, May 31, the General Orders directed, "That the stock, which was taken from Noddle's Island, belonging to Mr. Henry Howell Williams, be delivered to his father, Col. Joseph Williams, of Roxbury, for the use of the said Henry H. Williams." Henshaw's Orderly Book, 103.

In the House Journal, October 21, 1775, p. 185, is "A Petition of Henry Howell Williams, setting forth the losses he suffered by Fire and otherwise on Noodle's Island, by a number of armed Provincial troops, on the 7th of May and at other times, and praying for Relief. Read

The principal removal of live stock from Hog and Noddle's islands, May 27, 1775, belongs to the history of East Boston rather than to Chelsea. But it was from that part of Chelsea now Revere, that Colonel Stark's detachment crossed to Hog Island and thence to Noddle's Island, from both of which he drove a part of the live stock to the main land, out of reach of British parties; and it was from the Revere shore of Chelsea River that the British were repulsed. This part of the story belongs to old Chelsea.

Several versions of this transaction are chiefly based on unsupported rumors; but even these, as space may allow, will be given in the appendix. Of later accounts, that of General

Nothing more was done at the time, though, as a partial remuneration, he received from General Washington a part of the army barracks at Cambridge, when no longer needed, with which to build a shelter for his houseless family. Fourteen years later, however, the General Court directed the Treasurer of the Commonwealth to issue to Mr. Williams his note for £2000, with interest, for his losses, the same to be charged to the United States. Sumner, 385.

A Chelsea citizen was among the losers: "To the Honorable, the General Assembly, now setting at Watertown, in the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay:—

Sumner in his History of East Boston, drawn in part, he says, from original papers in his possession, is the fullest; and though not free from exaggeration, I quote the largest part of it. But first I prefer to give the less complete but more accurate account of an actual participator in the affair: Asa Farnsworth, of Groton, who as a minuteman marched, April 19, 1775, to Lexington, and the next day to Cambridge. He was deeply religious, patriotic, and sensible. He kept a diary, from which I make the following extracts, and the whole of which may be found in the 2 Proceedings of the Mass. Hist. Soc., XII. 74.

The first entry of the diary here extracted was made at Cambridge:

General Sumner's Account

“Saturday, the 27th of May, 1775, a small party of the American army at Cambridge received orders from Gen. Ward to drive the stock from Hog and Noddle's islands. Advantage was to be taken of the ebb tide, when the water would be fordable from Chelsea (Revere) to Hog Island, and from Hog Island to Noddle's Island, it there being about knee-high. This detachment, composed of Massachusetts and New Hampshire men, numbering from two to three hundred, by some accounts, and six hundred by another, was led by Col. John Stark of New Hampshire, afterwards of Bennington fame.

“Col. Stark, with his detachment, first crossed from Chelsea (Revere) to Hog Island, and took from it four hundred sheep, represented, erroneously, we think, as stolen by General Gage and deposited there for safe-keeping. They then passed over to Noddle's Island, to rescue the cattle there from their British keepers. The party had killed a few horses and ‘divers horned cattle,’ and taken away alive a few more, when a signal gun was fired from an armed schooner, lying at anchor near Winnisimmet ferry ways. The British admiral hoisted a red flag at mainmast-head, and sent the schooner, which mounted four six-pounders and twelve swivels, an armed sloop, and a large number of marines from different men-of-war, up Chelsea creek (river), to cut off our return to the main land. The barges conveying these marines were eleven in number, and all were mounted with swivels.

"A heavy fire was now opened from the sloop and schooner, under cover of which the marines advanced upon our men, who were busily engaged upon the Island, in the prosecution of their object. In the meantime, General Gage sent over from the city, four hundred regulars to reinforce the marines previously stationed on (Noddle's) Island. The provincials, under this heavy fire, retreating to a ditch in the marsh, kept themselves undiscovered, until they had opportunity to fire with effect upon the enemy; thus early adopting a practice, for which they were so celebrated during the war, of reserving their fire until sure of their aim, and which, in this instance, resulting in killing some and wounding others of the unsuspecting regulars. They then recrossed to Hog Island, where they were joined by the remainder of the party from Chelsea (Revere), the regulars, who remained upon Noddle's Island, firing upon them at the same time very briskly by platoons.

"Having cleared Hog Island of all the stock, and a sharp fire still continuing between them and the schooner, sloop, boats, and marines, the provincials drew up on Chelsea (Revere) Neck, and sent for a reinforcement. General Putnam⁷ with three hundred men and two four-pounders, came to their aid, and, being the highest in rank, he took command of our united forces, which now amounted to about a thousand men. The gallant and patriotic Warren, also, too ardent to remain at a distance, hastened to the spot as a volunteer, and by words and deeds encouraged the men. Putnam reached the ground about nine o'clock in the evening, and took in at a glance the true state of things. Perceiving Noddle's Island occupied by a large body of the enemy, and that a galling fire was kept up by the schooner, sloop, and boats, he with his customary coolness went down to the shore and hailed the schooner, which was within speaking distance, offering the men good quarter, if they would surrender. The schooner answered with two cannon shot, which was immediately replied to by two discharges from the cannon of the provincials. A heavy fire ensued from both sides. The armed sloop, and a great number of boats sent from the ships, came to the aid of the schooner, and at the same time a large reinforcement of marines, with two twelve-pounders, was sent to Noddle's Island. For two hours the engagement was severe, until the firing from the schooner ceased. The fire from the shore was so hot that her men found they must perish on board their vessel, or make their escape from it. The love of life conquered, and they hastily took to their boats, leaving the schooner, and all she contained, as booty for the provincials. The barges attempted to tow her back to her station through the sharp fire of Putnam's men; but, unable to endure the severe fire, they were compelled to quit her. The battle now becoming more general, continued through the whole night; and during the action, a large barn, full of hay, and an old farm-house, on the Island, were burned.

⁷ "I informed them (Congress of 1775), of the arrangement made by our Assembly (Connecticut) which I thought would be satisfactory, to have them (the major-generals) continue in the same order; but as General Putnam's fame was spread abroad, and especially his successful enterprise at Noddle's Island, the account of which had just arrived, it gave him the preference in the opinion of the Delegates in general, so that his appointment was unanimous among the colonies. But from your known abilities and firm attachment to the American cause we were very desirous of your continuance in the army, and hope you will accept the appointment made by the Congress." Roger Sherman to General David Wooster, Philadelphia, June 23, 1775. Boutell's Life of Sherman, 86.

"The schooner drove ashore on the Winnisimet ferry-ways, [then westerly of Chelsea Bridge] and a party, consisting of Isaac Baldwin and twelve others, of the provincials, after taking from her whatever was valuable, rolled bundles of hay under her stern, and set her on fire and burned her up. The reason for burning the schooner, of course, was the fact, that, the harbor being in the possession of the British, they would not be able to keep the vessel in their own hands.

"The provincials took from the schooner '4 double fortified four-pounders, 12 swivels, chief of her rigging and sails, many clothes, some money, &c., which the sailors and marines left behind.' The account honestly adds, 'they having quitted in great haste.' . . .

"The sloop still continued her fire, which was vigorously replied to from the shore, and a heavy cannonade was commenced upon the provincials with the twelve-pounders from a hill upon Noddle's Island, called West Head, near to, and directly opposite, the Winnisimet ferry-ways. But Putnam, inspired with the same dauntless courage with which he entered the den of the wolf, heading his men, and wading up to his middle in mud and water, poured so hot a fire upon the sloop, that, very much crippled and with many of her men killed, she was obliged to be towed off by the boats. It is a striking illustration of the courage and impetuosity of Putnam, that he and his brave followers attacked and crippled this sloop with small arms; that, leaving their cannon, they waded within musket distance, and there fought the heavy armed vessel, heedless of the great disparity in weapons and of their dangerous position. . . .

“Soon after the disabling of the sloop, the firing ceased, excepting a few scattering shots between the marines on Noddle’s Island, and the party at Chelsea. During the whole of the following forenoon, however, the Somerset man-of-war, of sixty-eight guns and 520 men, was continually firing upon the people on the Chelsea side, who had gathered together in great numbers to see what had occurred upon the Island. It is remarkable, that in this long and well-contested engagement, not a man belonging to the provincial army was killed, and but three or four were wounded, and one of these by the bursting of his own gun; while the loss of the enemy in killed and wounded was very severe. . . .

“The different reports of the battle give various estimates of the number of the enemy killed and wounded. The account of it by General Gage is similar in character to his report of the battle of Lexington and Concord; the following extract from the London Gazette (No. 11,579) gives its purport:—

“Whitehall, July 18, 1775. Lieutenant-General Gage in his Letters to the Earl of Dartmouth, dated June 12, 1775, gives an Account, That the Town of Boston continued to be surrounded by a large Body of Rebel Provincials, and that all Communication with the Country was cut off; that the Rebels had been burning Houses and driving Sheep off an Island that has easy Communication with main land, which drew on a Skirmish with some marines who drove the Rebels away; but that an armed Schooner, that had been sent between the Island and the main land, having got on shore at High Water, there was no possibility of saving her, for as the Tide fell, she was left quite dry, and burned by the Rebels. Two men were killed and a few wounded.”

“As an offset to this obvious underestimate of the British general, we quote a paragraph from that reliable historian, Gordon. Says he: ‘The regulars were said to have suffered very much, not to have had less than two hundred killed and wounded. The loss was probably greatly exaggerated; that, however, had a good effect on the provincials. The affair was a matter of no small triumph to them, and they felt upon the occasion more courageous than ever.’”⁸

A skirmish with no loss of life on the American side, and with small loss on the British, has been magnified as a battle; and that part of it which took place at night, — favorable to rumors, —

after General Putnam took command of the forces drawn up on the Revere side of Chelsea Creek, gave him great reputation, and is said to have promoted his selection by Congress as one of the major-generals of the Continental Army. (Sherman, ante, 437 n.) Nevertheless, the purpose of the provincials, the removal of the sheep and cattle from Hog and Noddle's Islands was fairly successful and appears to have been planned with judgment and prosecuted with skill. It was also useful in giving them some acquaintance, not with a pitched battle in the field, but with such skirmishing as often precedes it.

I have sought traditions, but have found only two. One of these is that of Elizabeth Hasey, to be given later; and the other, that of the late Isaac Pratt, a man of intelligence and good memory; but, like most very aged people, who have a story to tell, he told his well, though cross-examination disconcerted him, and no valuable results followed. His narrative, so far as it relates to the matter in hand, I give in his own words:

"After the battle of Lexington a good many sheep and cattle were sent to Chelsea by Gen. Putnam. [There is no evidence of this, nor is it probable.] The companies there were quartered, in part, in the Carter House, and in part in the Cary House. [I think this was not before the winter of 1775-6.]

"Gen. Putnam directed the troops to go to East Boston, May 27th, and steal all the cattle there. They went by night, and crossed Chelsea Creek, at the Salt Factory, where Magee's foundry now stands; hard beach there; a man there to hoist a light when they should come back. [There may have been a small affair of this kind, but it was not the principal affair.] Cattle driven to Powderhorn Hill, where the trees are. [Since cut down, but then and recently a little southeasterly of the Soldiers' Home.] Had orders to burn the houses on Noddle's Island.

"British schooner had eight cannon, with swivels on a sloop and barges. They sailed up Chelsea Creek, near to the Rubber Works. Fought all night. Schooner could n't get back. Our folks went to the marsh. British tried to tow her with the barges; we tried to kill the barge-men. Sam. Batchelder lives where Sam. Pratt fought. [Near the foot of Pearl street.] Ben Brintnall fired sixty times on the men in the barges, which had to come close to the Salt Works. Gen. Putnam sent down two cannon, and Dearborn, of New Hampshire, came over with them. The Lion ran quartering on the Ferry Ways, turned over a little, and still fired her shot which came up to Mt. Washington, and were found between the Cheever and Hawes houses. I have one, and a piece of one of the masts of the schooner, split into rails. [Which he exhibited on patriotic occasions.] Sam Pratt carried down hay with which to burn her. Shot came from East Boston. Only three or four houses in Prattville at that time."

Besides the traditions given to me by the late Isaac Pratt, in 1885, referred to on page 440, he made statements in respect to other persons, some of whom I never heard of, and none of whom may have any connection with Chelsea history; but lest it may be otherwise, I preserve them for the present, without comment.

Henry Newhall died in 1822, in the house of the widow of Sam. Pratt.

Robert Lash, father of old Mr. Lash of Chelsea, and De Cartwright, were of the Tea Party, and their descendants lived in Chelsea.

Henry Newhall was employed in the French War to go to Lake George to build a vessel. He went through Mohawk Valley. He was grandfather of Isaac Pratt, [the narrator] who was born in 1796, March 25. H. Newhall was a master builder, and learned the Mohawk language, and so they [the Tea Party] took the name of Mohawks. His daughter married the father of Isaac Pratt. [His father.] He could sing in the Mohawk language. [The narrator gave me a specimen.] It is said that the Tea Party in the Old South painted themselves as Mohawks.

Newhall was with Waters, Manley, and Ayer, in the Privateer. Commodore Manley's second wife died in Chelsea, lived there, and boarded in the house of my mother.

After the battle of Lexington, a good many cattle and sheep were sent by General Putnam to Chelsea. Regiments were quartered, part in the Carter house, and part in the Cary house. Samuel Watts owned the Carter house, farm, and marsh, and Deacon Harris's estate in Revere.

This tradition, so far as it relates to the 27th of May, is of little value. It mixes incidents of that date with those of as late as the middle of June. He makes Putnam, who came up late, instead of Stark, the prime leader; but what he says of Sam. Brintnall and Benj. Brintnall, who appear on the scene after the schooner had drifted down to Winnisimmet, near which they lived, he may have had from their own lips, and it is quite probable, since it agrees with well-known facts.

I now give what I believe to have been a true outline of the affair, omitting some things already told. In its investigation for some time I was perplexed with two difficulties: whether Colonel Stark crossed from the Chelsea shore to East Boston, or from the Revere shore to Hog Island, as the accounts varyingly state. After a personal examination of the creeks and bordering marshes, — once made with danger of engulfment, — I found no point between the westerly East Boston bridge and the Revere Beach Railroad, where the creeks were fordable at low water, or the marshes passable in the driest season. Where then did Colonel Stark cross either to Hog or Noddle's Island? This was the first difficulty. The second was to find "Chelsea Neck," where the provincials drew up on their retreat and sent for reinforcements. I found no one in Revere who ever heard of "Chelsea Neck." Nevertheless the name is old, for, in 1632, the General Court ordered, "that the necke of land betwixte Powder Horne Hill and Pullen Poynte shall belonge to Boston." And from an elevation to which William T. Hall, Esq., of Revere, kindly led me, the whole region was visible, and we easily traced the ridge of upland lying between the north and south marshes, from the westerly foot of Powder Horn Hill, by the way of Washington Avenue, Fenno, and Beach streets, down to the sea, and thence over the beach to Pulling Point. This upland is the "necke of land" of 1632, and over it, in 1699, Boston directed a committee, of which Deane Winthrop was chairman, to mark the course of a road, then old, and now substantially the Beach street road to Winthrop.⁹ It was somewhere on this "Chelsea Neck," that Colonel Stark, when hard pressed by the British, "drew up," and sent for reinforcements. At that time, the greater part of the people of old Chelsea lived at what is now Revere, and there were the chief interests to be protected, and there was the guard which John Pratt entertained. (Ante, 429, n.)

With these explanations, a tolerably clear account of the affair is possible.

At the time when General Ward at Cambridge, on the morning of May 27, 1775, sent a body of troops to remove the live stock from Hog and Noddle's islands, the only practicable route was from Medford, turning the Malden marshes, by following the foot of the uplands to Revere, near the meeting-house, where Stark's party was probably joined by the Chelsea company, under Captain Samuel Sprague. These forces then followed the old road, now Beach street, down to the Sale farm, from which the Creek was fordable at low water, to the easterly end of Hog Island.

Having sent to the main land the sheep and cattle collected on that island, they crossed to Noddle's Island, where they gathered stock and destroyed property which might be serviceable to the British. But before they had completed their work, the British appeared in force, and after some skirmishing, the provincials retreated by the road they came, to "Chelsea Neck," and there waited for a reinforcement. Meantime, probably late in the afternoon, the British had sent a schooner with a sloop and several barges up Chelsea Creek, to cut off Stark's retreat. At 9 o'clock, P. M., it is said, General Putnam with 200 men and two four-pounders, and accompanied by Dr. Joseph Warren, appeared on the scene. With his artillery drawn up in front of the Newgate, or Yeaman house, he arrested the advance of the schooner and made her retreat impracticable from the point she had reached, — a little above the Rubber Factory. That the principal fight with the schooner was at this point, was the testimony of Elizabeth Hasey, an eye-witness, repeatedly given to William T. Hall; and this was confirmed by the fact that he had often dug up small cannon balls in front of the Newgate house.

From that point Chelsea Creek in front, and the deep marsh southerly, would have prevented further attack on the schooner, until she had drifted down to near the foot of Highland street, where from the bluff on the northerly side of Marginal street she would again come under the fire of the provincials; and probably here Benj. Brintnall fired the shots, as told by Isaac Pratt.

In this sketch I have omitted everything told by others not essential to the understanding of my outline; and with a few observations I leave the subject. That Revere was the guarded point, is evident from John Pratt's bill. He lived in that part of Chelsea. That "Chelsea Neck," from which our forces proceeded and to which they retreated, was in Revere, is also clear from the petition of Joseph Green [whose house is still standing on the northerly side of Winthrop street just easterly of the railroad]. This house stands within the bounds of the farm of William Hasey, the first of the name at Rumney Marsh, and may have been his. Tradition assigns it to that family; but as William Hasey had three sons, all of whom lived on the Hasey Estate, it is impossible to assign it to either with certainty. "A petition of Joseph Green, of Chelsea, praying allowance of his account for a dinner provided for a company of soldiers, who were sent to take the stock off Hog Island, in May, last." March 15, 1776, House Jour., 8. January 24, 1776, the House passed several Resolves on account of losses at Bunker Hill; Jour. 1775, Nov. Sess., 51; and March 16, 1776, Joseph Green, perhaps the same, as above, was allowed £1. 4. for losses, June 17th. Ibid., 14. See Jour. 1775, August 18, 79. May 1, 1776, Thomas Pratt was allowed, £1. 18. 6, for same. Ibid., 228. Had I earlier seen the map in Gordon's History, vol. ii., showing a road from the Sale farm to Hog Island, and thence over Crooked Lane to Noddle's Island, it would have saved me much trouble. It confirms my conjecture, and settles the question as to Stark's route. For Frothingham's account of this affair, see Siege of Boston, 109.

In the Revolutionary archives at the State House is a paper bearing the names of seventeen men who on the day, when their brothers at Concord "fired the shot heard round the World," and inspired by the same love of liberty, performed their duty at the beginning of the War of the Revolution by standing guard over the northerly part of Boston Harbor, in that part of the then town of Chelsea, called Pullin Point. One side of the sheet of paper referred to reads as follows:

"A Rool of the men that kept Guard att Pullin Point in Chelsea by order of Capt. Saml. Sprague from April 19, 1775, till Discharged by there officer.

"This may Sertify that the above parsons was ordered to keep a Guard att Pullin Point in Chelsea being part of my company.

Capt."

On the other side of the paper is endorsed the action of the General Court as follows:

"The Committee apointed to consider the petition of Capt Sprague together with the Rool accompanying the same beg leave to Report —
"In the House of Representatives,
"April 30, 1776.

"Resolved, that their be paid out of the public Treasury of this colony the sum of thirty four pounds in full to the seventeen men bourn on the Rool exhibited by Captain Sprague for one months sarvis for keeping guard at Pullin Point in Chelsea each man to draw his own weagers or by his order upon his giving oath that he performed the sarvis mentioned in said Rool."

A part of the service by the 17 men above mentioned was probably performed at Point Shirley in the old fort, the earthworks of which were clearly defined up to a few years ago. A paper is still preserved signed by some military authority of the time, granting leave to Mr. Joseph Belcher, the ancestor of many of the present Winthrop Belchers, to pass and repass to Point Shirley. Captain Sprague had 28 men belonging to his company from the section of Chelsea, in which he lived, now the town of Revere, and under his command they served 15 days, following the Lexington alarm. The company assisted in removing the live stock from the islands on May 4, 1775, and on May 27 of the same year burnt a British armed schooner somewhere in Chelsea Creek. Under Captain Cheever of Chelsea the company took part in other engagements during the Revolution. It is not probable that the Pullin Point members of the company took part in these operations.

As near as we can ascertain the men above mentioned comprised nearly the whole male population of the territory now called Winthrop, and it is quite likely that some of them were inhabitants of Deer Island. There were probably only seven or eight houses here outside of Point Shirley, where there were perhaps as many more. The old church shown in Pelham's map of 1777 was built at the time of the establishment of the fishing industry in 1753, but there is no record of how long it was used for worship or what became of the building.

The following facts concerning the relationship of these men to each other and to the 225 men, women, and children, their descendants, now living in Winthrop, will be of interest to many.

Andrew Tewksbury, John Tewksbury, and James Tewksbury were sons of John Tewksbury, who died in 1752. The three brothers are the ancestors of 150 people now living in Winthrop, 50 of whom bear the Tewksbury name. The John Tewksbury, Jr., was a son of John Senior, who lived in the old Bill house still standing on Beal Street.

Andrew Tewksbury married Susannah Hassey, February 18, 1762. He died in 1814, aged 75 years. His descendants now living in Winthrop number 33, and bear the following names: Tewksbury, Floyd, Magee, Wyman, Haggerston, Hall, Gilmore, Brown.

James Tewksbury married Mary Sargent, August 16, 1770, and died November 7, 1800, aged 56 years. His Winthrop descendants number 31, and they represent the Tewksbury, Ingalls, Richardson, Eldridge, Tucker, Dunham, Greeley, Sanford, Shattuck, Griffin, Whittemore, and Cobb names.

John Tewksbury married Anna Bill, September 21, 1758, and died March 11, 1816, aged 81 years. His posterity living at the present time in Winthrop number 86, bearing the following family names: Tewksbury, Floyd, Paine, Richardson, Strout, Smith, Patch, Lindsey, Dunham, Gilmore, Griffin, Cobb, and Westlake.

Hannah Tewksbury, a daughter of John and Anna (Bill) Tewksbury, was married to David Floyd, who lived at the Centre (now Revere), November 6, 1798. This couple with their six sons and three daughters moved to "the Point," now Winthrop, in 1825, living in the old Winthrop house, until the children married. All of the Floyd name are included among the descendants of John Tewksbury.

There are living in Winthrop 60 descendants of Jonathan Belcher, bearing the following names: Belcher, Pomroy, Wyman, George, Battis, Treworgy, and Burrage.

While there are now no descendants of either of the Nathaniel Belchers bearing the Belcher name, these men are represented here at the present time by the descendants of Ann Belcher, a daughter of one of the Nathaniels, who married Ebenezer Burrill, and by another daughter, Martha, who married Bill Tewksbury. These descendants include all the Burrill family, and others in the Brown, George, Collins, Paine, Smith, Lindsey, Belcher, Patch, Westlake, and Haggerston families.

A Nathaniel Belcher, who was drowned in Boston Harbor, September 29, 1797, is one of those named in the "rool."

John Sargent's daughter, Mary, married James Tewksbury, as above stated, and his descendants are included in the families named.

A John Sargent, who is supposed to be the one in the above list, died January 13, 1776, aged 59 years. Nathaniel Sargent was probably a relative of John.

The name of William Brown does not appear in the old records other than in the above list. The little information obtained concerning the other names is as follows:

Thomas Cleaverly married Elizabeth Tewksbury, May 6, 1762.

Joshua Gleason married Anna Tewksbury, September 23, 1794.

Seth Wood married Susannah Bill, March 7, 1769.

Josiah Gleason is supposed to have been a brother of Joshua.

Job Worrow is a name that has been repeated in Winthrop by one generation to another, from the days of '76 to the present time. The old church records in Revere have this entry concerning him under the head of marriages: "1777, July 13th, Job Worrow to Anna Sennie, an indian, a mulatto." Job lived at one time on Deer Island with Captain William Tewksbury. Later he lived at Point Shirley, where he and his wife occupied a house with but one room. Many stories are still repeated of the tricks played upon old black Job by the youngsters of the old days. A few people now living remember seeing him when he was a very old man. He is said to have died in the poorhouse in Chelsea, now Revere, at the age of 100 years.

The last list of legal voters of the town of Winthrop (1897) contains the names of 76 men, who have in their veins the blood of some of the 17 men whose names appear in Captain Sprague's list. Twenty-two of these names are Tewksbury, 21 Belcher, 18 Floyd, 6 Wyman, 4 Burrill, 2 Magee, 1 Paine, 1 Richardson, and 1 Patch.

An enumeration of the sons and daughters of the Pullin Point Guard, other than those above referred to, would result in a long list of the residents not only of many cities and towns in Massachusetts, but of other States extending from Maine to California, and also of some citizens of the French Republic, at present residents of England.

Amidst these exciting events the people of Chelsea were called to their political duties; for May 29 it was considered, "Will the Town Elect and depute as many members, as shall to them seem necessary and Expedient, to represent them in a Provincial Congress to be held at the meeting-house at Watertown, on the thirty-first of May, instant, . . . to Consult, deliberate and Resolve upon such further Measures, as under God shall be Effectual to save this people from impending Ruin, and to secure those inestimable Liberties, derived to us from our Ancestors, and which it is our duty to preserve for posterity?" CHAPTER XLIII

CHELSEA IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR. — BUNKER HILL

THE military affairs in Chelsea, and the forces raised and sent there, between April 19th and June 17th, 1775, have been mentioned. At the latter date three companies of Gerrish's regiment were at Sewall's Point, Brookline; three at Cambridge, and three at Chelsea.¹ Those at Chelsea without doubt were Captain Samuel Sprague's and Captain Richard and Captain Barnabas Dodge's. The Committee of Safety, May 24th, "Voted, That the commissary-general be directed to supply twenty-five of Captain Sprague's company, who are stationed at Chelsea."² Nevertheless, it does not appear that his company was in commission; for, as late as June 26th, "A list of the officers and soldiers of Captain Samuel Sprague's company," was presented to the Provincial Congress, which "Ordered, that commissions be delivered to the said officers, viz: Samuel Sprague, captain; Joseph Cheever, lieutenant; William Oliver, ensign; and that the company be joined to Colonel Gerrish's regiment."³

If Captain Sprague was without commission, and his company unattached to any regiment before June 26th, it is not easy to understand how he could have joined in "a meeting of eight captains of Gerrish's regiment, June 16, at Chelsea, when Loammi Baldwin was chosen lieutenant-colonel, and Richard Dodge, major. Christian Febiger was adjutant, Michael Farley was quartermaster, and David Jones, surgeon."⁴ The fact seems to be, as Frothingham states, that on the 17th of June, Gerrish's regiment was neither full nor its officers commissioned.⁵

⁵ See Appendix.

It does not appear that any of the companies at Chelsea participated in the battle of Bunker Hill; but those stationed on the Naval Hospital Grounds had an excellent position from which to observe the progress of the affair, and one of them has given an account of what he saw in the following letter, written the next day. For a copy of it I am indebted to Mr. Charles Dennison, of Chelsea, a descendant of the person to whom it was addressed.

Chelsea, June 18, 1775.

Hon. Father:

I take this opportunity to inform you that I am well at present, Blessed be God for it. I suppose you will have had heard of the fight before these lines comes to hand. Our company was not in the fight. Our army, the night before, hove up a Breast-Work on Charlestown Point. In the morning, the Fort fired from Boston, and the Ships fired into our Breast-Work. At one o'clock, in the afternoon, the British Troops landed on the point, about 3,500, and marched up to our Breast-Work, and our men gave them the first fire from the Breast-Work & Fence. The fire held $\frac{3}{4}$ of an hour. But how many were killed, I know not. How many of our men were killed, I know not. But the fight is not done. Our army retreated to Winter Hill. Capt. Rowe was in the fight, & Capt. Collins. Charlestown is burnt, and all the houses on the Point up to Penney Ferry.

Such a day, New England never Saw. I Saw a number of the troops lay dead. It is thought the troops will not return untill we, or the Troops, give up the Point. I have not time to write to my wife; But, by the blessing of God, I hope to return. Remember me to all my friends. Pray, send me, by John Pearse, your Sword. The boys are well. Gideon Carter is well. There was but 200 of our men, when the fight begun. I heard that Capt. Warner & Capt. Rowe, & Capt. Collins lost some men. I have sent my watch home, by Mr. Lane.

I have nothing more, at present; but you will hear more soon, very soon.

Sir, I am your dutiful son.

JOSEPH EDES.

To Mr. Isaac Dennison,
at Gloucester.

May 7, 1775, the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, styled the colonies then opposing the British Crown, "The Twelve United Colonies," and June 15th, chose George Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the American Army. By these acts the provincial forces around Boston became the "Continental Army," thenceforth to be recruited, supplied, and regulated by Congress. For recruiting, that body made requisitions upon each colony for its quota of men, duly armed and equipped, to be raised as each might think best. In New England this was made effective (after a fashion) by requisitions, according to their population; and thence forward during the war their histories, which had been mainly municipal, came to take on a somewhat national character. I shall therefore set forth, as completely as I can, every recorded proceeding of Chelsea relating to the war, though grouping them under several heads.

July 3, 1775, when Washington took command of the army at Cambridge, the British general was in Boston with the light-horse, and a few other troops, while the bulk of his army lay on Bunker Hill, busy throwing up intrenchments, and the remainder were on the neck between Boston and Roxbury, which had been strongly fortified.

The American army formed a line around the landward side of Boston and Charlestown, extending nearly twelve miles, from the Mystic river to Dorchester. Intrenchments and redoubts had been begun at different points, and were in progress. The regiments from New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and part of those from Connecticut, occupied Winter and Prospect Hills; several Massachusetts regiments were at Cambridge, and others, from Connecticut and Massachusetts, covered the high grounds in Roxbury.⁶

Washington made three divisions of his army. That forming the left wing was stationed at Winter Hill, commanded by Major-General Lee; the centre was at Cambridge, under Major-General Putnam; and the right at Roxbury, under Major-General Ward. The headquarters of the Commander-in-Chief were with the centre at Cambridge.⁷

Washington's purpose was to capture Howe's army, or to drive it into the sea. Howe's purpose was to destroy Washington's army by piercing its centre at Cambridge, or by turning either flank. To accomplish the purpose of either was difficult; for Howe's left, protected by strong fortifications across Boston Neck, was only assailable over a narrow peninsula, by disciplined troops, supported by effective artillery, which Washington lacked. Howe's centre was covered by the Charles River and adjacent marshes, passable only when frozen, or by a flotilla, which Washington also lacked. His right was protected, so long as he held the Charlestown Heights, strongly fortified, and his gunboats patrolled the Charles and the Mystic.

⁷ Ibid., 136.

On the other hand Howe would encounter very serious obstacles in an attempt to turn our right by the way of Roxbury; and the only direct movement by land against our centre at Cambridge was through what is now Somerville, over roads commanded by strong redoubts on Plowed, Prospect, and Winter Hills. To reach our left by the north bank of the Mystic was impracticable, on account of impassable marshes. Nor had Howe light-draft vessels, with which to fall upon Washington's rear by moving his forces up the Mystic to Medford. This might have been practicable, had Howe with an adequate force landed at Winnisimmet Ferry, and turning the Malden marshes, followed the uplands to Medford. To guard against this, companies were stationed at Winnisimmet and Malden. A guard was on the easterly slope of Mt. Washington, easterly of which the marshes protected Washington's left flank; and on the top of Powderhorn Hill was a station, from which were signalled to Winter Hill, and soon made known to Washington, the movements of the British fleet and army, as well as of the boats which crossed Chelsea Ferry.

After the removal of the live stock from Hog and Noddle's Islands beyond British foraging parties, the health of that army suffered for want of fresh provisions, which Nova Scotia could not supply; and there was danger of a movement in force to obtain these in the rich counties of Essex and Middlesex, which was practicable only by way of Winnisimmet Ferry.⁸

⁸ 26 December, 1775. Upon Application from the Towns aforesaid (as also from those of Chelsea and Malden), on or about the first of May, last, to the committee of safety of this colony, who then had the direc-

There were other circumstances, which made a force of observation necessary at Chelsea. Both Whigs and Tories cooped up in Boston, having lost hope of an accommodation of affairs, desired to join their friends in the country; but this did not accord with the views of either party. For while Howe would gladly have got rid of non-combatants, especially those afflicted with small-pox, which endangered the health of his soldiers, and of all who consumed his scanty provisions, without adding to the efficiency of his army; on the other hand, it was his policy to retain within his lines both rich Whigs and Tories, who, and whose property once outside, would serve the provincials as hostages, or contribute to their scanty means for carrying on the war.

Washington's policy, on the other hand, was to embarrass Howe with the feeding of non-combatants in Boston; to with-tion of raising and stationing the forces within the same, praying that they (would from a consideration of the situation of said towns, and that the enemy could land in any of them from Boston Harbor within an hour after they enter their boats, and in some parts less than Half an Hour: and, also, that they could from thence, easily penetrate into the Country), order a detachment from the Camps, or a Guard, to be stationed in these Towns. The said Committee of Safety, with the Council of War, after full inquiry and deliberation determined that it was necessary, that a party should be constantly stationed at the sea-coasts of these towns to watch the motions of the enemy, and prevent their landing; but as no troops could well be spared at that time, from either of the camps at Cambridge or Roxbury, they directed that there should immediately be raised, one company in Hingham, one in Weymouth, and two in Braintree (also two at Chelsea & Malden) and that these companies should join such regiments in future, as should be directed. The men were raised, as ordered, and were then, and ever have been, considered as part of the 13,600 men, to be raised by this colony: they were so considered by the General officers, and have been employed in such service, place & places, as the commanding officer at Roxbury hath, from time to time, directed, as will appear by his orders to the several captains of said Companies, some copies of which accompany this representation. A company from Roxbury was, as soon as the state of that Camp would admit of, detached to the assistance of these four companies, and upon their being remanded in August last two other companies, also part of the Continental Army, were sent to supply their place, and the place of a company drawn from Cohasset, a town adjoining Hingham. When these four Companies were raised, this colony had it not in contemplation to raise men for the general defence of the sea coasts; and they never have been considered by us in any other point of view than as part of our quota for the common defence; and, being stationed far within the narrow limits of the harbor of Boston, his excellency will undoubtedly from all these considerations grant the reasonable request of this Court, and order these forces to be paid by the United Colonies.—Journal of House of Representatives, p. 78.

draw the wealthy Whigs with their property and arms; and to bar access to him of the same class of Tories from the country towns. It was also important that the small-pox prevalent in Boston should not be carried into the country.⁹ These dangers had been foreseen by the Provincial Congress, and guarded against by the Committee of Safety.

These regulations were thought too lenient by the Tories, and too severe by the Whigs, some of whom were refused permission to leave town. Many who obtained it landed at Chelsea, and scattered through the country.

There is much about the loyalists in Foote's Annals of King's Chapel, ii 353 et seq., though perhaps not pertinent here.

APPENDIX

A QUESTION has arisen whether the three companies at Chelsea, of which Captain Sprague's was one, participated in the fight at Bunker Hill. At first sight this would seem to have been improbable; for the project of posting a force on the hill appears first in a resolution of June 15th, recommending the Council of War to consult with the general officers at Roxbury as to its advisability. (Jour. Prov. Cong., 569.) This could hardly have been done and communicated on the 17th in season for the companies at Chelsea to make a circuitous march of many miles, by way of Medford to join Prescott's party. I assume that Penny Ferry would not have been practicable for the Chelsea companies, even if it had not been commanded by British floating batteries not far off. Besides, Chelsea was too important a place to be left uncovered; nor was there need, for Prescott's force was only part of Ward's much larger force at Cambridge, and serviceable if needed.

See Boston Public Library Monthly Bulletin, v. No. 1, January, 1900, for A Letter from Jesse Lukens to John Shaw, Jr., Prospect Hill, September 13, 1775, giving an account of the Battle of June 17th.

But about eleven o'clock on the 17th, when the British forces were seen coming over to Charlestown, Gen. Ward ordered the regiments of Colonels Stark and Reed of New Hampshire to reinforce Colonel Prescott, and orders were also issued for the recall to Cambridge of the companies at Chelsea. (Frothingham, 129, 132.) If this order was received and obeyed, then those companies doubtless endeavored to reach the scene of the expected conflict. At this point I am happy to have the guidance of Deloraine P. Corey, Esq., a high authority, who writes to me, as follows: "I do not think the companies at Chelsea were withdrawn on the day of the battle, as it was important to guard that shore, and the Malden company, belonging to Gardner's regiment, was posted at Beacham's Point, known as Wormwood, Beacham's, Sweetser's, and Van Voorhies Point, on the Malden side on that day, and remained there during the siege. A portion of Gerrish's regiment [to which Capt. Sprague's company belonged] marched from Cambridge under Capt. Thomas Mighill, but were met on the way by Adjutant Christian Febiger, who led that portion into the battle, and arrived on the hill in time to do service. I am certain that Sprague's company was one of those that went with Febiger. Sprague was incapacitated, either before or during the battle, and his company was led on the hill by his Lieutenant, Jos. Cheever, who received a ball through his hat. I have good reason to keep this in remembrance, for if the ball had been a little lower, I would have lost my great grandfather.

"Capt. Sprague and Lieut. Cheever were commissioned together in Baldwin's regiment, which, as you know, was the successor of Gerrish's, but Sprague never appears as a commander. The company was at Valley Forge, and in service during the campaign around New York and New Jersey, and the returns are always signed by Lieut. Cheever as commander, and I think he made the final returns when the company was discharged."

The losses in Gerrish's regiment were three killed and two wounded. June 23, Gerrish's regiment, among seven others, was ordered to encamp on the hill.

At this time Captain Sprague was sixty-three years old and hardly capable of rapid marching, or severe field service. Though he was in command of the company, and as late as October 2, 1775, made a return, which gives the names of the Chelsea men of his company, in the 38th Regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Baldwin (Coat Rolls, lvi. 258), Lieutenant Joseph Cheever was in active command. Nor does historic fidelity permit the suppression of the fact, that he was complained of by his sergeant for neglect of duty as follows:

To Lieut. Colo^{al} Baldwin, Esq.:

this is to inform you that I Dwo
Now Complain of Capt. Samuel Sprague, For not going the NATHANIEL HILLS, Serjant.

Chelsea, Novem^{br}. 21st, 1775. Vol. 59, No. 908, Baldwin's Regt.

But Capt. Sprague's patriotism, courage, and fidelity were too conspicuous to be called in question by his subordinate. Doubtless, he was an old man: too old for exacting service. Joseph Cheever was born in Chelsea, Dec. 1752, according to the family Bible and his gravestone in Malden. He married, April 23 (or 20, according to the Bible), 1774, Sarah Low, of Boston, who was born Aug. 24, 1754, and died March 20, 1841, aged 87.

The battle was seen from the Naval Hospital Grounds, and by one at least from another town who had "a good perspective glass." And as the British forces chiefly landed at Moulton's Point, directly opposite the present Naval Hospital Grounds, there was no place so favorable for seeing the main movements of both parties. The wind was southwesterly, and cinders from the fire were carried to Chelsea.

In civil and military affairs Capt. Samuel Sprague was a useful and respected citizen. Miss Emily Tewksbury, a descendant, gives me many of the genealogical facts which follow. Born in Malden, Sept. 27, 1712, of Phineas and Elizabeth (Green) Sprague, Jan. 11, 1737, he married Martha Hills, who died Sept. 13, 1750; and, for his second wife, Rachel, daughter of John Floyd, of Chelsea, who lived on the "Sale Farm," and died Nov. 4, 1775, aged 75.

His children were Martha, b. Oct. 23, 1737 (m. Joseph Green, 1757); Elizabeth, b. Jan. 31, 1739 (m. Joseph Pratt, Aug. 4, 1757); Mary, b. — (m. Caleb Pratt, May 26, 1762); Sarah, b. 1743 (m. James Stowers, Jan. 3, 1765); Samuel, died Sept. 4, 1768, aged 23; Lydia, b. May 23, 1748 (m. Jonathan Williams, Sept. 12, 1771); Lois, b. July 13, 1750 (m. Isaac Green, Feb. 3, 1772). By second wife, Rachel Floyd, he had Rachel, b. Sept. 19, 1756 (m. Jonathan Hawkes, May 20, 1776).

I have not seen that Capt. Sprague was a member of the Rumney Marsh Church, nor do I know when he came to Chelsea. It is said that he lived at Stoneham at one time; but I think this is a mistake for Capt. Samuel Sprague, who represented that town in the Provincial Congresses of 1774-5, when his namesake was rendering not dissimilar services for Chelsea.

March 11, 1761, for £213-6-8, Daniel Tuttle deeded to him 321½ acres in Revere — Suff. Deeds, L. 95, f. 250; and Azor Orne another estate for £433-6-8, April 13, 1782 — Ibid., L. 136, f. 55. He owned lands, chiefly wood lots, in Malden and Lynn. Unless his taxes included those of the Cary farm, of which he may have been tenant, and truly indicate the amount of his property, he was a "prosperous gentleman"; and his will and inventory show the degree of comforts vouchsafed to a well-to-do farmer in those days.

The site of Capt. Sprague's house is not certainly known, but in the opinion of John P. Peirce, Esq., an old citizen of Revere, it was on either the Tuttle, or the Orne estate, which were adjacent, both having houses on them, and situated on both sides of Revere street, not far easterly of the turnpike. Within ten years since [1897] there was an old house on the Tuttle estate, since burned, which may have been that of Capt. Sprague.

From the account of the military services of Capt. Sprague already given it appears that he was one of the first to take up arms for his country; and his defence of Boston and the neighboring coasts was duly appreciated by the authorities; but his age prevented his following his company into distant fields, and his first lieutenant, Joseph Cheever, was in actual command.

His services as the representative of his town in various assemblies have been mentioned, and it only remains to add that his fellow-citizens frequently indicate their confidence in his capacity and character, by electing him to various municipal offices.

Capt. Sprague died April 15, 1783, aged 70, Church records, 71. The same records give the burial of "Widow Sprague," as on June 23, 1786; but I find no memorial to her in the Church Yard, by the side of her husband. His will is dated April 1, 1783. The inventory of his estate mentions the Tuttle and Orne estates, and gives "the improvement of my dwelling house" to his wife, so long as she remained his widow, with other suitable provisions for her support. He also provides for the decent support of his two negroes, "Cesar & Peg, so called," during their natural lives.

His real estate was inventoried at	£765 - 15 - 6
	<hr/> £1081 - 4 - 10

The will of his unmarried sister Lydia, who died Aug. 13, 1777, aged 69, gives most of her estate to her nieces, daughters and granddaughters of Capt. Sprague.

CHAPTER XLIV

CHELSEA IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

Military Forces at Chelsea during the Siege of Boston

THE Continental Army about Boston, when Washington took command, July 3, 1775, as has been said, reached from the Mystic at Medford on the north, to Roxbury on the south, with points for observation near the sea at Dorchester. At Chelsea, by which an attack on our left was possible, Washington's line extended nominally to the easterly foot of Mt. Washington, easterly of which were impassable marshes.

This part of our line, neither fortified nor fully occupied, was guarded at points after April 19th; and about seven hundred men were posted in several towns along the coast to prevent depredations by the enemy. June 23, Malden requested measures for its defence.¹ At the Ten Hills Farm, up the Mystic, was a strong redoubt. Near the present Malden bridge was a floating battery, and several companies were at Chelsea,² Malden, and Medford.

April 16, 1776. A petition of Samuel Sprague, praying allowance for the service of seventeen men, appointed to keep guard at Pullen Point, from the 19th April to the 16th of May last. Read and committed, with the Roll accompanying, to Capt. Parker, Mr. Ingals, and Deacon Watson.³

occupied between April 19, 1775, and the end of the siege of Boston, March 17, 1776, especially during the early part of this period; but we know in general that to its defence were assigned several companies of Colonel Samuel Gerrish's regiment.⁴ To what has been said of this regiment [ante, p. 453] may be added, that "on the 19th of May, 1775, it was reported complete; but there were difficulties as to six companies, investigated, June 22." "Depositions station, June 16, three companies at Chelsea, three at Cambridge, and two at Sewall's Point."⁵ June 13, Captain Samuel Sprague returned the officers and soldiers of his company in this regiment, comprising forty-one, among whom, of Chelsea, were Ezra Pratt, Thomas Cheever, Edward Wait, William Oliver, Jr., William Oliver, 3d, Abijah Hastings, John Tuttle, Samuel Hutton Pratt, John Robbins, Joseph Green, Jr., Solomon Shute, and Joshua Cummins, who took the oath, required by Congress to be taken by the Massachusetts soldiers, before a justice of the peace.⁶

At Chelsea, June 16, 1775, eight captains of Gerrish's regiment chose Loammi Baldwin lieutenant-colonel. [Ante, p. 453.] Four companies were under his command, and their returns are as of "Baldwin's Regiment." Captain Richard Dodge's are from July 5, 1775, to February, 1776. The ranks varied from sixty-two at the first date, to eighty-four at the last. July 5 they had 1,019 rounds. September 18 they wanted two guns. December 17 his officers were Paul Dodge, 1st lieutenant; Michael Farley, 2d lieutenant; and Abijah Hastings, ensign.⁷ Colonel Baldwin was notified, that "Lieutenant Robert Dodge by applying will receive his discharge. W. Heath."⁸

Captain Barnabas Dodge's returns are from July 5, 1775, to March 1, 1776. The ranks varied from seventy at the first

Captain Samuel Sprague's returns are from July 26 to December 15, 1775. The ranks varied from fifty-eight to sixty-three. July 30 there were four sergeants, four corporals, one drummer; no fifer.¹¹ There is "A Return of non-commissioned Officers and Soldiers, in Capt. There are memoranda of Captain Ezra Badlam's company at Chelsea, February 29–March 1, 1776.¹⁵

Colonel Baldwin's returns of "Chelsea Guard," July 21, 1775–February 2, 1776, are in vol. lix., pp. 323–1015. There were four companies, aggregating from 244 to 285 men. November, 1775, he returned 600, of whom 249 were at Chelsea.¹⁶ Chelsea, February 5, 1776, receipts for the pay of non-commissioned officers and soldiers were signed by captains Barnabas and Richard Dodge, John Wood, and Ezra Badlam.¹⁷

In the autumn of 1775 enlistment papers of the following tenor were circulated in Chelsea:

We, whose names are hereunto subscribed, being determined to serve and defend our Country and its Liberties, have this day voluntarily inlisted as soldiers in the Continental Army for one year from the last day of December next, unless sooner discharged; and do bind ourselves to conform, in all instances, to such Rules and Regulations, as are, or shall be, established for the Government of the said Army. Witness our Hands, Chelsea, October the —, Annoq. Dom., 1775.¹⁸

November 24, 1775, Abijah Hastings, Ensign, returned names of 16, who "inlisted, to serve in the Continental Army, in Colo. Baldwin's Regiment, the ensuing Campaign"; December 5, he returned five men to serve one year from date, — John Tuttle and John Robbins were of Chelsea; December 8, he returned 15 names of men to serve for one year, — of whom, John Goodin, 46, Henry Blake, 26, Samuel Haseltine, 30, and Joshua Cumins, 19, were of Chelsea.¹⁹

January, 1776, 14 men, of whom, Hezekiah King (sergeant), Joseph Green (corporal), William Oliver (corporal), Nathan Cheever, Thomas Pratt, Joshua Cumings, and Solomon Shute, were of Chelsea, agreed to "Tarry the month of January, 1776," in Captain Samuel Sprague's company.²⁰

December 7, 1775, Colonel Baldwin asks of General Heath leave of absence for a few days to attend to the affairs of his regiment. He had made three attempts to leave, and thus far effected nothing, by reason of the movements of the enemy; whereby it became necessary to return to his post at Chelsea.²¹

Military Stations and Barracks at Chelsea

The points where troops were stationed, or barracked, at Chelsea, in 1775–1776, are with few exceptions mainly traditional. April 16, 1776, Captain Samuel Sprague asked the General Court for an allowance for "17 men, appointed to keep guard at Pullen Point."²²

A signal station on Powder Horn Hill observed and communicated to one on Winter Hill, Somerville, the movements of the British in Boston Harbor.

See ante 444 for the list of those who kept guard at Pullen Point from April 19th to their discharge, May 16, 1775.

The chief point guarded was the landing at Chelsea ferry, where the pier of the Naval Hospital now is. Two houses there, owned by Jonathan Green, were used as barracks. A barrack was built near the Poor House estate, northerly of Washington Park (near the site now marked by a slab duly inscribed).²³

It is also quite certain that the Cary mansion, now standing, though much changed, in 1892, and it is probable that the Carter house, since burned, but then on the site of the late Levi Slade's mansion, northeasterly from the meeting of Washington Avenue and Carter Street, were used as barracks.²⁴

²³ May 21, 1781, the town voted Daniel Pratt, 12 Spanish mill'd dollars, for the use of the barracks and garden, for Abijah Lewis to live in — to be paid in Exchange, at the time of payment. Dec. 30, 1782, the selectmen gave him an order for £4, 19, for the use of the barracks, etc. Feb. 25, 1789, same paid same, £5-0-5-1, for the use of the barracks, from Dec. 4, 1786, to April 26, 1788. The tradition is that the timber of these barracks was used for a house lately burned on the Cook estate, near the avenue leading to Woodlawn gate.

APPENDIX

THE following paper, not dated, evidently late in 1775, recites facts in regard to military movements of the patriots about Boston, nowhere else so clearly stated, and shows the difficulty of providing barracks for the soldiers at Chelsea.

“A brief acct. of the provincial Troops, being stationed in Chelsea, and present accommodations for them for winter Quarters, &c.

“The exposed situation of the Town induced the Committee of Safety, in May, last, to give orders for a Company, to be raised, to keep a guard, which was accordingly raised, under Capt. Sprague. — Sometime after, General Ward sent a detachment to remove the stocks from some adjacent Islands, which brought on Several Skirmishes, which both distressed and endangered the Town of Chelsea, upon which General Ward and Dr. Warren, upon viewing the situation of things, and judg^s it of importance to defend the Post, Ordered, a Detachment of three Companies, besides Capt. CHAPTER XLV

Losses from Military Occupation

SOON after April 19, 1775, Chelsea was occupied by undisciplined soldiers from remote parts, who sometimes from necessity and often from mere wantonness committed serious injuries to the estates and personal property of its citizens.

This led to the following order, July 29, 1775:

“Whereas, there have been great Complaint made by the Inhabitants here, that some Soldiers Quartered in this place have wantonly taken & Dstroy’d their Property, both within doors, & without, have pulled Potatoes [in a] premature state; Pluck’d fruit, in like manner; and are under Apprehensions that their Corn will not be safe, when fit to Eate. It is, therefore, ordered, that no officer nor soldier Enter any field of Corn or Potatoes, orchard or Gardens, to take from them, or to dstroy any of the Produce of the Earth, without leave from the owner. As I have the strongest assurance in my own mind, that I shall have the assistance of the officers, & [the] Greatest part of [the] Soldiers, to prevent such unmanly conduct for the futer, I shall therefore Expect to hear no more Complaints of that nature. This order is men’t to Extend to the two Companies at Malding & Medford.”¹

A notable case was that of Jonathan Green, who owned the present Naval Hospital estate, occupied, as early as May 31, 1775, by soldiers from Berkshire.² Captain Green was an

² These soldiers may have been those referred to “June 4, 1775: Resolved, that Col. Lemuel Robinson be directed to pay the three companies of Col. It was occupied later by Colonel Baldwin: “This certifies that intelligent citizen of Chelsea; who filled many important offices and trusts with scrupulous integrity. He drew up accounts of his losses, containing many interesting particulars, which I give in a note.³

A general statement of losses by the people of Chelsea in the use of their lands near the ferry by the Continental troops, is in the petition of the selectmen to the General Court in 1780, for a reduction of the town's valuation, for taxation. They say: "that in the time the British forces were in Boston, the Inhabitants of the Southerly, or lower part of the town of Chelsea, were ordered by General Washington, to Remove their Stock of Cattle, horses, and Sheep, Back to some more Distant place from the British army. Agreeable to said orders, said Cretures were Removed back to the upper part of Chelsea, and into other towns, where said Cretures were so short of feed, that they Broke into and Spoiled a Considerable part of the mowing Land. And, by the Stocks being kept away from the Lower part of the town, through the Summer Season, the feed thereof was Lost, and several of the Cattle, that were Drove Back, were Starved and Lost, and the Inhabitants of the Lower part of the town were obliged to Carry back the Little hay they Cut, and the other produce of their farms, into other towns, Six, Seven, & some Eight miles, where they could Get places to keep themselves, their Stocks and hay, at Great Expense; Also, a Considerable number of housen and Barns were so torn to pieces by the Soldiers that General Washington sent to Chelsea, that it has since cost the Inhabitants of the Lower part of the town, Very Considerable Sums of money to Repair them, barely fit for use, and Several Good houses were so spoiled by said Soldiers that they are not Repaired this day, nor Indeed are worth Repairing, but must be Rebuilt; and one large Barn, 30 feet wide, and above 60 Long, the Soldiers Burnt all up for fire-wood; besides, a Great many hundred Rales and posts, that fenced in Considerable of the Inclosures of the town, said Soldiers Burnt, and therby Laid

CHAPTER XLVI

Quotas, Enlistments, Bounties, and Pay

AFTER the evacuation of Boston by Howe's army, March 17, 1776, the seat of war was transferred from the Charles to the Hudson,¹ and Massachusetts was partially relieved from apprehension, but not wholly; for the British might return, as more than once seemed probable. To guard against this, fortifications were erected in the harbor, and companies for observation stationed at exposed points. Chelsea had her share of this burden. Nor was this the end. The war, thus far confined to Massachusetts, was provincial; but after March 17, 1776, it became continental, for which Chelsea had to furnish her successive quotas. The following account of her labor in this respect I glean from her records and other sources, and give them in details which tell the story far better than general statements.

1776, June 3. Voted, £70. 16s., L.M., to pay the five men that entered the service of the Province, to go to Canada.²

July, 1776. Town paid Samuel Sargeant, £0. 9. 0, for going to Boston to hire men for the War, and cash expended on said men; also, Joseph Pratt, £0. 10. 0, for the same service.³

July 20. Voted to raise £70. 16s., to pay the five men who enlisted in the service of the Province to go to Canada.

² Town Rec., ii. 9.

³ These and similar entries in the town records will be found in Volume ii. Where several entries fall under the same year, it is given only in the first instance.

The following letter and petition explain themselves:

Hon^d Sir:

I received your Commands, of July 25, to have the Militia in this Town at a Minute's warning, &c., and should have obeyed them, with the greatest cheerfulness, had it been in my power, but for the want of our Commissions. We are, at present, quite unable to do anything in the military way; and since unwearied pains, among us, have been hitherto unsuccessful, I must beg your honor's Influence to procure a settlement of our militia:— the Town instructed their Representative to make it the first object of his endeavor, in the late session of our assembly.— I much solicited the field-Officers of Boston Regiment, to which we formerly belonged, to preside at the meeting when officers were chosen, but could not prevail with one, to do it; the Town, therefore, chose a Justice of the Peace for their Moderator, and were unanimous in their Choice:— since which repeated application has been made to the hon^{ble} Council, but we are refused Commissions, because a field-officer did not preside at the meeting, and it was quite out of our power to obtain one.— It seems as if some strange fatality attended the thing. Your honor, I trust, will procure our settlement and Commissions, when you will ever find me most obedient to your commands:— upon this representation of facts, I doubt not, you will excuse my utter incapacity to obey.— Permit me to add, the Company is far from being inconsiderable, and desirous of being upon a footing with their Neighbors:— a regard to the public safety, I doubt not, will induce your Honor to procure for us a speedy settlement, and our Commissions, when your honor's Commands shall be ever obeyed, with the greatest precision and alacrity, by Sir, Your most obed^t. huml: serv^t,

SAMUEL CLARK.

The Town unanimously chose, at a very full meet^g, —

Sam^l Clark, Capt., Jonathan Williams, Lieut.- James Stower, Ensⁿ.— To the hon^{ble} James Warren, Esqr.

The representations of Samuel Clark proving ineffectual, they were followed by those of the Selectmen.

To the honorable Council and House of Representatives of the State of Massachusetts Bay, in General Court assembled, in their present session, at Boston, Dec., 1776.

The petition of the Selectmen of the Town of Chelsea humbly sheweth.

That, as the Militia of said Town is not settled, by being annexed to any Regiment, and having no commissioned officers, which occasions difficulties, — your petitioners pray the Company may be annexed to Boston Regiment, to which it formerly belonged, and commissions given to its officers, that we may be enabled the better to conform to the militia act, and in better readiness for the defence of our Country; — and your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

May 18, 1778. Voted to choose a Committee of five men to Determine what any and all men have done or paid in, or for the above-said affair [enlistment of soldiers]. Chose Capt. Samuel Sargeant, Samuel Watts, Capt. Jonathan Green, Dea. John Sale, and Mr. Daniel Pratt as committee.¹⁸

Voted to raise £100 to give the three men who go into the Continental army to General Washington; to give each of them who may enlist into the Continental army £100, lawful money; that the two men who may enlist to go to Fishkill or North River shall have £50 each for Encouragement to enlist into the Continental service for eight months; that, if the five men sent for can be obtained before there is a draft made in Chelsea Company, then all votes passed by this meeting shall be null and void. Chose as Committee to procure the five men to go as soldiers, Capt. Samuel Clark, Lieut. Jonathan Williams, and Lieut. James Stowers; and voted also that said committee make report at the adjournment of this town meeting with respect to the getting soldiers to go to the Continental Army.¹⁹

Notwithstanding these inducements to enlist the town was obliged in 1778, and again in 1779, to resort to a draft. I have learned the names of only four citizens, on whom the lots fell in 1778: Deacon John Sale, James Floyd, Jonathan Belcher, Jr., and John Oliver. The summons was this:

Chelsea, May ye 20th, 1778. Eight of the Clock, at night.

To Deacon John Sail [Sale]. Sir: this is to Inform, you are, this Evening, Drafted, as one of the Continental men to go to General Washington's head-Quarters, and you must go, or find an able man in your Room, or pay a fine of twenty Pounds, in Law. money, in twenty-four hours.

[Endorsed:] Chelsea, May 21st, 1778. then Rec'd of Deacon Sail, twenty Pounds, Law. money, In full of the within. Rec'd By me Edward Wait, Clerk.
[Original in Chamberlain MSS. VI., 29.]

Floyd, whose summons was like that of Sail [Sale], also paid his fine; but by vote of the town, October 12, 1778, these fines were repaid. In Floyd's case, the order was,

²¹ John Robbins, of good connections, but with a large family and very poor, had been a soldier in Capt. Sprague's company at the beginning of the war. At a time which does not appear he enlisted "for the war," which few were willing to do. As an inducement, besides the usual pay and bounty, the town seems to have engaged to support his wife and children; perhaps with the hope to be reimbursed in part at least by the state; for I find this account:

Between June 1, 1778, and October, 1783, the town paid on account of Robbins and his family, chiefly to Daniel and Elizabeth Pratt, and Samuel Sprague, £2,089. 17. 8. Though in depreciated currency, this was a large sum.

These Robbins papers may be seen in Chamberlain MSS., VI. 79, 95, 117, 119, 169, 191, 1197; and, under 30 Dec. 1782; 6 and 26 Feb., and 31 Oct., 1783.

June 11. Edward Clemons had got John Ireland to go along with him as soldier to North River, and the town voted, to have the two carried over to Boston to see if they would pass muster before Colonell Hatch; but he would not accept them because they were strangers.

June 29, the committee had procured two men to go as soldiers to the North River. According to votes, passed May 18th, relative to a committee to hire five soldiers — three to go to Gen. Washington, and two to Fishkill, and that the selectmen be a committee, to hire money pursuant to said vote: Raised and Granted five hundred pounds, lawfull money, to pay for said five soldiers, to be taxed and assessed on the Inhabitants and Estates of Chelsea, as soon as may be, this year.

Silas Clarke any present for the future time. Also, to give him £80, as a present, for the like reasons; for the like purposes; and, with the same refusal as to the future.

October 1. [sic] Voted to give some encouragement to any persons who may enlist as Militia men in the State's Service to go to Boston or elsewhere the Council may order them; and that Capt. Samuel Sprague, Capt. Samuel Clark, and Lieut. James Stowers [be] a committee; . . and have liberty to draw money out of the Town's treasury to hire two men to serve as soldiers as cheap as they can.

Abijah Hastings £20 for 13½ month's service in 1776-77; Joseph Cheever £15 for 13½ month's service in 1776-7.

The town then chose a moderator; adjourned "for half an 'our"; and meeting according to adjournment finished its business.²⁸

August 2. Voted, that the Selectmen take care to provide Clothing for the Soldiers.

Voted to draw Six guns out of the Continental Store for the use of the town. Voted, thirty-six pounds to pay for the above guns.³⁰

Apparently the town relied in part at least on private subscriptions for funds to make good the payment promised by the vote of August 2, to the five men drafted to the Castle. The committee to be indemnified. Also, Capt. Joseph Pratt, from his fine.

The following persons paid as fines, or loaned to the town, the sums set against their names:³⁷

July 11th, Hugh Floyd, £30; 13th, Joseph Wait, Jr., £120; Dea. Pratt, for to pay 3 months' Soldiers,—£150; 24th, Same, for same, £150.

³⁷ There is much uncertainty as to this matter. Much of what I give is gathered from the wreck of the town papers, lately rescued from a garret, remote from Chelsea, in which they had lain unknown for more than a hundred years. Many of them had been lost; which accounts for many gaps in my account of affairs.

Same date. The town paid Lieut. Samuel Pratt £116-8, to pay Milage money for the Continental Soldiers. July 17, 1780. The town paid Capt. Joseph Pratt, £227, L.M., to hire soldiers with.

July 11-19, 1780. Between those dates I find several receipts of payments of £150, L.M., by those, "Drafted as three months' men." They were Ebenezer Sargent, Jonathan Belcher, Junr., Richard Boynton, William Oliver, the third. Ebenezer Butman paid £60, L.M., "to hier the three months' men"; Hugh Floyd "30 £, L.M., towards," the same; Joseph Waite, Jr., $120, towards the same, and Deacon John Sail [Sale], £93.

July 24, The Town paid Joseph Pratt £90, "part of the money ye pew was sold for, which money is to pay the malitia's soldiers."²⁸

July 27. Capt. Samuel Sprague paid Lieut. Samuel Pratt 200 Dollars, to pay the milage money to the three months' soldiers from Chelsea; and Joseph paid same 160 Dollars for the same.

1780, July —. Samuel Pratt received of Lieut. Joseph Cheever $249, "as part of a fine, for hiering of men."

July 24. Samuel Pratt, Lieut., and Joseph Pratt, a committee of the town, agreed to pay Daniel Pratt $1200, with interest, having hired the same to pay soldiers' bounties. James Stowers, Joseph Pratt, Samuel Pratt, and Jona. Hawks, a committee to hire men for the Continental Army for three months, borrowed of Capt. Samuel Sargent, £150.

" " Same committee borrowed of Lieut. James Stowers the same sum for the same purpose.

" " James Tuttle lent £60 for the same purpose.

" 26. Capt. Samuel Sprague lent the town £150 "towards the three months' men."

" " Lieut. Daniel Pratt lent the town, £162 to hire "Three months' men."

" 27. Jonathan Hawks, one of the town's committee, received of Joseph Green $160 "for Millidge money for the Soldiers."

²⁸ See ante, p. 302. Though the money was used as above, it does not appear that the pew was sold for that purpose.

July 31, 1780. The town passed the following votes: To take £900 (being one half the fine imposed upon Chelsea by the General Court), to pay bounties to the seven soldiers as militia-men for three months; also £522 the pines sold for the same purpose; also to raise £17,890-16 to pay the remaining sum of the bounties agreed for with the three-months' men called for last month by the General Court; that the fines of those that were drafted be put into the next town rate; also the Selectmen and Assessors be empowered to receive the several claims of persons, who have advanced money to pay the soldiers, that have been lately hired to go into the war and to allow to each person as they judge just, and when the town rate is made, for the assessors to deduct so much out of that rate as they judge just, and the remainder to be put into the Collector's Rate-book; and in case any person is not rated to the next rate, as he has advanced for the abovesaid purpose, then the overplus to be paid out of the town treasury by orders from the Selectmen.

September 26. Paid Lieut. James Stowers £15, advanced for the encouragement of Soldiers to go into the war.³⁹

December 21. Paid Samuel Low £88-13-6, part of a fine he paid when drafted.

³⁹ William T. Hall, of Revere, in a letter to Mellen Chamberlain, under date of January 19, 1897, contributes the following facts:

"James Stowers lived in a house at the foot of a lane, about 200 feet from the old county road, now Beach street, near junction of Winthrop Ave., and Beach. The house was occupied seventy years ago by Samuel Sprague Stowers, who had a son of the same name. After the death of widow Stowers, the property was set off to the heirs—in the division, George took the house, and cutting off the lean-to, moved the main body of the house a few hundred feet back, to Sprague St., where it now stands. The house was of the style of two hundred and fifty years ago.

David W. Stowers—who died about a year ago,—(and whom you and I knew), was grandson of James, and son of Joseph Stowers, Esq., one of the prominent men of one hundred years ago. The house where they lived—formerly the Heustis Place—is now rented to strangers.

I called at the house, hoping to find the old family bible, but found some member of the family had taken it to Maine."

In another letter of Jan. 22, 1897, Mr. Hall says, in reference to a drawing of the house in which James Stowers lived, "The sketch of the house was drawn from memory. About two-thirds of the original house is still standing on Sprague St., but one would never recognize it, as it is to-day."

1781, Feb. 23. Paid Edw. Wait £150, for a fine he paid last summer.

April 2. Paid Samuel Cheever 28 dollars, & four shillings, hard money, "being the balance for the Bounty due him towards the 125 Dollars agreed with him, for."

" 4. Paid Capt. Samuel Sprague, "one hard Dollar, or the exchange thereof, to hire soldiers with."

" 20. Samuel Sprague and Samuel Sargeant certified that they had received of the Chelsea Treasurer for hiring soldiers to the amount of 28,200 00 00.

" " The town paid Isaac Watts £88 13 6, part of a fine he paid when drafted for one of the six months' men.

In Council, Jany 30, 1780. Read & Advised that a W^r be drawn on the Treas^y, for £113-14-8, in full of this Role.⁴⁰

For lack of the customary notification, as was claimed, Chelsea failed to raise her quota called for by the General Court late in 1779. At the next session Jonathan Green, her representative in the House, in explanation of this default, made a speech, a part of which has been preserved, and is given in the GENERAL APPENDIX.

The exertions of Massachusetts to furnish men for the army had nearly exhausted her resources. She had sent into the field more than twice as many men as any other state; and, between 1779 and 1782, it was difficult to meet the demands upon her. The war had gone southward; nor was there any reasonable apprehension of its return. Her trade and commerce were ruined. Her young farmers were in the army; and now that the army had left Boston, there was no longer a purchaser for the farm products it had consumed. Nevertheless, June 16, 1781, the General Court called for five hundred men to march to Rhode-Island, on or before the 25th; and on the same day towns which had failed to raise their quotas called for in 1780 were notified to meet the requisition on or before the 30th. On that day the General Court also at the request of General Washington voted to raise 2,700 men to march to West Point. The Chelsea quota was 6 men.

March 1, 1782, 1,500 more men were called for; Chelsea's share of this number was 4; and, July 31, she was to assess £296-6-6, "on the deficient Class, or Classes, — being the average price or Cost of raising Men to Supply the Deficiency of the Massachusetts Line of the Army."

Besides these demands for men there was a constant call for money for army supplies, and the ordinary expenses of state and continental government. These demands were made when trade and commerce were ruined and affairs were at a low ebb. Nevertheless Chelsea met her obligations as she best could.

Jan. 4, 1781. Then voted, one Thousand Spanish mill dollars, as a bounty for eight soldiers that shall enlist in the Continental army for three years, or during the war. Chose Mr. Richard Shute, Capt. Samuel Clark, and Lieut. Samuel Pratt to lay out said money as cheap as they could. Voted to pay said committee for their time and expence, and that if they give their obligation for one thousand mill dollars, they shall draw the same out of the town's treasury, or such part as they shall need for hiring said soldiers.

The war had dragged on far beyond expectation, especially after Burgoyne's capitulation in 1777; nor were the military disasters which followed, compensated for by the French alliance of February, 1778, and the arrival of D'Estaing's fleet in July. Success did not attend our arms; and the people were becoming disheartened under the merciless drain on their resources and constant call for troops. So common was this the case at this time, not only in New England but elsewhere, that in Pennsylvania James Wilson, a staunch patriot and signer of the Declaration of Independence, in view of a draft, — after all other means had failed, — was willing to consider honorable terms of peace with Great Britain, short of independence.

Jan. 29, Voted, to give to eight soldiers that should enlist as above, to have eight calves a-piece raised and kept, and to be delivered to each of them at the end of three years.

Voted, that if the Committee should agree more than 125 dollars to any other men, then the town voted to give Sam^l Cheever more. The meeting then adjourned to Feb. 7, when it was decided to leave the hiring of soldiers with the committee to get them in the best manner they could with stock or money.

The vote of too many calves of indiscriminated sex, and of too little money for a bounty, seems to have failed, and this led to its modification.

29 January 1781. According to the Resolves of Corte, the Seac-ond of Desember, 1780, I call^d the Company to geather, in order to Inlist the men for three years or During the War, but got none.

January the 29, 1781. Call'd a town-meeting. Chose a com-mitey to hier y^e men. To viz., Richard Shute, Capt. Samuel Clarke, and others. Hier'd two men for three-year, or Durin the war, to wit, Samuel Cheever and one Sacks, an old Britannor. After that, by order of the Court, Class't the men of the town. For to get the other six men, hier'd Thomas Norris hasey [Hasey] For one, and David Gooding, for the other two, which Belong'd to the fifth Class. Thear was allso hiered in Said Towne, Samuel Shargent, Junr., of another [another] Class: Selevester Pratt, for another Class, and Abither Ritchison, for said Town. Those men wass hier'd for Two hund^d & fifty harde Dollars a-peace, or the Exchange.⁴¹

March 1. Voted to give John Sacks one Hundred Hard Dollars and four Hefer Calves, to be kept and delivered to him at three years, for a Bounty, for his 'listing into the Continental service for three years for the town of Chelsea, and to pay him Down 70 Hard Dollars, or the Exchange, and the remainder to be paid him or his when called for by him.

March 8. The town clerk gave an order on the treasurer to pay Lieut. Jonathan Williams and Lieut. James Stowers, respectively, £66-18, and £54-6, lawful money, for money advanced by them to hire Soldiers with.

March 12, Voted to allow Caleb Pratt, as much as his son Caleb's poll rates amount to, in Capt. Jos. Pratt's lists, towards his services as-soldier for six months.

Same day. Jonathan Green, town treasurer, credited himself with £32,696-5-3, for the preceding year, of which all but £852-10-9 were for soldiers' pay, bounties, shoes, stockings, shirts, and blankets that Chelsea had procured for the army. He was the town's creditor for £62-11-3-1.

One item of his account is, "Paid and discharged Capt. Joseph Pratt, as money that he paid out to the Soldiers that went into the war for six months and three months Last Summer, over and above all the fines he received, £21,125."

March 22. The town, by a committee, promised to procure for John Sykes [his real name], his heirs or order, 4 Calves, Raise and keep them until they are three years old, & then deliver them, when they are Cowes at 3 years old, to said John Sykes, — Unless [he] Shall [or Git] a Dismission before the end of 3 years; in that ⁴¹ Pratt MSS. May be MSS. of William Watts — found in account book of his.

Case, said Cretures are to be delivered to him or his order upon his dismissal. The Committee promised to pay him, or his order, 23 Spanish mil'd Dollars within six months, and did pay Isaac Watts £300, on "John Saykes" account, for money the town owes sd. Saykes as a bounty.⁴²

I am not sure that I understand the vote of the town, March 22, 1781, that "Each Class Chuse a Committee to git the men in the Best manner they Can, then the Sum to be paid upon an averadge as other Charges are";⁴³ but as possibly throwing some light upon it I bring forward several later votes. July 6, 1781,⁴⁴ Voted to Chuse a Committee of 3 persons, to Give the Comm'ions officers to hire Soldiers; then Voted to add Capt. P. to sd. Committee. Voted to allow the committee to a Gree with the men as Cheap as they could, and to allow the money they agreed for. Voted to reconsider the Vote which related to the Committee Gitting or hireing solders, and then Voted to Class the town into 6 Classes, to Gitt 6 Solders for 3 months. Voted, that the Commition officers Do assist the Selectmen in Classing the town.

March 19. Caleb Pratt loaned one of the Committee "fore Spanish Dollars" to hire men for the Continental Army. Repaid by order of the town, Oct. 29, 1783.

April 2. Paid Samuel Cheever 28 Dollars and 4 s., Hard Money or Exchange, balance of bounty due him towards the 125 dollars agreed with him for.

May 10, 1781, the town dismissed, to another time, his petition for his bounty. June 30, he got a "silver Dollar." Jan. 1, 1783, the selectmen ordered the treasurer to pay him, "all that is due on his note." July 29, was an order to pay his note, for £7-4-0, with interest. Jan. 3, 1784, he was paid "twelve shillings, silver money." Jan. 7, he received of the collector, £2-5-1. Jan. 15, he got of the treasurer, 12 Dollars & 6 shillings. At another time, not given, he had 15s. 7d., in full. The old soldier had hard work in collecting, and the town in paying, his dues. Jan. 15, 1784, Voted, Mr. David Belcher and Capt. James Stowers, to "buy said two cows; but, same day, voted not to give him 30 Dollars, in lieu of two heifers or cows, the town owes him. Reconsidered, and voted the $30. Feb. 3, the town paid him, for his services in the Continental army, £4-10, in part of £9 due him, and the next day, £3-1-8.2, in full of note. May 8, 1786, the town abated his rates in Capt. Pratt's list.

May 10. Voted, not to abate or give Ezra Brintnal any part of his tax or charge in getting the three years' soldiers for the Continental army.

July 16. Voted to choose a committee of three persons, to join the Commission Officers, to hire soldiers. That, the committee [do so] as cheap as they can, and to allow the money they may agree. Voted to class the town into six classes to get six soldiers.

Though the war was virtually closed with the capitulation of Cornwallis, October 19, 1781, Congress prepared for its possible continuance and made requisitions upon the States, and these upon the towns, for soldiers and supplies.

Agreeably to a Resolve, March 8, 1782, Chelsea was required to assess £296-6-8, on the deficient Class or Classes, being the average price of the cost of raising the men to supply the Deficiency of the Massachusetts Line of the Army.

March 21 1782. Voted to dismiss the article in the warrant to see what method the town would advise to get four men to serve in the Continental army three years, otherwise than the Court has directed. Reconsidered, and the matter left with the Assessors.

Voted, not to forgive Mr. Ebenezer Butman his part of the Tax for hiring a man for three years: [On the 14th, it had voted to forgive Mr. Bootman's two sons in captivity their poll tax in Mr. Shute's list:] and not to forgive William Pratt's rates in the north class, for hiring a man.

Several orders were passed for payment of those in the army, in 1780: April 29, for Edward Wait £19-16, all for six months' service. May 7, 1782. The Selectmen gave an order on William Boardman, collector, in favor of Ephraim Sale for £13-4, for six months' wages in the Continental Army, in 1780. CHAPTER XLVII

CHELSEA IN THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR

Arms, Ammunition, Clothing, and Supplies

BESIDES raising her successive quotas of armed and equipped men Chelsea, in common with some other towns, was obliged to furnish arms, ammunition, clothing, and supplies. Frothingham says, "the army had suffered much from the want of fire-wood and hay. The Massachusetts Assembly endeavored to relieve this suffering, by calling on the towns within twenty miles of Boston to furnish specific quantities at stated times, according to the population of each town, and its distance from camp."¹

August 3, 1775. Voted (by direction of the Provincial Congress) to accept, as committee for providing clothing for the Soldiers, Capt. Samuel Sprague, Samuel Watts, Joseph Green, Daniel Pratt, Jonathan Williams, and Samuel Clark, and to allow them reasonable pay in procuring the clothing, and for their services.

The following tables show the supplies of the companies at Chelsea in 1775. They are for those of Lieutenant-Colonel Baldwin's regiment, and I select from the returns only such companies as were stationed at Chelsea.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, 13th July, 1775.

Sir:

It is the General's order that the Horse, which you have in possession, & which was taken by your Guard, when you was Officer of it, be immediately sent up to Head-Quarters.

In the foregoing returns of camp life at Winnisimmet is a noticeable bettering of soldier fare, to which candles and soap were added. Doubtless, for cooking fuel, the soldiers had torn down one of Jonathan Green's barns, then standing on the present Naval Hospital grounds; and as winter came on they also needed fuel for warmth. Much of Winnisimmet was marsh, which produced no wood; and at the time of the Revolution that on the upland was no more than enough for the tenants of the four great farms into which it was divided, and the unusual demand of the soldiers could only be supplied from the interior towns.

This demand was met, in part at least, by Jonathan Green, who, during the occupancy of his estate by the Main Guard, apparently lived in his ancestral home at Stoneham, whence he carted wood to Winnisimmet. Some of his accounts are as follows:

Nov^r. ye 22d, 1775: the Officers of the Companies Stationed at Chelsea, to Jonathan Green, Dr, to wood Delivered by him to the Soldiree, at the Gard house, at winnesimmit, Since the first Day of Last month, at Sundry times, in all, — — — 3 Cords & 5 feet.

December 16, 1775. The House resolved, that the several towns in the schedule annexed, furnish hay, and cause the same to be conveyed to the camp at Cambridge, for the use of the army, at the rate of £5 per ton, for English, and 40s. per ton, for salt hay. Chelsea, 10 tons Salt Hay.⁸

January 5, 1776. Whereas, his excellency General Washington has represented to this Court, the necessity of providing blankets for the army, and has requested the immediate assistance of this Court in this interesting affair, Therefore, Resolved, That there be collected from the several towns hereafter named, according to the schedule annexed, Four thousand blankets.

And, whereas it is of great importance that said blankets should be speedily in Camp:

⁷ The following paper, without date, doubtless refers to the above accounts:

“This may certify that I, Jonathan Green, Live in the town of Stoneham, and that the within Eighteen cords of wood, I Cut and Carried off my Land in said Stoneham, and Delivered it at Chelsea, for the use of said army, since the first day of Last October.”

⁸ House Jour., 1775-6, 50.

It is also resolved, that a committee be appointed to repair to the selectmen of the several towns mentioned in the schedule. And the selectmen in each of said towns are hereby earnestly desired to use their utmost endeavors in aiding and assisting the Committee, in affecting the above business. And that the sum of £2,600 be delivered into the hands of the said committee, in the following proportions: — [names] — to enable them to pay for said blankets, etc.

And it is further resolved that the price which shall be agreed upon by the above committee and selectmen, together with the name of the town, where such blankets are furnished, be by them affixed to each blanket. County of Suffolk, 260; Chelsea, — 9. [Deacon Sale, was one of the Committee for Suffolk.]⁹

In the regimental files at the State House are accounts of soldiers for the price or the use of their guns, which indicate that it was not unusual for those whose terms of service had expired, to sell or loan their muskets to the regiment or to the state or to the Continental Army; and this was doubtless owing to the scarcity of arms at the commencement of the war. I give several of these papers:

CHAPTER XLVIII

Alarms and Signals

CHELSEA, the extreme outpost of Washington's army, was protected from marauding parties of the British, and, as has been said [ante, p. 456], on the top of Powder Horn Hill was a signal station, communicating with one similar on Winter Hill, in Somerville, to which all movements of Howe's forces in the harbor were signalled, and thence to Washington at Cambridge. These precautions were continued for some time after the evacuation of Boston by the British, lest they should return.

I now give, in order of time, such observations as I have gathered, save those respecting the small-pox, which will follow.

The following order, neither dated nor signed, was probably by Colonel Gerrish's direction, as it is endorsed on a report, addressed to him, July 23, 1775:

Guard on Duty to be paraded in the Highway leading to Mr. Cary's Hous. When the Guard is paraded, three soldiers to be detached to join the guard at Capt. Dodge's Quarters, the Centry of this department to be posted on Powderhorn hill, to watch the motions of our enemy, and make a return every releave of all the discoveries he has made by Land or water.¹

August 3, 1775. Resolved, That Mr. William Greenleaf, Joseph Greenleaf, Esq., and Dr. Peter Roberts, be, and hereby are, empowered to repair immediately to Chelsea to take care, and make provision for, the poor distressed inhabitants of Boston, now coming over Winnesimet Ferry.²

August 5. Three women, who came over Winnesimet Farry from Boston yesterday, were brought under guard to the Court, by Capt. John Wood. Resolved, That the ladies above mentioned be delivered to Capt. Craft, and he is hereby directed to receive them into custody, to carry them to some suitable house for entertainment, and there keep them at their own expense, with a suitable guard, until Monday next and the further order of this Court.⁵

August 7. The committee appointed to examine the three women, from Boston, [brought to this Court, on Saturday, last] report that Mrs. Joseph Goldthwait may be permitted to go to Stafford to endeavor the Recovery of her Health, to be under the care of the Selectmen of Stafford during her stay there. The others have given such an open, full account of matters, and appear so friendly, that your committqe think they may without Danger be freed from confinement.⁶

Same date. Committee to examine into the characters and circumstances of all such persons as may arrive from Boston at the said Chelsea; and, if upon Enquiry, any of said Persons shall appear to be Enemies to the Country, then the said Committee are directed to keep in Custody all such suspected Persons until a proper Representation shall be made to this Court and order given thereon.⁷

In Council, August 7, 1775

Resolved, that Joseph Greenleaf, Capt. Edward Proctor, and Mr. Ephraim May, be a committee, whose duty it shall be to give constant attendance at the place where the people coming out of Boston to Chelsea shall land, and strictly examine into the characters and circumstances of all such persons as may arrive from Boston at the said Chelsea, and if upon inquiry any of the said persons shall appear to be enemies to this country, then the said committee are directed to keep in Custody all such suspected persons until a proper representation shall be made to this court and order given thereon.

During the winter of 1775-6, military operations about Boston were suspended, except that each party was watching the other for an opening favorable for attack, and to prevent surprise. Thus the winter wore away without important results. The companies at Chelsea were sheltered in barracks, built for them in Prattville [ante, p. 471], and the few incidents of that winter have been noticed.

After the evacuation of Boston by the British army, March 17, 1776, the war drifted off to New York, and, except to furnish her quotas of men, arms, ammunition, and supplies, Chelsea had no immediate connection with military affairs, and I therefore pass to other matters of her history.

It will be observed, however, that I make one exception: The war had entailed on Chelsea, more than upon any other town, the scourge of the small-pox, which did not depart with the British army; and, therefore, I give in the next chapter, a sketch of its history from its first appearance to its end, some years after the close of the war.

CHAPTER XLIX

The Small-Pox

I HAVE already spoken of Chelsea as a point from which we were observed not only the movements of the British forces in the harbor, but also of those people coming out of Boston, hostile to the American cause or suspected.

Besides these, were the poor, those sick, and such as were infected with small-pox, all of whom were burdensome to the Chelsea people; and the latter, especially, dreaded lest they should infect them with that fell disease, and indirectly communicate it to our army at Cambridge.

These apprehensions led to the following correspondence and legislative action:

Cambridge, July 29th, 1775.

Sir: I have this Inst. received a letter from Chelsea, of which the Inclosed is an extract, — as the Inhabitants are coming out in a different manner than proposed by your assembly to the Selectmen of the Town of Boston, I have not delayed a moment's time in giving you the earliest Information of it, & request that you may take the matter into consideration, & determine what is proper to be done on the occasion. If you think it prudent to receive them in this manner, query, whether it may not be proper to appoint some person to attend the movement.

I am, in haste, & with great respect, Sir,

Y^r most Obed^t H^{ble} Serv^t

G. WASHINGTON.¹

In the House, July 30, 1775. The speaker, having received a letter from General Washington relative to a number of the Inhabitants of Boston, coming over to Chelsea, as many as could be summoned (viz., about 50), met at the meeting-house, at eight o'clock, and the letter from General Washington, being read and considered, ordered, That Major Hawley, Mr. Cushing and Col. Orne be a committee to bring in a resolve for the appointment of a committee to repair to Chelsea, to take some measures for providing for such inhabitants, and guarding against the small-pox; who reported the following resolves, which was accepted, viz., upon advice received last evening from General Washington, that the inhabitants of Boston are unexpectedly coming out from that town to Chelsea, by way of Winnesimet ferry; and, as this House are apprehensive that the people of the Country may be exposed to take the small-pox, the said inhabitants of Boston, being suffered indiscriminately to resort into the country, and to such parts as they may choose, and probably some of the said Inhabitants may be in such weak and infirm circumstances as to stand in need of immediate relief, Therefore resolved, That Mr. Freeman, Col. Orne, Mr. Cushing, and Major Smith, with such as the honorable Board shall join, be a committee immediately to repair to Chelsea, to inspect the state and Characters of such inhabitants of Boston, as have or may arrive there from thence; and that the said committee be empowered and ordered to do and direct everything that they shall find absolutely necessary for the safety of the country and the immediate relief of any helpless and indigent persons belonging to said Boston who may arrive at the said Chelsea, and that the said Committee, as soon as may be, acquaint this court of their proceedings in the premises. Sent up for concurrence.²

[In Committee.] July 31, 1775.

To the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Chelsea, — [Recites the foregoing letter.]

It having been Represented to the Great and General Court, now held at Watertown, that the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston are allowed to Come out of that Town to Chelsea by way of Winnisimet ferry, the said Court, from an apprehension that many of the said inhabitants are poor and unable to Remove themselves, and the effects they may have with them to such places as they may be disposed to repair to, and that others may be in weak and infirm Circumstances and stand in need of Immediate Relief; — and also that some may through Carelessness or otherwise be the means of spreading the Small-Pox in the Country; — Appointed us, a Committee to repair to your Town and Inspect the State and Characters of the Inhabitants of Boston who should move out in manner as aforesaid, — & provide against any difficulties therefrom. We the said Committee have attended accordingly and find upon full Enquiry that there is not so much danger of the small-pox as was at first apprehended, and finding that the movement of those people is so slow, that we, the said Committee, cannot, Consistant with our other dutys Expected from us by the Genl. Court, attend in person to the Landing of the said inhabitants, not knowing what length of Time Genl. Gage may take in any degree to perform his Engagements to the inhabitants of that Town.

We, therefore, Impower you or the major part of you and you hereby are Impowered and Directed to Cause a Strict Inquiry of all persons that shall land in your Town from Boston, and, if you suspect that they or their effects are infected with the Small-pox, that you see that they be Cleansed, and all such Indigent persons, who shall arrive from thence and be Recommended by the Committee of Donations to be objects of the Charity of the people, that you Cause them and their effects to be removed to such Towns as have not their proportion of such persons, agreeable to the vote of the Late Congress, and all such persons as are so infirm, as that they Cannot be removed, that you provide for them at the public expence until they Can be removed or until other wise directed by the Genl. Court.

And, if you shall find it needfull, that you impress Carriages, Teams, attendance, and all other necessarys for the effectuating the purposes aforesaid in the most prudent manner.

And that you Lay an account of your Expences, time in carrying this order into execution, before the Genl. Court that whatsoever is Just may be done to you and all such as shall act under you and by your order.

Mr. Spooner, at the same time, brought down the report of the Committee, who was appointed to repair to Chelsea to take care of the inhabitants who might come out of Boston, viz.:

The Committee appointed by the General Court to repair to Chelsea to inspect the state and character of such inhabitants of Boston as have or may arrive there from thence, and to do and direct every thing that they should find absolutely necessary for the safety of the country, and the immediate relief of any helpless and indigent persons belonging to Boston who might arrive at said Chelsea, beg leave to report that they immediately proceeded upon the business to which they were appointed, and on their way to and at Chelsea found sundry of the inhabitants of Boston, who had been allowed to remove, and by them were informed that the small-pox had not lately prevailed in that town, & that General Gage had directed that no inhabitants were permitted to come out on the day that they were there, and that from General Gage's past failure in the performance of his solemn agreements with that town, it was very uncertain whether others might come out, agreeable to the just expectations of the people; they impowered and directed the selectmen & Committee of correspondence of the town of Chelsea or the major part of them to make strict inquiry into the state & circumstances of all persons who should arrive there from Boston, and care & provide for the indigent & guard and secure the country against the small-pox, as in the commission to them sent, (a copy whereof is herewith exhibited) will appear. In the House. December 4, 1775. Eldad Taylor brought down a Letter, informing, that some Deserters reported that a Number of Persons who had been Innoculated were to be sent out of Boston by Gen. Howe, with a design to spread the Small-Pox among the Troops.¹⁰

Resolved, That a committee repair forthwith to Pulling Point, and procure all Intelligence in the Matter in their Power and report to this House.¹¹

This resolve apparently led to the following:

In the House of Representatives, Dec. 6, 1775.

⁹ Mass. Hist. Soc. Proc., vii. 217.

¹⁰ This reflection on Sir William Howe, though not unnatural under the circumstances, was not deserved; for his family was not unfriendly to the Americans, and to his elder brother who fell at Ticonderoga, July 6, 1758, Massachusetts voted a monument in Westminster Abbey. Sir William, brave and able officer, undoubtedly endeavored to maintain the policy of his government; but it was thought at home that his sympathy with the Americans made him half-hearted in his efforts to conquer them. He was in a position which the military policy of his opponents made it impossible for him to occupy with considerations entirely humane. With regard to the transactions under consideration, Frothingham justly says, that “necessity obliged General Howe to promote their departure,” — that is, those above spoken of. — Siege of Boston, 282. Humane arrangements between the British generals and the Boston authorities were early made; but their infraction, doubtless by both parties, led to mutual complaints, and the enforcement of martial law.

Dec. 11, 1775. In the House of Representatives. Ordered, Mr. Cooper, Mr. Pitts, and Colo. Lovel, with such as the Hon'ble Board shall join, be a Committee to take into Consideration a Letter from Thomas Crafts, Junr., concerning the people lately brought from the town of Boston, of Decr. 10, 1775.

The Council concurred, and joined Mr. Chauncy & Mr. Fisher.¹³

This committee reported Dec. 12th. Whereas, that the Inhabitants lately come out of Boston to Point Shirley are under difficult circumstances for want of Fuel, and that two of sd. Inhabitants are now broke out with the Small Pox. —

Resolved, That the Com'tee, at sd. By several resolves between Dec. 27, 1775, and Jan. 30, 1776, the General Court provided for the payment of £300. for the transportation of the inhabitants of Boston from Winnisimmet Ferry to Point Shirley, and their care and support while there.¹⁶

December 27, 1775. The House directed the Receiver-General to pay the committee, £100, to provide for the poor of Boston, sent or to be sent to Point Shirley; and Jan. 30, 1776, £200 (raised to £300, Jan. 30, 1776,) for those at Chelsea, and for preventing of the Small-Pox. Their report of expenditures was made, April 11.¹⁷

Ordered, that Lieut. Though with the termination of the Siege of Boston, March 17, 1776, the British army evacuated the town, the Small-Pox did not, and was long a cause of anxiety to the people of Chelsea, who, in town meeting, passed the following votes:

March 30, 1778: Not to allow of an Inoculating Hospital for the small-pox to be set up in any house in the town of Chelsea.²⁰

April 8, 1778: To have a smoke-house, or room to smoke persons in, at Winnisimmet Ferry, in order to prevent any person or persons coming out of the town of Boston from spreading the small-pox in any town in the Country. Voted, in the affirmative by a large majority. Then the moderator desired the Doctors to make some proposals to the town, and they proposed to give the town thirty pounds, or so much per head as they could agree, but the town would not accept it; then they proposed to give the town forty pounds, and they would not accept it. Then the meeting was adjourned to Capt. Stowers', and after some debate upon the matter the town voted to reconsider the vote respecting forty pounds. Then the vote was put, if the Doctors would give the town forty pounds, and pay the money by the first day of May next with interest, the town would consent for them to inoculate for one year, and they agreed to it. Voted, Capt. Samuel Sargent, Joshua Cheever, and Capt. Green a Committee to see that the Doctors were put under the same restrictions and regulations that they were the last year.²⁴

TAXATION AND POLITICAL AFFAIRS

IN the following chapter I shall treat, provisionally at least, taxation, municipal and state, independence, and the formation of state and national constitutions, as matters of politics; and include in it all the recorded sayings and doings of the people of Chelsea, not already given, beginning a little before and continuing through and somewhat after the Revolutionary period.

28 February, 1765. A petition of Mr. Samael Floyd, representative of the town of Chelsea, in behalf of said town, representing the unequal burden they labor under with respect to public taxes: he prays the consideration of the Court thereon that they may be relieved.

Committed to Mr. Whitney, Col. Saltonstall, & Mr. Dix, to consider [and] report. March, the committee reported to refer to the May session, which was done.¹

May 27, 1767

To his Excellency Francis Bernard, Esq^r: Captain-general and Governor in chief, in & over his Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay. The honorable, his Majesty's Council & house of Representatives, in General Court assembled, this 27th May, 1767.

The Petition of Mess^{rs}. Tho^s. & Sam^l: Pratt, a Com^{tee} of the Town of Chelsea, & in the behalf of said Town, most humbly sheweth —

That the real Destresses of the impoverished Town of Chelsea, through a very unequal proportion of publick Taxes, together with an unexpected burden this present year, are such, that we conceive all impartial Reason must allow, justly claim Relief from this honorable Court.

In the year 1739, the Town was incorporated into a Township, and the year follow^g a Valuation of Estates was taken, when, for the want of some person to Represent the poverty of the infant Town, it had such an unequal Weight of Taxes imposed & Continued for a Course of years, as laid the foundation for the distresses it is now groan^g & sink^g under.

In the year 1748, a Memorial to this honorable Court obtained some Relief, but in the year 1750, when a Valuation was again taken, the unfortunate Town, by some oversight or other, had that part of the burden added, that was taken off in 1748, and continued till the year 1760; so that, for the Term of 19 years, the unhappy Town paid twenty shillings, as your petitioners humbly conceive, upon the thousand pound, above its equal proportion, which has so reduced the Town, notwithstanding the utmost diligence and Frugality of its Inhabitants, as justly astonishes all acquainted with its present poverty & distress, but unacquainted with the Cause of them. The like Instance your petitioners conceive was never known in the Province: Nor ever a petition of the like kind prefer'd to this honorable Court, dictated from more real distress.²

Your petitioners, therefore, humbly pray, that in Justice to the Oppressed & Compassion to the miserable, this honorable Court would consider our Grievances, and by grant'g us an order on the province Treasurer, or in Some other Method your Wisdom shall dictate, refund, in what proportion you shall think proper, that sum we have so unequally paid, and w^{ch} has so much impoverished us; that the sink^g Town may be saved from Ruin. — And your petitioners, as in Duty bound, shall ever pray. —

And again,

May 28, 1770. Chose Thos. Pratt, Capt. Jonathan Green, and Mr. Samuel Floyd, a committee to wait on the General Court, to get some relief from our Taxes, by reason that the Valuation is likely to come on this present year.

Nov. 1770, Chelsea was fined £7, for neglect in not choosing some person to represent her in the General Court; but this fine was remitted the next June, on the petition of Thomas Pratt, by reason of "the smallness of said [town] & the poverty of its inhabitants."⁴

March 13, 1775. The town of Chelsea's proportion of the Province tax, assessed by the General Court, in 1774, Nineteen pounds, fifteen shillings, and eleven pence.

Some time after 1770, dissatisfied with the participation in their local affairs by non-resident proprietors under false pretexts, the following manifesto was issued:

Whereas, in and by an act made in the 14th year [1773] of his present Majesties' Reign, Intitled an act in further addition to and Explanation of an act Intitled an act for Regulation of townships, Choice of town offesors, &c.

It is provided that the Value of Lands Leased Shall not be Reconned to quallify the tertenant but to quallify the Leasor, if he be an Inhabitant in Such town, parish, or precinet. Yet, although Sd. act provids that the Value of Lands Leased Shall not be Reconned to quallify the ter-tenant, but to quallify the Leasor, if he be an Inhabitant in Such town, parish, or precinet: Desining then that have Sons, Grandsons, hired men, and other persons that Live with them, Do order their Sons & Grandsons, hired men, and other persons that Live with them, to Give in an Invoice to the assessors, of part of their Estates, although the owners of the Estate Lives in the Same town: and, yet, don't Lease any part of their Estates to their Sons, Grandsons, hired men, and other persons that Live with them, nor Let them Either Improve their Estates, nor have any of the profitts thereof, yet make them Voters in town affairs, minding at the same time to Reserve of their own Estates anough to make the owner a Voter too: So that Some men that have Estates that are Ratable in a List of Valuation, but 10S., Do So Divide their Estates to those that Live with them, that they make five Voters, and the owner a Voter too: and those that are Rated in a List of Valuation for their own Estates 15s. or 20s., and have no Sons nor Servants of age, and are Honest, Can put in but one Vote in one affair: Which by many is Esteemed a Great hardship, that the Number of persons in a town, though they own nothing in the town, and are moving men, and Care nothing about the welfare of a town, Should Rule, and not be owners of the Estates of a town, that must bare the burdain of a town, &c: which, in many towns, proves Very Detrimental and hurtfull to towns, precincts, and parishes. Especialy to Little and poor ones, by such forced Voters Voting away town's benefitts, Commons, town's Stocks of money, and other things into their own hands, or Spending up the Same, which otherwise would be kept for future Strengthening, as well as present Easement, of town's parishes, & precincts.

Therefore, it is Desired that it may be Enacted that no man may be Deemed a Lawfull Voter in town, Distrect, parish, and pre-cent affairs, but Such only whose own Estates in fee Simple is in the Town, &C: where they Live, and are Rated in the List of Valuation (besides the pole) with faculty, Income of money, and Gain of traid, 20d.

And that those that are assessors of any town, &C: who have made any List of Valuation that Shall or may be Disputed, Shall under oath, at or before the meeting of any town, &c., if Requested by any, Dertermine what part of the Last List of Valuation was for Estates, owned in fee Simple, and Lodge the Same with the town Clerk.

and that for the future all Lists of Valuation that Shall be made, the assessors makeing the same Shall make a Distinct Collomn for Estates in fee Simple, owned by those to whom they may be Set (under oath, to be adminestred by a Justice of the peace, and in Such towns, &c: where there Dwells no Justice of the peace: by the town, &c.: Clerk). Lands Leased for more than 7 years and mortgag'd Lands excepted.

Chelsea followed most other towns when, June 3, 1776, it Voted to instruct [its] Representatives, according to a Resolve of the House, pass'd May 10th, that if the Honourable Congress should for the safety of the said Colonies, declare them independent of the Kingdom of Great Britain, they, the said inhabitants, will solemnly engage with their lives and fortunes to support them in the measure.⁵

In June, 1776, it was proposed in the General Court, that a committee should be appointed to prepare a form of government, and such a committee was appointed; but the business was not proceeded in, as the opinion was generally expressed that the subject should originate with the people, who were the proper authorities to attend to this matter.⁶

Chelsea, November 25, 1776, voted that they would not give their consent, that the present House of Representatives of this State, together with the Council, should not enact any form of Government for this State, and voted to chuse a member for that business.⁷

March 10, 1777. Chose Capt. Samuel Sprague, Lieut. Jonathan Williams, Mr. Richard Shute, Mr. Joseph Green, and Mr. Edward Walf, to be a committee of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety, agreeable to the Resolve of the General Court of this State, February 6, 1777.⁸

The subject of a constitution recurred the next year, when Chelsea, May 26, 1777, voted to adjourn the affair relative to the establishing a form of Government, to the next meeting.⁹

At the May session of the General Court, in 1777, a committee was appointed to prepare a constitution, which was reported early the next year, and finally rejected by the people.

The action of Chelsea on this subject is contained in the following votes:

April 2, 1778. The Constitution and form of Government for the State of Massachusetts Bay, agreed upon by the Convention of said State, February 28th, 1778, was read at this Town's Meeting, for the Town's consideration, to be acted upon at some future Town meeting.¹⁰

May 29, 1778. The vote was called, to see if the Town would act upon the Constitution and form of government, and passed in the negative by a great majority.¹¹

Chelsea persistently turned to what she deemed her over-taxation, as appears from the following votes:

September 28, 1778. Voted to choose a committee to wait on the General Court, to get an abatement of Chelsea State tax. Lieut. Thomas Pratt, Capt. Samuel Sprague, and Capt. Jonathan Green were chosen.¹²

December 17, 1778. Voted, that the former Committee, Lieut. Thos. Pratt, Capt. Samuel Sprague, and Capt. Jonathan Green, wait on the Great and General Court to get an abatement of the Province Tax laid on the town of Chelsea by the Court in the year 1775.¹³

The following is the petition of the town's committee, and the action of the General Court thereon:

To the Hon/ble Council and Hon/ble House of Representatives, in General Court Assembled.

The petition of Thomas Pratt, Samuel Sprague, & Jonathan Green in behalf of the Town of Cheleey, in the County of Suffolk, Humbly sheweth, —

That in the year 1775 there was Laid on said Town a State Tax to the amount of £99.3.7¼, which Sum Never Since hath ben Assest, by Reason at that time the Greater Part of the inhabitence of said Town was Driven from their farmes and have Greatly Suffer'd, not only by the Enemy but by their own army, Great numbers of which were incampt in said Town, which naturlly

Chelcey, Feb/r 3/d, 1779.

The General Court Resolved, That the prayer of the Petitioners be so far granted as that the present Assessors be and they are hereby directed and impowered, to assess the Inhabitants of the said Town of Chelsey, the sum of £99. 3. 7. 1, it being the sum Laid on said Town as a State Tax in the Year 1775, which sum said Town have by some Means hitherto neglected to assess, or collect of said Inhabitants, And the Treasurer is hereby directed to issue his Warrants to the Constables of said Chelsey, in due form of Law, for collecting the same.¹⁴

March 8, 1779. Chose Capt. Samuel Sprague, Abijah Hastings, and Samuel Floyd Committee of Correspondence.¹⁵

In 1779, when our affairs were at a low ebb, and the people dissatisfied with high prices of commodities, in consequence of the depreciation of paper money, Congress asked for a loan of twenty millions to maintain the credit of her issues. Instead of convening the General Court a convention was called, which met at Concord July 14, and passed many resolutions, among which were several fixing the prices of merchandise, produce, and labor.

At the same time, the people were meditating a convention to form a Constitution. The action of Chelsea is shown by the following votes:

August 2, 1779. Voted, unanimously, and fully approved of, and concurred with, the determination of the Convention, held at Concord the 14th of July last, relative to the prices of the articles stated by the Convention.¹⁶

Same. Voted, that the Committee of correspondence to take care that the articles of Convention be strictly complied with.¹⁷

Aug. 2, 1779. Chose Mr. Richard Shute, a delegate to meet the Convention at Concord, the first Wednesday of October next, and Capt. Jonathan Green, to meet at Cambridge, the first day of September next, to frame a Constitution or form of government, agreeable to a resolve of the General Court.¹⁸

August 12, 1779. Chose a Committee of three persons to instruct their delegate that was chosen to meet at Cambridge, to frame a constitution or form of government for the Massachusetts Bay. Lieut. Thos. Pratt, Samuel Sprague, and Joseph Green were chosen such committee.¹⁹

To Capt'n Jona: Green.

Sir :

As we have appointed you a delegate to represent us in the Convention to be held at Cambridge for the special purpose of constructing a Form of Government for this State, thereby reposing a trust in you of vast importance to ourselves, and to our posterity, we therefore feel ourselves bound to give you some special Instructions upon the Subject.

As we wish for a free and righteous Government, you are to use your best endeavors that such an one be formed as shall secure & preserve the great essentials of liberty, be respectable in itself, capable of acting with vigour and dispatch, preserving the legislative and executive branches distinct, containing usefull Checks in the legislative, well-guarded against bribery and Corruption, not resting the supream power in any one body of men, or indeed in any hands whatever, excepting for a short term of time.

An equal representation being much the essence of a Government perfectly free, which is impracticable to found merely on Samuel Sargeant, Abijah Hastings, James Stowers, Samuel Floyd, Jr., Joseph Cheever, and Jonathan Hawks a committee to settle the price of the produce and labor and all other things in Chelsea. August 23. Voted to accept of the report of the Committee with some amendment, that was chosen to regulate the prices. Chose Capt. Jonathan Green, Capt. Samuel Sprague, Capt. Samuel Sargeant, Lieut. James Stowers, and Benjamin Henderson a committee to take care that the people comply with the articles. Town Rec., ii. 48.

property, you will therefore endeavour that such an equal representation shall obtain, as shall be estimated from numbers, esteeming it righteous that the same given number in any part of the State should have an equal Voice with the same number in another part. — We therefore recommend this as an object you are to keep in constant view.

The rights of Conscience we hold too sacred to be controuled by human Authority, and therefore while you avoid infringements upon these rights, you will by no means destroy the restraints and usefulness of religion in society, as we esteem the stated, orderly public worship of God of high importance to Society, and feel an attachment to y^e scriptural principles of our pious fore-Fathers, yet, not regarding an establishment of modes and ceremonies, but thinking it highly necessary that the public worship of God should be supported in every town & parish capable of supporting it, you are therefore by no means, to give your consent to any measure that shall tend to overset the public worship of God in this State, or subvert the antient usages and wholesome laws that in this respect have hitherto obtained; being sensible that great advantages in knowledge and morals have arisen herefrom.

Adhering to the spirit and intention of these instructions, we wish you the divine presence & assistance in the weighty business we have committed to your care.

SAMLL. SPRAGUE,

JOSEPH GREEN,

Chelsea again appealed to the General Court for relief in the matter of taxation, in the following memorial:

March 8, 1780

STATE OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY

To the Hon'ble Counsel and House of Representatives, in General Court assembled, March y^e 8th: 1780.

The Petition of the Selectmen of the town of Chelsea, in Behalf of their town, Humbly Shew that in the time that the British forces were in Boston the Inhabitants of the Southerly or Lower part of the town of Chelsea were ordered by General Washington to Remove their Stock of Cattle, horses, and Sheep Back to some more Distant place from the British army. Agreeable to said orders, said Cretures were Removed back to the upper part of

Chelsea, and into other towns where said Cretures were so short of feed, that they broke over the fences, and Devoured Several Corn-fields, and Broke into and Spoiled a Considerable part of the mowing Land. And, by the Stocks being kept away from the Lower part of the town through the Summer Season, the feed thereof was Lost, and several of the Cattle and Sheep that were Drove Back were Starved and Lost, and the Inhabitants of the Lower part of the town were obliged to Carry back the Little hay they Cut and the other produce of their farms into other towns, Six, Seven & some Eight miles, where they could Get places to keep themselves, their Stocks, and hay at, with a Great Expense; Also, a Considerable number of housen and Barns were so torn to pieces by the Soldiree that General Washington sent to Chelsea, that it has since cost the Inhabitants of the Lower part of the town Very Considerable Sums of money to Repair them, barely fit for use, and Several Good houses were so spoiled by said Soldiers that they are not Repaired to this day, nor Indeed are worth Repairing, but must be Rebuilt, and one Large Barn, 30 feet wide, and above 60 Long, the Soldiers Burnt all up for fire-wood, besides a Great many hundred Rales and posts that fenced in Considerable of the Inclosures of the town said Soldiers Burnt, and thereby Laid a Considerable part of the town Common for some years, and also said Soldiers Destroyed and Eat a Considerable part of the Corn, fruit, and Sauce of the town that year, and, although Several towns that suffered in the same manner that Chelsea did were Considered by Large abatements in their State taxes Ever Since, Some near one half, others about a third or quarter part, but the town of Chelsea has not had one single penny abated in their tax; And, further, at the time when the former Valuation was taken, there was then a Certain part of our town, Called Pleasant point, where there was then about twenty Good Dwelling-houses besides other Buildings, and above twenty families and as many Rateable Poles that carried on the Fishery business, and now there is but three or four families there, and one of them so Very poor as not to be able to pay one penny of taxes, either to State or town, and the Greater part of said housen are torn Down and Gon, and those few that Remain are so torn to pieces and Destroyed that they are not fit for even the very poorest of people to Dwell in. Considering all these Disadvantages, to our Great Surprise, when the Valuation was taken Last year, when we might have Reasonably Expected to be abated in our State tax on account of our town's worth being so Greatly Lessened, ten or fifteen Shillings on the thousand pounds, yet notwithstanding all said Great Impoverishments, to our Great Astonishment, we found that there was Laid on our town ten shillings on a thousand pounds more than we paid in the time of prosperity. Although ever since Chelsea was a town, for about forty years, we never before now paid but about a fortieth part so much as the town of Boston of State taxes, and now Chelsea pays about a twenty-third part so much as Boston does, and although Noodle's Island, which belongs to Boston, is worth above three times so much as any one farm in Chelsea, yet we are Credably Informed that we have several farms in Chelsea that Either one pays more taxes than that Great Island does, and, as we have Schooling to pay for, and a number of poor to maintain, and the Chief of our wood, both for our fires and fencing, to buy at near as Dear a price as in Boston, under all said Imbarishments we are so Extreemly Impoverished, that we are not able to Subsist to pay such a heavy State tax as is now Laid upon us, but must Sink under the same; therefore your petitioners humbly pray that your Hon'rs would take our Deplorable Circumstances into your wise Consideration, and Compassionate the Little and poor town of Chelsea under our Great Burdens, and Ease our town as in your Great wisdom you shall think to be Just and Equitable, that we may Injoy Equail privileges with our neighbours, which your humble petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray. — March ye 4th: 1780.

SAMLL. SPRAGUE,	} Selectmen of Chelsea
DANIEL PRATT.

Furthermore, —

And the Value of our Estates, by Reason of the Long and Expensive Ferry we have to pass over with our persons and produce, causes the price of our Lands, and the produce thereof, now (and it has always been so) to be as Low, or Lower, though of Equail quallity, than the Lands in towns that are 15 or 20 miles from Boston: for Example, the Last farm that was Sold in Chelsea, Before the present, was after it had been on Sale near 7 years, said farm that Contained 414 acres of Land, with two Dwelling-houses & 2 barns besides out-houses, within a mile of the meeting-house, was Sold for £1,250 Starling, which was not more than 50^s per acre, first taking out the worth of the Buildings, which were then Valueable.

And another Disadvantage Chelsea Labours under is that we are obliged to Sell our English hay to pay for our fire-wood, & our wood costs us as much as wood Costs in Boston, and by Selling our hay from our farms, makes our Land poor: whereas, the towns that Carry their hay to Boston, when the hay is unloded, they Lode their Carts with dung & carry the dung to their farms, & so keep their farms Rich, which we cannot do; further, as our ferry is so troublesome to pass, the Greater part of our town Carry their produce to Salem & Marblehead, which is 13 or 14 miles Distance from the middle of our town, Because it is Cheeper to transport it so far than to Cross the ferry to Boston.

furthermore, if we have but a Dozen of Eggs, if we Carry them to Boston we pay the ferryman ten dollars for one man's passage to and from Boston, which Devours a Considerable part, if not all, that we Carry to the market at Boston.

And, as to English hay, which is the principle article that we can Spare, to make money with, as we are obliged to Serue it: it always has been the custom to pay one fifth part of the price of the hay to those that buy the hay Loose, for their Serueing & Carrying it to Boston, & Diuers of our people have 2:3, or 4 mile to Carry their hay in Carts Loose, to those that buy in malden, to Serue & Carry to Boston.

and as the Cost of Carrying the produce of our Lands to market is so Great, it make the Value of our Lands to be no more than the Lands in other towns that are 15 or 20 miles from Boston.

the Repairs of our Beaches & Loss of our Lands . . .

On the question of adopting the State Constitution, Chelsea passed the following votes:

May 9, 1780. Voted to choose a committee to consider the Constitution, and make remarks. Voted, Rev. Phillips Payson, Lieut. Hastings, Mr. Richard Shute, Mr. Joseph Green, and Capt. Samuel Clark as a committee.²⁰

May 9, 1780. Voted, to accept the Declaration of Rights by Yeas and Nays (eleven yeas, one nay), with this amendment, p. 12, article 16, add, But as its freedom is not such as to exempt the printer or printers from being answerable for false, defamatory, and abusive publication.

Voted, to accept the name of this Commonwealth, the Massachusetts. Voted, to accept the form of government with the amendment, eleven yeas, and one nay. Alterations and corrections in the form of government; first, that all shall be Voters for a representative, Senators, Governor, &c., that pay taxes, and are twenty-one years of age. Secondly, that the word[s] order & direct in the paragraph respecting the Governor and Council be changed for the word[s] Consult and Advise. Thirdly, that the scheme of Rotation be adopted in the principal departments of Government. Fourthly, that the Clergy be exempted from all offices in the civil department. Fifthly, that in page 18, l 24, the word[s] at the Least, be blotted out. Sixthly, that in page 22, add at the bottom, Excepting Vacancies by the choice of Counselors. Seventhly, that no person shall be a member of Congress for this State, unless he possesses a right of freehold, and Estate sufficient to qualify him for a seat in the Senate double to a Senator. Eighthly, in page 20, add, or in the Town Clerk's absence, in the presence of the Selectmen only. Voted, if our delegate, Capt. Jonathan Green, shall not be able to procure these alterations and corrections, we leave it at his Option to vote in Convention, by the best of his judgment, either for or against frame of government, that shall finally be obtained in the Honorable Convention, without referring of it again to the people at large.²¹

4th September, 1780. The town legally warned and assembled to vote for Governor, Lieut. Governor, and six Senators. Vote for Governor; twenty for Hon. John Hancock, and one for Hon. James Bowdoin. Vote for Lieut. Governor; 19 for Hon. Benjamin Greenleaf. Vote for Senators; 18 each for Jeremiah Powell, Benjamin Austin, Jabez Fisher, Benjamin White, Samuel Niles, and Richard Cranch.

The famous Committee of Correspondence seems to have been kept alive long after the purpose of its formation had been accomplished.

March 12, 1781. Voted, and chose Mr. Richard Shute, Lieut. Abijah Hastings, and Mr. Samuel Floyd a committee of Correspondence, Inspection, and Safety.²²

March 12, 1781. Chose Capt. Jonathan Green and Samuel Watts, a Committee to meet at Dedham on a Conference. [I have not yet learned the purpose of this conference.]²³

It would not be safe to assume, as I gladly would, that the following vote, and others of the like character, were the unprompted action of the town; for many other towns in remote parts of the state passed like votes in almost identical words. They probably were passed on the suggestion of that arch-patriot, Samuel Adams, whose special activity was aroused by the vital importance of the fisheries.

3 January, 1782. Voted to instruct their representative to do the best of his abilities to retain fishery to the Northern States, if there should be a treaty for Peace.²⁸

23rd January, 1782. To the Hon'ble Senate and Hon'ble House of Representatives in General Court assembled, this 23d of January, 1782. The Petitions of Samuel Sprague, Samuel Watts, Samuel Sargeant, Jonathan Green, and Richard Shute, in behalf of the town of Chelsea, humbly Shew that when the British army was in Boston, the Greater part of the Inhabitants of the town of Chelsea were ordered by General Washington to Remove their Stocks of Cretures Back from their farms, by which means they Lost Some of their Cattle, horses, and Sheep, and the Rest almost Starved, and also they Lost the Greater part of the feed of their farms, and their Corn, Sause, and fruit was Distroyed by the Soldiers of our army Very Considerably, and about half the Buildings of our town were Greatly Damaged, and Some of them pull'd Down and Burnt, none of which are well Repaired or Rebuilt to this Day; and many of them are not worth Repairing; also much of the fences of the town were Burnt by said Soldiers, and our farms Laid Common thereby; and although Several towns that Suffered in Like manner were abated part of their State tax for Several years after, but Chelsea was not abated one penny, although Chelsea Suffered about as much in proportion to their number and Value as some of them towns Did: when the Valuation was taken about the year 1772 there was part of our town, Called pleasant point, that had about twenty Good Dwelling-houses, some stores, ware-houses, and Barns, and Some Vessels at that place for Carrying on the fishiry Business, and their was at that part of the town about twenty families, and as many Rateable polls able to pay publick taxes; all Said Stores, warehouses, Barns, and Vessels are Lost and Gon, or of Little or no worth, and Great part of said Dwelling-houses are torn or fallen Down, and those few that Remain are so torn to pieces and out of Repair, that their is not any fit for the poorest of people to Live in; so that their is but two families and two Rateable polls that are able to pay any publick taxes there. Considering all these Disadvantages, to our Great Surprise when the Last Valuation was taken, when we thought we might Resonably have expected, Considering how much our town was Lessened, to have had an abatement in our State tax of ten or fifteen shillings on the thousand pounds, but to our astonishment we find that there is Eighteen Shillings in the thousand pound put on our town, more than what we paid in the time of prosperity in the year 1772, when before our tax was high, when the town was worth a Seventh or Eighth part more than it is now: But, as we find that the hon'ble Committee on Valuation Included our town in the six next adjacent towns to Boston, as though we were as advantagesly Situated to Carry our produce into Boston market as the adjacent towns on the other side of Boston, and so put Considerable on our town for that Reason; whereas it Costs our Inhabitants about Double the Cost to Carry their produce into Boston than it Does those people on the other Side that Live eight or ten miles from Boston, as we don't Raise so much Grain as is Consumed within our town: Our English hay is the principle article we have to procure money with, and we have on an Everage two or three miles to Carry it on Carts to be Served, and then it costs one fifth part of the price at the market for Serveing and Boating it to Boston; by Reason whereof, a Considerable part of our hay is Carried to Lynn, Salem, and Marvelhead, and Some Round through Malden, Medford, Cambridge, and Roxbury, twenty miles, and we are so Distant that we have not the advantage of Carrying home a Lode of Dung, when we have unloded our hay, which makes our farms poor, and those on the other side of Boston that are near make their farms Rich by Carrying out Inrichment for their Lands from Boston; and as we have So Costly, Long, uncertain, and hazardous a ferry to pass over to Boston, with our other produce, or to Carry it twenty miles to Boston, or fourteen or fifteen miles to Salem or marvelhead, where we Do Carry the Greater half of our produce, that we Can Spare; for which Reason, our Land is of as Small worth as though they Lay fourteen or fifteen miles from Boston; for Instance, the Last farm that was Sold in Chelsea within one mile of the meeting-house after it had been on Sale near Seven years, which said farm, that Contained 414 acres, was Sold for twelve hundred and fifty pounds Starlin, which Exclusive of the Value of the Buildings thereon, was not more than three pound per acre, and the other Land in Chelsea is Generaly Sold much after the Same Rate, Some for more and Some for Less: Above one third part of the Land in our town is Salt Marsh, which Bares but one Crop in a year, and Some hundred acres thereof Does not Bare half a tun on an acre, one year with another, which will but barly pay for Giting the Same; besides, the Beaches annually Brake in upon our marshes and cover some of them with Stones, and the waves of the Sea wears away Some of our upland, which makes our town Less, inasmuch as we are not favoured with the Books of Valuation we are not able to Say how much per cent. we pay more than other towns, but compairing our town's former and Later taxes with the former and Later taxes of the Neighbouring towns, we find that our town is, in the Last State tax, more than Sixteen times so much as it was in the State tax ten or twelve years ago, and the towns of Lynn, Malden, and Reading, that are next ajoyning to Chelsea, are not eleven times so much in the Last State tax as they were ten or twelve years ago, and, although there is Less put upon the County of Suffolk in the Last Valuation than formerly, yet Compairing with the other towns in the Same County of Suffolk with our town, we find that the town of Medfield, that is not Eleven times so much as they were in the year 1770, and that the town of Bellingham is not Seven times so much in the Last State tax as they were in the year 1770, and the town of Boston, also are but Seven times so much in the Last State tax as they were in said year 1772; and a number of other towns in the County of Suffolk are taxed in about the Same manner; and further the town of Boston, before the present war, paid above forty-two times as much as Chelsea, but now the town of Boston does not pay twenty times so much as Chelsea does, we suppose that those towns of Boston, Medfield, Belingham, Lynn, Malden, and Reading are all taxed Right, but it might be Certain that Chelsea has been taxed Very Wrong for a Great number of years past, or Else are now: Very extraordinarily to[o], we must think that a Great part of the Land in the neighbouring towns to Chelsea is of as much Value as the Land in Chelsea, though they are not taxed but about half so much as the Lands in Chelsea are, it was said by a Gentleman that hired Noodle's Island, that one farm in Chelsea was Rated more to the State in the year 1780, than Said Great Island was, though said Island was worth more than any three of the Best farms in Chelsea, which we Did not believe; that one farm in Chelsea was Rated more than Said Island, but upon Inquiry we found it to be true: as the town of Chelsea have hired Considerable of money to pay their publick charges, which the town now owes, and are not now able to pay it, for the town of Chelsea has all along Since the present war Seasonably, by hireing money and otherways, Complid with and Done Every thing towards the war that they were Called upon for by authority untill now. But as our town are Sattisfied that they are (we Conclude, through a mistake) burdened with a much heavier State tax then our proportion Compaired with other towns, and than we are able to pay, and as we Conclude the occasion of this heavy burden being Laid on our town happened through a mistake in not Calculating the Value of our town Right. By abating so much of our State tax as shall make our town's taxes equail to other towns, and so to Remain untill another Valuation shall be taken.

All these things Considered, we Cannot but be fully Satisfied that this Hon'ble Court will Immediately Rectify Such a plain and Evedent mistake, and in your Great wisdom will Relieve our town by abating so much of our State tax as shall make our town's Circumstunces Equail with other towns: that we may not Ruined, Sink under our present heavy burdens, which we must unless Released; which your humble petitioners, as in Duty bound, Shall ever pray.

This petition appears to have received favorable action of the General Court at the next session, in a Resolve (Chap. 118 a), approved November 2, 1782:

On the Petitions of the towns of Dorchester. Cohasset. and Chelsea. setting forth that they are set too high on the last Valuation, and praying that they may be abated, —

Resolved. That twelve Shillings be abated to the Town of Dorchester, four shillings to the Town of Cohasset, and three shillings to the Town of Chelsea, in the Thousand pounds, on the said Valuation amounting in the whole to Nineteen Shillings. These abatements, by the same Resolve, were apportioned to certain other towns in specified rates.²⁹

While Chelsea was endeavoring to relieve herself from what she regarded as unequal taxation by the State, her records show an equitable disposition to meet cases of hardship among her own citizens from local taxation, and I cite a few among many cases, selecting two which record interesting facts which have not otherwise come within my notice:

1782, March 14. Voted to forgive Mr. Bootman's two sons in Captivity their poll tax in Mr. Shute's List.³⁰

March 21. Voted to forgive John Butman's rates in Capt. Pratt's List.

May 21. Voted to abate William Boardman's part of the tax for schooling his children the present year.³¹

Senators were chosen by State Legislatures. Accordingly, by order of the General Court the town voted December 18, 1788, and cast twelve votes for Samuel Adams, and seven for Oliver Wendell for representative; and for two Electors, — Benjamin Lincoln had thirteen, Cotton Tufts twelve, Thomas Dawes and Fisher Ames four each, and Oliver Wendell one.⁴²

CHAPTER LI

CHELSEA BRIDGE AND SALEM TURNPIKE

THIS enterprise was started in 1795 or 1796, and an Act of the General Court was obtained in 1801.¹ Moses Brown, of Beverly, was chairman of the committee for the petitioners.

In a letter to Brown by William H. Sumner, June 5, 1801, he strongly urged that the Salem Turnpike should run through East Boston, and so connect with Boston by bridge. The chief argument for the adoption of this plan was that, instead of running through Charlestown, it was the saving of three quarters of a mile in distance, in time, and the toll of Charlestown Bridge. But the scheme did not find favor.

A few years earlier it was proposed to build a bridge from Noddle's Island to Chelsea, and a ferry to Boston, and this project was commended in the Massachusetts Mercury, June 7, 1796, by a "Bostonian."²

² This writer suggested that as a bridge proposed from the east point of Charlestown to accommodate the eastern travellers would soon cause that part of that town "to be filled with wharves and inhabitants"; and more especially so, if a good turnpike-road be made the shortest route from Newhall's Tavern, in Lynn; thought, perhaps, that the object would be better attained, particularly for Boston and the eastern country, by erecting a bridge, at small expense, from Chelsea to Noddle's Island, and opening a good ferry from said Island to Boston. Some parts of that Island, he said, were extremely well calculated for dry docks, at very little expense, where vessels of any tonnage would be free from danger of fire or storms. He also suggested that if stores, with proper cellars, be erected, most of the heavy goods, and naval stores, particularly, would soon be deposited there for safety; and any branch of manufactures might be established, and in a short time a very considerable settlement would take place, which of course would extend the size of Boston, the Island being a part of it. These expectations of a writer, in the year 1796, have since been more than realized in respect to East Boston, and Charlestown, itself, which he feared, by the improvements proposed in 1796, would necessarily increase Charlestown to the detriment of Boston.

East Boston Company was incorporated, March 25, 1833, and the history of East Boston, as forming an important part of the city proper, began with its formation. Its object was that of improving Noddle's Island, which was its property. The permanent establishment of a ferry to the city was early deemed a matter of vital importance to the interests of the Island, and to aid the project a single-rail railroad was started in 1834, and crossed the marsh, in which the posts, sustaining the rail, were sunk; but the enterprise, in spite of its novelty, proved a failure. Next in time came the hotel, known as the Maverick House, and the Island soon became populous. The history of this land enterprise may be read with interest to-day. Manufacturing establishments were begun on a large scale, and numerous private dwellings were built.

General Sumner,³ in Chapter XVI., under public improvements, gives a history of the ferries, beginning with the East Boston ferry. The trustees of the Winnisimmet Ferry, or Chelsea Ferry, objected to this new ferry, under the impression that it would injure the property of the Chelsea Ferry, and interfere with its ancient rights. The scheme of the East Boston Ferry was sustained, in emergencies, by the East Boston Company, and later by that company and the Eastern Railroad Company, and in 1852 it became the property of a new company known by the name of the "East Boston Ferry Company," and the City of Boston was at liberty, at any time during the continuance of its charter, to purchase it. Later, a new ferry, under the name of the "People's Ferry," was a second line of communication between the City and East Boston.

A bridge, called Chelsea Free Bridge, was built between East Boston and Chelsea over the creek between the two places, by the East Boston Company, whose history has been briefly given. On March 28, 1834, an act of incorporation was granted. The bridge was to be well built, and with a draw for the passage of vessels. "Provided always, that if, at any time hereafter, the proprietors of said bridge shall lay out, or cause to be laid out and made, any road from the Chelsea end of said bridge to any road whatsoever within the limits of the town of Chelsea, the inhabitants of said town shall never be chargeable with any cost or expense whatsoever for the laying out, making, repairing, or maintaining such road.”⁴

“Early in 1834, committees met on the part of the Salem Turnpike Corporation and the Chelsea Bridge Corporation, and made arrangements for the continuation of the road from the free bridge to the turnpike, thus opening a communication with Chelsea and the country north and east of it.”⁵ The construction was begun in June, 1834, and it was opened to public travel in May, 1835. “The road from the bridge to the Salem Turnpike was called the ‘Eastern Avenue’; it was about $1\frac{5}{8}$ miles long, and up to the time of its first public opening, had cost over \$12,000.”⁶ The bridge eventually was taken by the city of Boston, and by Chelsea, one half by each, and laid out as a county road.⁷

REV. DR. TUCKERMAN'S PASTORATE

FROM the Church Records kept by Dr. Tuckerman,¹ the following items of ecclesiastical history are gathered:

At a regular church-meeting, held in the meeting-house, June 28, 1801, of which Rev. Peter Thacher, D.D., of Boston, was moderator, Mr. Joseph Tuckerman was unanimously chosen their pastor; and October 12, the town having concurred, Nov. 4 was appointed for the ordination, and the following churches were invited to assist: of Boston, Rev. Dr. Lathrop's, Rev. Dr. West's, Rev. Dr. Thacher's, and Rev. Dr. Eliot's; of Charlestown, Rev. Dr. Morse's; of Dedham, Rev. Mr. Thacher's; of Lynn, Rev. Mr. Thacher's; and of Malden, Rev. Mr. Green's. The ecclesiastical council met at the house of Mr. William Eustis, Nov. 4, 1801, chose Dr. West, moderator, and Mr. Aaron Green, scribe. Having examined the proceedings, and heard Mr. Tuckerman's confession of faith, it was voted to proceed to his ordination. The public performances were as follows: Introductory prayer, by Rev. Dr. Thacher; Sermon, by Rev. Mr. Thacher of Dedham, from Deut. 6, 6 and 7; Charge, by Rev. Dr. West; Fellowship of the Churches, by Rev. Mr. Green, and Concluding prayer, by Rev. Dr. Eliot.

Chelsea, Nov. 4, 1801.

Attest, AARON GREEN, Scribe.

¹ The following outline of his life is found in Drake's Biographical Dictionary: JOSEPH TUCKERMAN, D.D., H.U. 1824; a Unitarian clergyman and philanthropist, born Boston, Jan. 18, 1778; died Havana, April 20, 1840. Harvard University 1798. Ordained pastor of the church in Chelsea, Mass., Nov. 4, 1801, where he continued, till Nov. 4, 1826. He organized the Benevolent Fraternity of Churches for the support of a city mission called the "Ministry at Large," of which he became a minister. In this sphere he was distinguished for his untiring zeal, and for the success of his labors among the poor. In 1812 he was instrumental in organizing the first charitable society established in the United States for the religious and moral improvement of seamen. He wrote, and the society published, in furtherance of that object, eleven tracts. In 1830 he wrote an essay "On the Wages paid to Females," which gained a prize offered in Philadelphia. On his return from Europe, where he had promoted the organization of similar institutions, he published "Principles and Results of the Ministry at Large," 12mo., 1838. In 1811 he published "Seven Discourses on Miscellaneous Subjects."

Sabbath, Feb. 21, 1802. After divine service, informed the brethren that Miss Elizabeth Harris, Miss Sarah, and Miss Ann Cary, had expressed their desire to become members of our communion, and that if no objections should be made, they would, on the next Sabbath, be admitted.

Sabbath, 28 Feb., 1802. This day, the ordinance of the supper, which should in course have been administered, was necessarily omitted. A storm which began with the week, and which, except on Wednesday, has continued to this time (March 1), prevented the requisite preparations.

Sabbath, March 21, 1802. The women named under date of Feb. 21 were admitted to the communion of the church.²

The Chelsea Church was invited to assist in the ordination, or installation, of some of the most eminent clergymen in and about Boston, and I group the instances in the note below.³

² As the first admissions to the Chelsea Church during Dr. Tuckerman's pastorate the fact is mentioned; but as Births, Baptisms, Marriages, Admissions to the church, and Deaths will be tabulated, special mention of either will be omitted; with the exception of that of Polly Harris, June 12, 1803, who, having expressed a desire to become a member in full communion, but being confined to a bed of sickness, by consent of the church, the ordinance was administered by Mr. Tuckerman; Deacon Cheever and Mr. Eustis being present as representatives of the church.

³ Wednesday, June 1, 1803, William E. Channing, as pastor of the Federal Street Church, Boston. Deacons Harris and Cheever and Joshua Cheever, Jr., were delegates. Mr. Tuckerman gave the right hand of fellowship.

⁴ Town Rec., ii. 185.

March 7, 1803. The town voted that Rev. Mr. Tuckerman have liberty to build a pew in the Meeting-House in the place of the body seat in front of Mr. Joseph Pratt's pew, and improve the same, while continuing our minister.⁵

The town owned a pew in the Meeting-House, which it let yearly to the highest bidder at auction. I have noted these bids from 1804 to 1826, and they average $5. [See Appendix at end of this chapter.]

Dec. 11, 1803. It has hitherto been a custom of the church in this place to omit the administration of the ordinance of the supper during the months of December and January. This day, I expressed to the church my desire for its continuance, which was readily and cordially granted.

March 3, 1806. At the request of Mr. Tuckerman the town voted unanimously that all future meetings of the town, for any other than religious purposes, shall be holden in the school-house, except when the numbers attending be so great, that they cannot be accommodated there.

June 22. Deacon Cheever sent in his resignation, and asked for a committee to settle his accounts. An honorable dismissal was unanimously granted, and instructed the committee which was chosen to express to him the gratitude of the church for his long and faithful services. The committee chosen were Dea. Harris, Mr. Hastings, and Mr. Samuel Pratt. Voted to defer the choice of another deacon to the next Sabbath.

In the afternoon a contribution of $36.89 was made, for aiding the translation of the Scriptures into the languages of India.

June 29. The committee to settle the accounts of Dea. Cheever, reported that they found in his hands, $67.27. Capt. James Floyd was chosen deacon with the exception of a single vote. He requested time to deliberate.

In consequence of the small contribution for aiding the translation of the Scriptures into the Indian languages, voted that $13.11 of the church money be added, to make up $50.

Deacon Cheever requested the Church to accept land enough behind the meeting-house and contiguous to it for a large tomb; or in future to be appropriated to any purpose they shall think proper.

May 4, 1807. The Town's pew in the meeting-house let to Mr. John Farrington, for one year from this date, for $5.

⁵ Town Rec., ii. 190.

May 8, 1809. Let to John S. Tewksbury for $6.75.^a Nov. 1, 1809. Admitted Miss Priscilla Belcher to full communion. The service was performed in the school-house at Pullin Point, the deacons being appointed to represent the church. On this afternoon I closed the services at the Point for this season. They were commenced in the spring of 1804, and have been continued regularly.

April 21, 1811. Belknap's Psalms and Hymns were read in public worship for the first time in this town — Watts's have hitherto been used.

June 23, 1811. This afternoon we had a contribution for the sufferers by the late fire in Newbury-Port, and collected $67.77; the greatest sum, I believe, ever obtained by a contribution in this place.

August 25, 1816. Voted, on motion of Deacon Harris, "that a committee of three be chosen to act as there may hereafter be occasion with the authority usually delegated to church committees." Voted, that Deacons Harris and Floyd, and Thomas G. Cary, be of this committee.

[Mem. The Rev. Dr. Kirkland officiated as moderator on this occasion: in the absence of the Reverend and beloved pastor of the Church, then in England for the benefit of his health.]

"Dec. 1816. From long inattention to my health, I became almost entirely prostrated by dyspepsia. My lungs were enfeebled, and copious perspiration was day and night wasting my strength. Dr. Warren advised a voyage, and with my beloved wife I embarked on the last day of June; arrived at Gravesend on the 28th of July; and reembarked at Liverpool on the 3d of October of the same year for my country and home, where I arrived on the 7th of November."

Nov. 24. In consequence of my indisposition not being wholly removed, and my strength not entirely restored, the Parish voted this day that there should be but one public service in the church through the months of winter.

Oct. 19, 1817. At a meeting of the church after divine service, having taken into consideration the expediency of having a stove in the meeting-house, it was motioned by the pastor, seconded by Deacon Harris and voted unanimously, that the church committee be and hereby are empowered and requested in the name of the church in this place to offer the town from the church funds, to purchase and have erected a stove in the meeting-house suitable for warming it in winter; on the condition, that the town will keep said stove in good repair, and supply it with fuel at the town's expense. [See appendix at end of this chapter.]

The church committee to ask for a meeting of the town, to act on this proposition of the church; and in case the town accepts it, to have the stove erected as soon as may be.

The period at which we have arrived in Chelsea history was one in which the different schools of ecclesiastical opinions were assuming positions which widely separated them; and since whatever illustrates this separation is of historical interest, not to be overlooked, I yield considerable space to an interesting case.

Nov. 9, 1817. I requested the brethren of the church to meet at my house on Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock.

Wednesday evening, Nov. 12th. At a meeting of the brethren of the church at my house this evening I stated to them, that the cause of calling them together was, a desire expressed to me by Mr. Amos Sargeant of Malden, in behalf of himself and Allice, his wife, to join in communion with the church of Christ in this place; that it was well-known to all of them that Mr. Sargeant and his wife had been refused admission into the church in Malden; that Mr. Sargeant laid before me the grounds of this refusal; and that we were now to determine whether notwithstanding this rejection we would receive them to partake with us of the Lord's supper. And that we might enter upon and pursue our deliberations in the spirit of the gospel of Christ, it became us to look up to God for His presence and for the sure guidance of His word and spirit.

Our prayers having been offered, I informed the brethren that I had written to the Rev. Mr. Green of Malden, requesting an extract from his church records, stating the cause or causes of the rejection of Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant's request to join in christian communion with the church in Malden; and inquiring whether any objections had been made against Mr. Sargeant's moral character. The following is a copy of the reply of Mr. Green.

"May 20th, 1817. The brethren of the church of Christ in Malden, having been notified on the previous Lord's Day, met at the Parsonage house to confer together on the expediency of receiving Amos Sargeant and Allice, his wife, who have been propounded, but to whose admission objections have been made, into our communion. After debate on the subject, in which the prinprincipal objection urged was, that they did not give satisfactory evidence of their having experienced a work of grace on their hearts, the brethren voted to ask the opinion of some of the neighboring ministers on the subject.

A true copy from record.

Attest: AARON GREEN,
Pastor of the Congregational Church in Malden.

"Dear Sir: The above I think is all that can be interesting to you on this unpleasant subject. Respecting Capt. Sargeant's moral character, I know of nothing which in my view would disqualify him for church membership. — Your sincere friend and brother,
A. GREEN."

"Saturday evening, Nov. 8th, 1817."

I then stated to the brethren that Mr. Sargeant, having refused a reference of the business to neighboring ministers, for he knew to whom it was to be referred, preferred for the present to withdraw his application. Here it appears that, the whole ground of the rejection of Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant, "was, that they did not give satisfactory evidence of having experienced a work of grace on their hearts"; and Mr. Sargeant had stated to me that his evidence, — for he only, it appears, was summoned and tried, no notice having been taken of his wife, — was unsatisfactory because he could not say at what time he had been converted.⁷

Some months after this rejection of Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant, some of the brethren in Malden, very much regretting that Mr. and Mrs. S. had been refused the enjoyment with them of the Lord's supper, requested that another meeting of the church might be called to revise their doings at the former meeting; and, if it should be deemed expedient, to rescind their vote concerning Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant. The brethren met; and having revised their doings, agreed to abide by their former decision. Mr. S. now consented for himself and his wife to join with the church in taking counsel of Dr. Morse of Charlestown, and of Mr. Emerson of Reading. These gentlemen met with the brethren of the church in Malden; and Mr. Sargeant, having been called and examined, Dr. Morse and Mr. Emerson found, that, which was well-known before, by his own confession, Mr. Sargeant believed in the final restoration of all mankind to the favor of God and to future happiness. On this ground, they determined that without inquiring any further they deemed it right that churches acknowledging the Westminster Confession of Faith and the Assembly's Shorter Catechism as their grounds of doctrine and discipline should not receive into their communion any one holding this doctrine;* and the church in Malden, having been commended for what they had done, Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant were again rejected. These were the circumstances in which Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant made their application to me.

In examining these facts, it appeared that Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant had been refused admission to the church in Malden, in May last, because "they could not give satisfactory evidence of having experienced a work of grace on their hearts"; or in other words because Mr. S. could not say at what time he was converted; — that Dr. Morse and Mr. Emerson had sanctioned this rejection, not from dissatisfaction on the subject of Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant's experience, but because Mr. S. believed in the final restoration of mankind. On each of these grounds of decision we proceeded to deliberate.

The first inquiry to be answered was, have we a right of requiring of one who wishes to join with us in partaking of the Lord's supper, that he should be able to tell the time of his conversion? It was replied by one and another of the brethren, 1st, that it is a great thing for anyone to say that he is truly converted; that many have been deceived in attributing to the spirit of God, what afterwards, it appeared, could not have been a work of the spirit; and therefore that men should be very careful not to be too confident of their conversion. In the second place, that the minds and hearts of men are very differently affected by the means and motives which God has appointed for bringing them to Himself, even in cases in which we have equal reason to suppose that a work of grace on the heart is actually experienced; that God operates variously; sometimes, in a manner so sudden and striking as to arrest the attention, not of the person alone who is particularly affected, but of those around him; sometimes, in a manner so silent, gradual, and unimposing, that a very deep and solemn sense of the truth and power and excellence of religion is felt and acknowledged and exhibited in the life, even where no particular circumstance can be fixed on from which to derive a date of the time of conversion. In the 3rd place, that we are not and cannot be judges of the heart; that visible christianity, or a conformity of life to the profession made, is the best evidence we have a right of requiring or can possess that another had experienced a work of grace on his heart; that the actual sincerity of any profession could be known only to God; and that if a man appeared to us so far to be sincere that his temper and conduct seemed to be consistent with the spirit of the gospel, we ought to hope that he is indeed a christian, and on this ground to receive him into christian fellowship. For these reasons, and having received a very favorable report of Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant, it was unanimously voted that we do not think Mr. Sargeant's desire of being propounded for admission into the church of Christ in this place ought to be rejected because he cannot say at what particular time he was converted.

The second circumstance to be considered was, that Mr. Sargeant acknowledged his belief in the final restoration of all mankind to happiness. This was the ground of his rejection by Dr. Morse and Mr. Emerson, who refer to the doctrine and discipline of the Westminster confession and the Assembly's shorter catechism. It was agreed by all, that we do not receive this confession and catechism or any other creed or catechism of human fabrication as the ground of our doctrine or discipline; that our first and last and only resort on these subjects is, to the Scriptures. In regard to the doctrine professed by Mr. Sargeant, it was observed first, that it is not acknowledged by the church of Christ in this place. Mr. Sargeant, knowing this circumstance, asks us to admit him to the Lord's table. The question then is, can we acknowledge him as a brother in Christ and receive him to christian fellowship while he differs from us in his faith concerning the final condition of the impenitently wicked? It was said, that the righteous and the wicked are and will be all in the hands of God; that, although we differently interpret the expressions of the divine word concerning the final condition of the wicked, we did not see that a man, acknowledging, as Mr. Sargeant does, the awful punishment of the wicked in the future life, should be rejected from the Lord's table because he did not think that punishment would be eternal. For in receiving him to christian communion with us we do but admit him, with ourselves, to the enjoyment of the means of grace. He acknowledges, with us, the inspiration of the scriptures which he promises to make the rule of his faith and conduct; he professes sincere repentance before God for all his sins, resolving in reliance on His grace unfeignedly to forsake them; he engages faithfully to study the scriptures that he may know the will of God in Christ Jesus; and in daily prayer to seek the guidance of God's holy spirit, that he may be enabled to walk in the commands and ordinances of the gospel blameless. Thus he gives up himself to God in an everlasting covenant through the mediation of Jesus Christ. And shall we say that with these professions and these engagements he must necessarily be an unworthy communicant, and must at last be rejected of the Lord? Shall we say that we cannot admit him to the enjoyment with us of this means of grace? For we consider the Lord's supper to be a means and not the end of religion. In the second place, we are often and most impressively admonished by our religion not to judge, censure, and condemn our brother; that we are not to exercise dominion over faith, but to be helpers of each other's joy; that we are always to remember that every one must bear his own burden, and must give account of himself to God; and that God, or Christ, is alone the Judge.

We consider, therefore, that we should directly violate both the letter and the spirit of the gospel when we exercise that judgment of our brother as to refuse him the enjoyment with ourselves of a christian privilege, merely because he does not agree with us on a single article, which we do not find in the new Testament was on any occasion made a condition of admission to the Lord's table. We remember the solemn words of the apostle, "Why dost thou judge thy brother, and why dost thou set at nought thy brother? for we shall stand before the judgment seat of Christ." Leaving judgment then to him, and judging ourselves rather, and feeling our own unworthiness, and our entire dependence on the mercy of our God and redeemer for the forgiveness of our own errors and sins, we feel that in receiving a brother under such circumstances to christian communion with us we do but exercise at best the meekness which becomes disciples of Christ, and the forbearance which we hope to obtain from our judge. — In the third place we considered that, much as is ascribed to faith in the New Testament, and important as is a right faith, charity is a still higher grace; that our Lord exercised this charity towards his disciples while they had many errors; that we know the apostles had many errors concerning himself, the objects of his mission, his death, and the nature of his kingdom, when he administered to them the last supper; that we may ourselves be in error on some of the doctrines of religion; and that we could not therefore consider, what we suppose to be the error of our brother as justifying us in refusing to him this great and invaluable privilege.

These reasons having been given, and each brother having been requested in turn to give his opinions, whether on account of this article of his faith the request of Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant should be rejected, each one thought that it should not.

The character of Mr. Sargeant, well-known to several of the brethren, having been considered, it was moved, seconded, and unanimously voted, that Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant be propounded for admission to the church of Christ in this place.

In passing this vote the brethren do not express or imply any indifference concerning articles of faith. But they have acted on the belief that for any peculiarities of his faith every one is accountable only to his own conscience and to God; "that sincere repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ," are the great requisites of admission to the Lord's table; that Christians ought to love one another, and charitably to indulge the hopes of the gospel concerning each other, when they cannot agree in their views of some of the doctrines of the gospel; that in joining in christian communion they do not become responsible for every article of each other's faith; but in this act above all others where differences exist, exercise that "charity," which is "the bond of perfectness"; that our profession of Christ at his table is not the end of religion, but one of its means, and as we think in some of its tendencies, the most important; and a means designed, not for those only who are certain that they believe all which is to be believed, and that no other faith than their own can be right, but by bringing us nearer to Christ, and by uniting us with him in the most solemn and affectionate engagements, that it is a means as well of obtaining a truly evangelical faith as of a holy life and conversation. They think themselves therefore in this decision to be approved by the word of God; and sensible of their own liability to error commend themselves wholly to His mercy, for their hopes of acceptance.

Nov. 12th, 1817. JOSEPH TUCKERMAN, Pastor of the church, and Moderator of the meeting.

Nov. 17, 1817. The town voted to have sheds built on the Common about the Meeting-House by individuals: to build to any number, but not to exceed twenty-five, and that those that build, be under the direction of a Committee chosen for that purpose."

Oct. 17, 1819. The church committee was requested to deposit the money of the church, then in the hands of Deacon Harris, in the Savings Bank in Boston, that interest upon it may be accumulating. The sum so deposited was $135.

April 30, 1820, after the communion service, the pastor mentioned that Edward Wait, a brother in the church, was old, poor, and very infirm; and a proper object of the church's charity. He proposed that a contribution be collected at the close of the afternoon service, which contribution amounted to $19.33.

April 4, 1822. A contribution of $46.40, was made for Mr. Daniel Pratt, Jr., who was accidentally shot by Mr. Munroe, of Boston, and lost the sight of his right eye.

April 12, 1823, Dr. Tuckerman says, that, "Mrs. Hasey, now in her 97th year, informs me, that this church was built while she was absent from this town, between the time of the ninth, and eleventh year of her age. It has, therefore, stood about 86 years." If this was the case, it is singular that no mention is made in the Boston town records, Chelsea being then a part of Boston. On page 185, we have an account of the raising of a meeting-house there, only 27 years before the erection of the building, spoken of by Mrs. Hasey — a short time for it to fall into decay.¹⁰

July 27, 1823. At the town meeting, last spring, it was voted, 1st, that $500 be raised for painting and otherwise repairing the meeting-house; and, the steeple having been found to be too much decayed to be worth repair, it was voted, that the steeple should be taken down, and a cupola erected; and that the committee which had been appointed to provide for, and superintend the repairs, should have discretionary power to raise and expend such sums as they might think to be proper for the work. The house has consequently been painted and repaired, within and without. The expense incurred has been a little more than $800. The old steeple and the refuse lumber has sold for $50. Capt. John Pratt, of Boston, who owns one of the pews, gave $33. Each owner of a pew paid for the painting of his pew; and thus has been obtained, $60. And to-day the church voted to give to the town from our little fund, $50, in aid of the general expense of the work.¹¹

Nov. 14, 1824. Voted, that Mr. Daniel Pratt, Junr., who has raised by subscription, $40.25, for the support of a singing-school,

¹¹ The church records, under date of 1857, contain an entry not signed by any clerk, from which the following is an extract: "It" [the church edifice] was similar to the church edifices of that day; entrance at the side; galleries on three sides; pulpit opposite the entrance; two tiers of windows. It fronted north, nearly. The last service in the building was 17th August, 1856, and workmen commenced the alteration on the next day. The edifice was turned round about a quarter of a circle, and entirely remodelled at an expense of about $3,300. It was dedicated on Thursday, the 15th Jan., 1857. Dr. Gannett, of Boston, preached the sermon, and W. O. Moseley made the dedicatory prayer.

Before anything was done to the building a drawing was taken of it, which was lithographed, and probably can be seen in most of the families connected with the society.

be permitted at the closing of the school to draw any sum less than $15 from the treasury of the church, to make up the salary of the singing master, and to defray any necessary incidental expenses of the school.

Feb. 13, 1825. The pastor informed the church, that the choir of singers wished to possess a Bass Viol for public worship; that the cost of a good Viol will be $25; and that $14.80 had been raised by subscription. Also that Psalm books were wanting for the Singing Gallery. The church voted, 1st, that Deacon Harris be authorized to pay from the church treasury, $10.25, to make up the sum of $25 for the purchase of a Viol; and to advance the sum also that will purchase 8 or 10 Books for the Singing Gallery.

July 3, 1825. The pastor proposed to the church, the case of the widow Vial, now of Saugus, but a member of the Chelsea church. She is now 93 years of age, very poor, and dependent on relations who are not able to support her. She begs assistance from this church. Voted unanimously to give to her from the church funds the sum of $20.

July 2, 1826. Dr. Tuckerman represented to brethren, the state of the Unitarian Church in Calcutta, and the proposition which had been made for its aid from Unitarian churches in England and America, and his desire that the Chelsea church should contribute: and it was unanimously voted that about $30 in the hands of the deacons should be given to the object.

Sept. 7, 1826. At the request of Dr. Tuckerman there was a meeting of the brethren at his house, to receive a communication from him, asking for a dissolution of his pastoral relations to the church and society in Chelsea. At the time appointed Dr. Tuckerman set forth at length his reasons, the state of his health, which compelled him to make the request. The matter was referred to a committee, which reported a resolution for a mutual council. This was adopted.

Oct. 1, 1826. At a church meeting it was stated that some of the parish had expressed a desire that when a call was to be given to any gentleman to be their minister, the whole society, instead of the church alone, should be joined in the call. After some discussion the subject was unanimously postponed.

April 13, 1828. At a church meeting, a paper was read by the officiating minister, signed by Deacon Joseph Harris, his mother and sisters, Seth Copeland and wife, Mary Copeland, Nabby Hall, Oliver Pratt and wife, David Floyd and wife, and Elizabeth Cheever, all members of the church, proposing a separation, and requesting a dismissal from the church.

The matter was deferred, and on the 27th it was unanimously voted that the church "would not act upon it"; so no dismissal was granted.

No reason being assigned for the request or the refusal, it is mainly conjectural. It is well-known, however, that at this time a reaction had set in on the part of the more orthodox members of the church, from the departure from the old Orthodox doctrines in the direction of Unitarian views, which had become more explicit.

Perhaps this reaction had some connection with the following vote of the town, October 22, 1827: The town refused "by a large majority the petition of David Floyd, Joseph Harris and others, for the use of the Brick School-House, in which to hold meetings for public worship."¹²

¹² Town Rec., iii. 179, 180, 181.

The reader may ask why in the history of the town so much prominence has been given to the history of the Church; but the present generation, which sees a half-dozen, it may be, churches in the same town, may not understand, that, until "the separation of Church and State," in the early part of the nineteenth century, legally there could be only one church in a town, and that church was the town church, to which the town stood in the same relation as the modern religious society does to the church with which it is connected. That is, the town owned the Meeting-House, and took care of it. It paid the minister's salary, raised by general taxation, the same as the cost of schools, roads, the care of the poor, etc.; and in this way the history of the church became a part of the history of the town. I will only add that the history of Dr. Tuckerman's pastorate has been mainly drawn from the church records kept by himself.

¹ Perhaps I may be pardoned for saying, that this Jacob Chamberlane was my direct lineal ancestor, in the fourth degree, and I suppose him to have been an emigrant. His wife was Abigail, sister of Elder William Hasey — of whom we find so much in these records. Jacob Chamberlane died in 1734, in the forty-fourth year of his age, and lies buried in the Revere churchyard, near the centre. His widow, and a large family of children, removed early to Hopkinton, and from there dispersed into New Hampshire, Vermont, and New York. I cannot discover that he was related to Deacon John Chamberlane, though they married cousins; and the fact that Jacob, then living at Roxbury, found his wife at Rumney Marsh, indicates that he may have made her acquaintance, while visiting John Chamberlane, as a relative.

Church Covenant

In the presence of God, you do now give up yourself to him in an everlasting covenant, through the mediation of our Lord Jesus Christ.

You believe the Scriptures to be a faithful record of the revelations of God to man; and, that Jesus is the Christ, — the son of the living God.

You profess sincere repentance before God, in a conviction of your sins; and a sincere desire to walk in the commandments and ordinances of the Lord, blameless.

You will faithfully study the Scriptures, that you may know the will of God, in Christ Jesus, concerning you; and in daily prayer, you will seek the guidance of your Father in heaven, who has promised his holy spirit to them who ask him for it.

These things you believe, profess, and promise.

We, then, of the church of Christ in this place, receive you into fellowship and communion with us at the Lord's table; and with brotherly love commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an eternal inheritance with them that are sanctified.

[I give this Covenant as an expression of the belief of those, who, not long after, took more radical grounds, and arrayed themselves more distinctly with the party of Unitarians.]

On the 27th ins., as a Party of the Massachusetts Forces, together with a Party of new Hampshire Forces, in all, about 600 Men, were attempting to bring off the Stock upon hog Island, & about 30 Men upon Noddle's Island were doing the same; when, about a hundred Regulars landed upon the last mentioned Island, & pursued our Men, till they had got safely back to hog Island;—then the Regulars began to fire very briskly by Platoons upon our Men.

In the mean time, an armed Schooner (mounting four 6^l Pounders & 12 Swivels) with a Number of Barges, came up to hog Island, to prevent our People leaving sd. Island. But, to no Purpose:—After this, she attempted to return back to the Place where she was stationed at Winisimet, & five or 6 Minutes would have secured her: But our Men put in a heavy fire of small Arms upon several Barges, which were toaing her back, for there was little Wind & flood Tide; & two 3 Pounders coming to Hand, that Instant, began to play upon them, & soon obliged the Barges to quit her, & carry off her Crew. — after which, Fire was set to her, altho' the Barges exerted themselves very vigorously to prevent it.— She was burnt upon the Ways of Winisimet Ferry.—

We have not lost a single Life, altho' the Engagement was very warm from the armed Schooner, an armed Sloop, that lay within reach of small Arms, from one or two twelve Pounders on Noddle's Island, & from the Barges which were all fix'd with Swivels. — Hog Island was stript of its Stock; & some was taken from Noddle's Island by our Forces (?). Two or three Persons only, of our Men, were wounded, but not mortally.— How many of the Enemy were killed & wounded, we cannot ascertain. — Since which we have got into our Hands all in the schooner, that was not destroyed by Fire. —

May 27, 1775.

Saturday, 27th. May. — A number of men (about six hundred) marched to Chelsea, with two cannon, in order to burn some hay, and drive off a number of Cattle and sheep from Hog and Noddle's Island. There came an armed schooner against them from Boston, and ran aground between the islands and began a battle. Our men burnt the vessel, without the loss of a man, and she kept a continual fire all the time, till she was set on fire. She carried twelve cannon and four swivels.

Sunday, 28th. — Six hundred men marched to Chelsea, to relieve those that were there.⁶

27th. Saturday. About 200 men were detached to go to the Point [Dorchester], to guard it. About 9 or 10 o.c., in the evening, we heard the cannon roar, and the small arms crack for about an hour, in the direction of Marblehead, or Medford, as we thought. We have since learnt, that it was Col. Putnam, & his men at Noddle's Island, where he engaged the regulars, and took 300 sheep, & 200 lambs. One ship ran aground, & they burnt it. He also took some cattle.⁷

and Taken 17 More. Coll. putnam had not a Man Killed, and only three Men Wounded. How many of the Regulars were Killed, we Cannot Learn, only that there were Discovered in the Action, three Regulars Killed, and it is thought Numbers more were Slain. The place of Action was at Chelsey, near winnysimmit ferry, Sixteen Miles from this place (by Land): when we first Heard the firings, which was very Brisk, I mustered my forces, which were about 240, at the first Alarm, Not Knowing but it was a General Attack, and Sent off Expresses forward toward the Enemy. Sent out Several Companies to Reconoiter, who went forward, untill they were Informed where the fire was, and were Satisfied their Help was not wanted: (some went Down Head Quarters:) & in the morning The Fire Renewing, I Marched Down with all my men, but a few, who I Left behind to Guard the Incampment & Magazine: went to Head Quarters for Orders to go forward; were within Sight of the Ennemies fire, but the General, thinking it Best for Me to Return, and Refresh my Men, and hold My People in Readiness; and Soon after my Return, Coll. Hitchcock, Coll. Cornel, Arrived Here, and Took the Chief Command, and, toward Night, Major Sherburn Arrived Here. Since which, Several Companies are Arrived: we heard a Number of Cannon fired toward Chelsey, Last Evening, but have not Learn what they have Done: wherefore, I should be glad if you would Send me Some Linning, Such as Shirts, &c., when you have them Ready: if you want to Send any thing to me, Such as Shoes, or any thing Else, you will please to have them Bundled up, and a paper pasted on the Bundle, and a Letter Wrote Ready.

BOSTON IN 1775.¹⁰

A Letter

From Jesse Lukens to John Shaw, Jr.

[From the original manuscript in the Boston Public Library.]

DEAR SHAW

I had this morning the honor of yours by Mr. Lawrence — Why you dear dog, was there not time enough from the 21st. to the 29th of Aug^t. to write more than 7 lines? And those 7 to inform me you intended to have sent me 4½ lines by Captain Wharton — If we were not, as I apprehend, on the eve of some important event, you should receive a Rowland for your 11½ lines; but as the case now stands & God only knows what a chasm there may be in our Correspondence, will forget your unkind negligence & excuse you on the supposition that the Lovely Widow, had some willing commands for you to execute, & you know I allow every thing to give way to her Supremacy. —

I suppose Patton received a confused heap of Lines wrote the Day we took possession of Plow'd Hill, while the thundering of Cannon & whizing of 24 lb. Bullets took up much of the attention of an unfleshed Soldier — he must on that score excuse all faults — That was on Sunday — in the evening the fire of the Artillery ceased and on Monday morning we saw the Red Coats busy in throwing up a Parapet within their former Lines, but so much higher on the Hill that the Cannon mounted there could fire at the same time & over those they had fired with on Sunday — this new Parapet had six Embrasures — On Monday evening they threw four Bombs from their new Battery & a few Guns from it, the old Battery & the Mud Lark in Mystic River without doing any harm — Over against Bunker Hill on the other side of Mystic River is Winnisimit Hill at the foot [of] w^{ch}. stands a large House & Farm called Chelsea, here we have abt. 200 men as a Guard, but no Works or Cannon. On the side of Bunker Hill next here & in full view, is the Regular Tents, being on the opposite side & out of the way of our Guns on Prospect & Plowed Hills — On the Top of this Winnisimmit Hill we had a parcel of straw, etc. to set fire to as a signal whenever they saw the Regulars in motion — Accordingly on Tuesday about 10 o'Clock we saw the Fire, our Drums beat to Arms, all our lines were mann'd — & we Riflers were left at full liberty to range at large & take what ground we pleased — Col Thompson therefore posted us in the Seat of honor, that is, between all our Works & Bunker Hill, behind Stone Walls & in the Indian Corn patches, to receive and return with Interest their first fire & I think it impossible for men to behave better than Our Riflers did — 300 of them lay in a meadow, in full View of Bunker hill & with in Point Blank Shot — “before their Eyes in opposition sat grim death.” altho we lay in this position & the Officers with myself were walking about, viewing and marking the most advantageous ground to act upon they fired but seven large Guns & 30 or 40 Platoons of Small arms all the Day, some of which knocked the stones about our Ears but hurt none of us except one man a slight wound in the thigh — One 24 Pounder flew over our heads & killed a poor fellow walking along the Road half a mile behind us — The alarm proving false, we marched home about sunset & our Generals placed a strong Guard of Musket Men in the lines, since which every thing in that Quarter hath been quiet — we call 6, 8 & 10 Guns a Day nothing & 3 or 4 Bombs are only sport, just enough to keep us from falling asleep — We have had several Deserters from Roxbury & from the Mud Lark in Mystic — 4 poor fellows came off at one time & swam to shore unhurt, amidst a thousand Shot, tho' they say it was agreed with their companions left on board to fire over their Heads. — You must now set down a few false alarms w^{ch}. took us out of our Beds into the trenches at midnight, & some other matters of no great moment, until last Sunday, & I feel myself blush with shame and indignation at what I am forced to relate.

Our Camp is Separate from all others abt. 100 yards — all our Courts Martial and duty was separate — we were excused from all working parties, Camp Guards, & Camp duty — this indulgence together with the remissness of discipline & care in our young Officers had rendered the men rather insolent for good Soldiers — they had twice before broke open our Guard House & released their Companions who were confined there for small crimes — & once when an Offender was brought to the Post to be whipped, it was with the utmost difficulty they were kept from rescuing him in the presence of all their Officers — They openly Damn'd them & behaved with great insolence — however the Col was pleased to pardon the man & all remained quiet — but on Sunday last the Adjutant having confined a Serjeant for neglect of duty & murmering — the men began again, & threatened to take him out — the Adjutant being a man of Spirit, seized the principal Mutineer & put him in also — & coming to report the matter to the Col, where we all sitting after dinner, were alarmed with a Huzzaing & upon going out found they had broke open the Guard House & taken the man out — The Col & Lieut. Col with several of the Officers & Friends seized the fellow from amongst them & ordered a guard to take him to Cambridge at the Main Guard which was done without any violent opposition, but in abt. 20 minutes 32 of Capt Ross's Company with their loaded Rifles, swore by G-d they would go the Main Guard & release the man or loose their lives & set off as hard as they could run — it was in vain to attempt stoping them — We stayed in Camp and kept the others quiet — Sent word to General Washington, who reinforced the Guard to 500 men with fixed Bayonets & loaded pieces — Col Hitchcock's Regt. (being the one next us) was ordered under arms & some part of General Greens Brigade (As the Generals were determined to subdue by force the mutineers & did not know how far it might spread in our Battalion) Generals Washington, Lee, & Green came immediately, & our 32 mutineers who had gone about half a mile towards Cambridge & taken possession of a Hill & Woods, beginning to be frighted at their proceedings, were not so hardened but upon the General's ordering them to Ground their arms they did it immediately — The General then ordered another of our Companys (Capt Nagles) to surround them with their loaded Guns which was immediately done, and did the Company great honor — however to convince our people (as I suppose, mind) that it did not altogether depend upon themselves, he ordered part of Col Hitchcocks and Col Littles Regiments to surround them with their Bayonets fixed and ordered two of the ring leaders to be bound — I was glad to find our men were all true and ready to do their duty except these 32 Rascals — 26 were conveyed to the Quarter Guard on Prospect Hill and 6 of the principals to the Main Guard. — You cannot conceive what disgrace we are all in & how much the General is chagrined that only one Regiment should come from the Southward & that set so infamous an example: and in order that idleness shall not be a further bane to us, the General Orders on Monday were "that Col Thompsons Regiment shall be upon all parties of Fatague (working parties) & do all other Camp duty equal with any other Regiment"

The men have since been tried by a General Court Martial and convicted of Mutiny — & were only fined 20/. each for the use of the Hospital — too small a punishment for so base a crime — & mitigated no doubt on account of their having come so far to serve the Cause & its being the first crime — The Men are returned to their Camp, seem exceedingly sorrow for their misbehaviour & promise amendment. — This will I hope awaken the attention of our officers to their duty (for to their remissness I charge our whole disgrace) & the men being employed will yet no doubt do honor to their province — for this much I can say of them that upon every alarm it was impossible for men to behave with more readiness or attend better to their duty — it is in the Camp only that we cut a poor figure — tomorrow morning or some time in the Day may perhaps restore our honor, if we behave in the Day of Battle as well as I hope we shall — you must know that this is a conjecture of my own & founded on no better materials than a poor inexperienced judgement. —

On Monday last Col Arnold having chosen 1000 effective men, Consisting of two Companies of Rifle men (about 140) the remainder Musketeers, set off for Quebec as it is given out (& which I really believe to be their destination). for we have intelligence that the Indians except 30 have deserted from General Carleton & that he hath not more than 700 effective men in Canada all which except one Company is at St. John's & Montreal to oppose General Schuyler — If this should be the Case & Col Arnold meet with a ready march, Quebec will undoubtedly fall into our Hands — for those people who have gone to sound the disposition of the Inhabitants report that they are generally in our Favour, & that no opposition will be given by the country to our measures. I accompanied on foot as far as the Town of Lynn (9 miles) Doctr. Coates who goes as Surgeon, Mr. Matt. Duncan, Mr. Melcher & several other Southern gentlemen as Volunteers —  here I took leave of them with a wet eye — the Drums beat & away — they go as far as Newberry Port by Land from there they go in Sloops to Kennebeck River, up it in Batteaux & have a carrying place of abt. 40 miles (over which they must carry on their Shoulders their Batteaux & Baggage — Scale the Walls and spend the winter in joy and festivity amongst the sweet Nuns. — Yesterday the wind being high & the Tide driving in, a Boat with a Serjeant & 5 men drove ashore and were taken by our people — the Serjeant seems a very intelligent person for his station — he says a Vessel arived at Boston a few days before & brought answers to letters sent out after the Bunker Hill Battle, but knows nothing of what they contain — he says that he was Orderly Serjeant a few days ago, and saw in Major Sheriffs

Office (Muster Master or Commissary) a return of the killed and wounded at Bunker hill, being 1435 men. — It is amazing to me that so many were hurt there — for not more than 700 of our Men were in the Battle, but the most of them fired 30 rounds, as they say — I must from this conclude that they will hardly attempt our Lines in the Day time, or without a very heavy set of Artillery. —

Saturday 16th Prospect Hill

Here we are yet & all as peaceable as so many Lambs. I began this letter in the evening & as we were ordered to lie on our Arms kept on scribbling until 1 o'Clock — On Thursday at firing the morning Gun we were ordered to Plow'd Hill, where we lay all that day — I took my paper & Ink along as you once desired I would, but found so much to do beside writing, that you had only a few lines manufactured (in the face of 18 battering Cannon) on a pile of timber intended for a Bomb-proof & just where you see the ~~fig~~ a Bullet from the Foway disconcerted all my Ideas, altho' it did not come near me. — I tho't the Banquette a safer place & took my station accordingly just in the Angle of a Traverse & was as safe as a thief in a mill — but there was too much noise for writing & the Generals appearing in sight I tho't it not quite so decent a Posture of a SOLDIER, thrust my writing materials under an old Blanket, Shouldered my firelock, and strutted with all the parade of a careful Lad. — a deserter is just taken in to General Greens — I attend & will inform you what he says — a good hearty looking Lad from Limerick — it is deserters intelligence therefore place what Credit to it you please — he informs that there are 3000 men on Bunker hill — that all the Grenadier and Light Infantry Companies are made up to their full complement & encamped there — all the Light-Horse he says are also on the Hill — but that they have no intention of coming out & keep very strong picquets every night to prevent our surprising them — that great numbers of deserters would come over, but the Soldiers are made to believe that a compact is agreed on between ours and their Generals to give up all deserters at the end of the Campaign, & that they will hang without mercy all such as desert from them — he also says there is a great coolness between the Irish & English Soldiers, but I am apt to believe without any foundation — he says there are Barracks going to be built on Bunker Hill immediately, by w^{ch}. we conclude they intend wintering there, & that there is talk of 6 Regiments coming over to reinforce them — but that the people of Ireland have stoped the Artillery & all their recruits — so much for this Lad — One came out this morning from Roxbury & brings nearly the same intelligence except that he say's they are to give us Battle tomorrow, which we are always prepared for but don't believe a word of — they will not catch us asleep come when they please.

I hate all hasty conclusions, & therefore am pleased with the modesty of my expressions in regard to the Battle I prophecy'd on Thursday last — I had many concurring circumstances in regard to their uncommon movements to suspect something was going on — but as nothing has been done, shall only say in future what hath been actually done & not what may probably happen.

I have many things that I could write & which I know would give you pleasure, or at least a right idea of this Army of 20,000 men — but it would not do that the Letter should fall by accident into the hands of infidels or the Heathen — such Sermons, such Negroes, such Colonels such Boys & such Great Great Grand-fathers. —

This I may safely say, that such a cursed set of sharpers cannot be matched — every article of convenience or necessaries, are raised to double the former price — but I hope a proper enquiry will be made before the accounts are passed — and that whatever falsehoods their news-papers may be stuffed with will be disregarded.

Sunday Evening

All's well. — From my Tent door on this Hill I have a full view of all the Enemies Batteries & Works on Boston neck & also our own; about 8 o'Clock this morning I saw a small Cannonade begun by our people with two large Guns & were immediately answered by two from our Antagonists — our people gave them about a dozen more & only received 3 in return. What the matter was, or what occasioned so small a spell of smart firing I have not had curiosity to enquire — for I have been so busy in hearing a most excellent Sermon from our Dear Mr. [Samuel] Blair & in viewing some works on Leechmore point (I might as well have said Cul de Sac for anything you will understand by it) that I had not before an opportunity of examining with attention — that I am tired & sleepy w^{ch} you have no doubt concluded before you were informed. —

Monday Morning.

I am just informed by one of our Officers that General Schuyler hath taken St. Johns by assault with only the loss of 300 men & that he hath taken 1700 Prisoners — this being post day I set off for Cambridge & if the news is true will put this in the Post Office contrary to my first intention to send it by Mr. Willing, but as there is no knowing when he will set off, cannot keep such good news from you a moment. —

Noarth who informs me he is writing to you is to relate all the little nannygotes with that humour w^{ch} will make them agreeable — my department is meer matters of fact.

Since I wrote the last two lines 20 cannon have been fired at Roxbury & they are firing now ding dong. —

Gen. Washingtons 11 o'Clk

The above St. Johns account is all a falsehood from first to last, & now I set my nose to Roxbury & will inform you why the Serpents fire so very briskly at Roxbury —

Roxbury 1 o'Clock

I met on my way hither a Bro^r Voluntier Mr. Dan'l Dorsey of Maryland who informs me he is going to leave the Camp tomorrow morning for your city — the firing at this place was not occasioned by any uncommon movement but just by the way of Sport — We fired no Guns this morning — nor by 100 Guns w^{ch}. they have fired bath one man been killed or hurt, altho' the Guard House & other Houses full of men have been shot thro' & thro' — The wind of a 24 Pounder knocked down a man & horse, struck the Limb of an apple tree & threw it against Dr. Hubley knocked him down & did none of them any kind of harm, except frightening them soundly. —

Peacock, Jamaica Plains 4 o'Clk

The firing at Roxbury hath ceased & all is quiet again. I came here from Roxbury with some of the Rifle Gentⁿ. of that Division to ask Capt Cresap how he does who lies here sick, & for no other reason as Smith can well inform you — Mr. Conner is with me & begs his Complements be put in to you & the Club & if I know any thing of the matter, you might with ALL HIS HEART, present them to, [some words struck out] if mortal man can say which that is — & now to conclude if all this will not draw a line from you I can only say you are a very Lazy fellow, or that the Widow hath an undue influence on the friend of “May 28. – Yesterday, a party of the American army at Cambridge, to the number of between two and three hundred men, had orders to drive off the live stock from Hog and Noddle’s islands. In attempting to carry out these orders, they were attacked by the king’s troops. The combat began on Hog island, about five o’clock, in the afternoon, and continued almost incessantly until midnight. The attack was made with cannon, swivels, and small arms, from an armed schooner, sloop, and eight or ten barges, upon our people, who had small arms only, but were very advantageously posted by Colonel Putnam, who got to them just in season to station and command them properly. He placed them in a ditch up to their waists in water, and covered by the bank to their necks. The schooner, sloop, and boats full of men, came within twelve or fifteen rods of them, and gave our people a fine opportunity to place their shot well. About midnight, the fire ceased a little, and our people retreated to the mainland, where they were soon after joined by Captain Foster, with two field pieces, which were planted on the way of Winnesimit ferry. At daylight, this morning, the combat was renewed, and as the schooner passed the ferry way, she was briskly attacked by our people, with the field-pieces and small arms, which soon clearing her deck, she drifted on shore, where our people set fire to her, and she blew up, notwithstanding the utmost endeavors of the people in the boats to tow her off, and save her from destruction. In this they exposed themselves much to our fire, and suffered greatly. When they found the schooner was lost, they with difficulty towed off the sloop, much disabled, and retired to their den; and thus ended the combat. This afternoon, our people got out of the wreck, twelve four-pounders, six swivels, and everything else that was valuable, without molestation; they afterwards destroyed, or removed from both the islands, all the stock, a large quantity of hay, and burned all the barns and houses.

All this was done in sight, and as we may say, under the noses of the whole fleet and army at Boston, without molestation. The killed of the enemy (General Gage’s crew of enemies to the English Constitution) they themselves allow to be more than one hundred, besides wounded; others, who have good opportunity to know, say their killed and wounded exceed three hundred, and I believe they have suffered as much, as in their precipitate flight from Lexington, on the memorable 19th of April. Our killed none! wounded three! Heaven apparently, and most evidently, lights for us, covers our heads in the day of battle, and shields our people from the assaults of our common enemies. What thanks can speak our gratitude!

These interpositions, and our determined resolutions, may perhaps make our haughty enemies glad to quit their unjust professions for a cooler and more calm retreat, in some distant quarter of the globe: and leave us peaceably to enjoy those rights and liberties which God, in our nature, has given us, as our inalienable right, and which they are most unjustly endeavoring to rest from us by violence."¹²

Mr. Speaker. Sir:

I am very sorry my town was so unhappy as to be under this Hon'ble Court's or Colonel's Displeasure, so far as to be Singled out, as not worthy of the priviledes, that Every other town in this State Injoyed, for I Can't find any one of the Very Smallest, or Remotest, towns, or plantations, in the state, that was neglected in the affair of ye nine month's men. But were Sent to for them, Last June, but Chelsea only, that was so Easey to be Sent too. 2ly. I am Informed that the Court in the Resolve for Raiseing Said men, ordered that the Colonel of Each Regiment Should Send to Each town, or Company, in his Rigument. But our Colonel never did Send to Chelsea for any one man, at that time, as I am able to prove by his own Certificate on ye table. 3ly. and we were so unlucky, at that time, that our Representative was Sick, & So was absent from the Court, at the time when our quota of men were Laid on our town; therefore, he did not know that their was any one, or more, man Laid on our town by the Court, but Supposed that our Colonel would propotion the men, or ye Companies, in his Rigument, as usuall, & send to Chelsea for their quota; and I am Informed that our Representative tell'd the Court So, in this house, Last year; that he never knew, nor thought, that the Court had apportioned any men on Chelsea, or any other town, but had Left it to the Colonals to apportion them. 4. neither Did our Selectmen, nor Commission officers, know that their was any men apportioned to our town, Last Summer, by ye Court, but Expected, from day to day, & week to week, to Receive orders from our Colonel, for so many men as he Should please to apportion to us. but after haveing waited Some time, we all Concluded that the

Colonel was Determined to Do, as he had Done often times before, to Excuse the town at that time, and Send for the more men at another future time; for our Colonel had practised doing So, at other times in years past, for two Resons, first, when a Sufficant number of his men in Boston were Inclined to go at any time, he omitted Sending to Chelsea for any, & when the men in Boston were Disinclined to Go into the war at any time, he Sent to Chelsea for the more men to make up the past deficiency; secondly, at other times when men were Called for in the Summer Seson, when the Colonel knew that Chelsea men were Busey, & Could not be well Spared from their haying and harvesting, he would Excuse Chelsea from Sending any men, at that time, and Send for the more in the fall of the year, when our men Could be better Spared from their husbandry Business; and we Concluded, that that was the Case, Last June; and it turned, in part, so; for as we have set forth in our petition he Sent for two drafts of Eight men, in the Latter part of the Summer Seson, and, in Last October, for Seven men more, to Go to Joyn ye Contentiental army at hutson's River, or Claverick, for three months, which sd. Seven men, I am fully persuaded, was about Double our proportion of men; & Sd. men had a thousand dollers, Each, at that time, Given them by the town as a Bounty. 6. yet, notwithstanding, as the hon'ble Court Did not know, but then we had Received the knoledge of our duty, as other places had, and the Court was pledged to Lay a fine of £1,800, on my town: which agreeable to order of Court, we have assessed, Collected, & I Conclude it is paid into the publick treasury, in January, or february, Last, when money was of Same Value. & now, if we Should be Denied Drawing said fine out of the State treasury, when it is of so Little Value, as it now is, appears Very strange and uncommon I would beg the favour of this hon'ble Court, to Let me know what my town has done, that we must be Singled out, alone, to Suffer, when we have, at all times, and on all occassions, Readily Complied with all the orders of this honorable Court that we Received, and have never failed Sending any one man that we were Sent to for, from the Very begining of this war, as I can prove by a Certificate under our Colonel's hand, and that we always did it as early as any Company in his Regiment. I have, from under the hands of the Commission officers & Selectmen, of Chelsea, that they never knew that any men were apportioned by ye Court for Chelsea to procure Last June; and sd. officers appeared, Last Spring, before ye Court's Committee, and offered to make oath to the truth thereof, if sd. Comtt. Desired it, as we knew of no other way to prove Such a negative, that we did not know it. I have been Informed that one of the members of the house, Last year, tell'd the Court, that he tell'd our Captains how many men Chelsea was to procure, which was a Very Great mistake, & the Same Gentleman tell'd me, Lately, that he Darst not make o'th to what he said in ye Court, Relative to our affair, but that he then, when he tell'd the Court so, Did Realy think So:— for he undoubtedly went to the place, where our Captain worked, but the Captain was then absent; and he tell'd the Captain's man, what he since thought he tell'd the Captain, & I believe he tell'd the Captain's man to tell the Captain; but the Captain's man Declares that he Did not tell the Captain one word about it till after he heard that Chelsea was fined for not sending sd. men. Suppos a Captain Should, at this time, Draft a man to Serve as a Soldier in the present call for men, & the ¹⁴

we, the Subscribers, Inhabitants of the town of Chelsea, Testify, and Say, that we never heard, or knew, that their was any men Call'd for nine months, from Chelsea, this year, untill we heard that, Last Spring, or Sumer, Chelsea was fined, for not Sending three men, for nine months' service in the war.

PREFATORY NOTE

In the compilation of the Index special care has been given to grouping together under each name — genealogical material, land transfers, Revolutionary service, and all other items of interest — in chronological order. Successive generations bear the same name in so many instances, however, that absolute identity cannot be assured. Section XII of the General Appendix contains a voluminous record of all Town officers. With the exception of the lists of Representatives to the General Court, the Committees of Correspondence in the Revolutionary War, and the most important Town officers, this portion of the section has not been indexed.

The notation and abbreviations will be easily understood. Roman numerals indicate the volume, Arabic, the page. The letter n following a page number refers to the foot-note.

b. = born.

bap. = baptized.

pub. = published intention of marriage.

m. = married.

d. = died.

w. = wife.

Son and dau. are also italicized to secure uniformity of usage in family relationships.
